IN MEMORIAM.

ASHBY—Fifth Anniversary—In ever-loving memory of my dear father, William Ashby, who departed this life on March 17th, 1926, at his residence, 64 Adelaide road, in his 76th year.
"He is gone, I must resign him,
He rests in better hand than mine;
Once again I hope to join him
In the realms of bliss divine."
Inserted by his loving daughter, Florence.

ASHBY—Fifth Anniversary—In ever-loving memory of our dear father, William Ashby, who departed this life on March 17th, 1926, at his residence, 64 Adelaide road, in his 76th year. "Rock of Ages." Inserted by his loving sons and daughters.

DEVINE—First Anniversary—In sad and ever-loving memory of Louisa Mary (Birdie) Devine, 69 Leinster road, who departed this life March 17th, 1930. R.I.P.
"Lord, she was Thine, and not mine own,
Thou did'st not do me wrong.
I thank Thee for the precious loan
Afforded me so long."
Inserted by her sorrowing mother and brother.

HARRISON—To the beloved memory of the Rev. John W. Harrison, who died on St. Patrick's Day, 1930, at Vale View, Arklow, after a long and faithful ministry there. In glad thanksgiving for his life. His aim was ever that of every true patriot—"Ireland for Christ."
May the memory of St. Patrick's golden mitre,
Beam upon us old-time love and joy again,
May each day in store for us grow brighter
With the hope that peace midst Erin's sons may reign.
May the memory of St. Patrick's three-fold emblem,
Stir afresh the hearts of yore so free and kind,
May the sadness of the bitter partings leave them
For the brightness which 'neath darkest clouds we find.
May the memory of St. Patrick's Cross and Mission,
And the Crown, alone for those the Cross that bear—
May they waken highest venture, and fresh vision
To rise anew, and in past glorious records share.
—"Hope."

HARRISON—In loving remembrance of Rev. J. W. Harrison, of Arklow, called to higher service St. Patrick's Day, 1930. "He was not, for God took him."—M. Hallowes.

PLENDERLEITH—In ever-present remembrance of our dear mother, Mary Margaret Plenderleith, entered into rest March 17th, 1930.
"Just as I am, without one plea,
But that Thy blood was shed for me,
And that Thou bidd'st me come to Thee,
O, Lamb of God, I come."

RATHBONE—In precious and abiding memory of my beloved sister, Eileen (née Wakely), who was called to rest 17th March, 1930, at Aldershot. "So loved, so mourned, so missed."—Phyllis Johnson.

CASE OF ARTHUR ROUSE.

MANY QUESTIONS IN THE COMMONS.

HOME SECRETARY AND A CONFESSION.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. James Gardner (Labour, Hammersmith), asked the Home Secretary if he would make inquiries as to the circumstances in which what purported to be the confession of Arthur Rouse reached the Press.

Mr. Clynes—I have made searching inquiries, and I am satisfied that no confession was passed out by any official, and I think it very unlikely that any such document was sent out or passed out in any such way.

Mr. Gardner—Is the right hon. gentleman aware that certain journals are claiming that they had definite particulars that such a confession has come out of prison, and in the light of the libel, which I will call it, upon prison officials, can he take some steps to prevent a recurrence.

Mr. Clynes—I cannot answer for the resources or the inventiveness of the Press. I can only say I have made most searching inquiries, and, accordingly, answered in the terms I have already stated.

"INDECENCIES."

Mr. O'Connor (Conservative, Nottingham)—Will the Government give time for a private member's bill for dealing with indecencies of this kind?

Mr. Clynes—I doubt if even a private member's bill can deal with indecencies of this kind.

Mr. Marjoribanks (Conservative, Eastbourne)—Will the Home Secretary make arrangements for the official publication of confessions?

Mr. Clynes—There is a firmly established practice to the contrary, with very many advantages, and I see no reason to vary it.

Mr. Hall-Caine (Labour, Everton)—Have the Press invented the confession or did Rouse make one?

Mr. Clynes—The terms of my answer are all that can accurately and officially be stated on the matter.

Mr. Gardner next asked the Home Secretary if he had inquired into the means by which statements purporting to describe the last hours of Arthur Rouse had appeared in certain newspapers; whether any of this information was communicated by any of the prison officials, and, if so, what steps he was taking in the matter.

QUESTION OF A PLEDGE.

Mr. Clynes—These statements, where they do not relate to matters of ordinary routine, are sheer fabrications. For instance, it is entirely untrue that a gramaphone was used as one means of passing the prisoner's time.

Mr. Day asked the Home Secretary whether any pledge was demanded from relatives and others permitted to visit criminals under sentence of death that they shall not publish or divulge the result of such interviews, and, if not, whether in future he would exact such a pledge.

Mr. Clynes—It is not the practice to demand such pledges, which, in any event, would be difficult to enforce, and nothing happened in the present case which suggests that practice in this matter should be altered.

The Daily Sketch sent the following telegram to the Home Secretary on Saturday:—

"My informant, who communicated the details of Rouse's confession, published in the Daily Sketch this week, informs me that he is anxious to have the privilege of interview with you in order to tell exactly in what circumstances Rouse confessed to him, and to satisfy you of the authenticity of the confession He says his action in revealing the confession was done with a sense of public duty, in view of the doubts felt regarding Rouse's conviction. It is at his request that I am sending this telegram. If you are interested in this request, perhaps you would be good enough to inform me by telegram when you could see him this week."

THE NORTH'S LOSS.

MR. DEVLIN'S VIEWS.

Mr. Joseph Devlin, M.P., speaking at a St. Patrick's Eve banquet in the Grand Central Hotel, Belfast, last night, said that it was now more than ever essential that they should make manifest that Ireland was still a nation.

They in Northern Ireland would never agree, and would never accept any political changes that would tend to make Ireland two nations instead of one. The undeniable fact was that under present conditions Northern Ireland had lost, and lost materially, by its division from the rest of the country. Depressed trade, commerical weakness and poverty existed among them. In their efforts to restore the Six Counties to power and prosperity they had lost their strength.

WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' FUND.

CHURCH OF IRELAND.

The Board of the Widows' and Orphans' Fund (Church of Ireland) met on Thursday, 12th inst. The Chairman, Mr. J. A. Maconchy, presided. The other members attending were: The Dean of Belfast, the Archdeacon of Dublin, Canon Lockett Ford, Canon Hearn, Canon Drury, the Earl of Belmore, D.L., and Captain Carden, D.L. Mr. Garvey sent a message apologising for his absence through illness.

The draft of the report to be presented in May to the General Synod was approved.

The deaths of two contributors were noted

Permission to continue membership was granted on revised terms to a clergyman who had undertaken duty in England.

The Board ordered that effect be given to the request of the Bishop of Down, that the sum of £127 10s. be distributed among the present beneficiaries of the Connor Widows' Fund.

Payments were ordered: Widows' and Orphans' Fund, £2,826 17s.; Diocesan Funds, £620 17s. 4d.

The date of the next meeting is 16th April.

William W. Venn (26), temporary warder, Pentonville Prison, who had pleaded guilty to taking tobacco into prison, and also admitted bringing in a letter, was sentenced at Clerkenwell yesterday to three months in the second division and fined £5.

RATES AND PUBLIC SERVICE.

LORD MAYOR AND FALSE ECONOMY.

"Right down hard work of the ordinary citizen is the root of the prosperity of any country," said Mr. S. D. Budd, proposing the toast, "Prosperity to Ireland," at the annual delegate dinner of the Irish Bank Officials' Association, which was held in the Royal Hibernian Hotel, Dublin, last night, Mr. W. P. Black, Past President of the Association, presiding.

Mr. Budd advocated support of home industry as a means of prosperity, and said that a bright and cheerful outlook should be cultivated if the prosperity of Ireland, which they were looking for, was to be achieved.

The Lord Mayor, who responded, said that, like other countries, Saorstat Eireann was passing through a bad period of economic depression, but he believed that Ireland would get out of that difficulty sooner than other countries. Without trying to dictate to members of that Association, he hoped that they would recommend Irish investments as secure and profitable when their advice was asked for. During the recent period of industrial stagnation Ireland had made progress. Unemployment was the big problem, and every citizen would help to solve that problem by buying Irish goods when Irish goods were as good and as cheap as the foreign product.

PUBLIC SERVICES.

The credit of the country and the credit of the City of Dublin stood very high. He was not going to betray any secrets about the rates, but he would say that, as far as the rates are concerned, it was false economy to reduce rates and starve public services. They would keep the public services up to date and do the best they could to see that the rates struck would not hamper in any way the progress and prosperity of the city.

Proposing the toast of the President (Mr. O. C. Barry), who was unable to attend owing to illness, the Chairman expressed the regret that every one present felt at Mr. Barry's absence, and, speaking of the Association, said that they had in it about 95 or 96 per cent. of the bank officials in Ireland, representing a membership of over 5,000. He thought, he said, that it would be found that their members were, not only in the performance of their daily avocation, but in their mingling in social life, doing a great deal for the country in many ways. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. C. H. Denroche proposed the toast of the guests, and Mr. T. Levins Moore and Mr. J. J. Halpin, President of the Chamber of Commerce, responded.

SICK AND INDIGENT ROOMKEEPERS

The monthly meeting of the Executive of the Sick and Indigent Roomkeepers' Society (Incorporated) was held last Friday evening at the offices, 2 Palace street, Dublin. Mr. Martin Mortell presid Also present:—Messrs. Patrick J. O'Hanlon, Patrick Byrne, John Mackey, John J. Gilfoyle, James A. Finlay, Thomas E. Brindley, Patrick J. Cahill, P.C., T.C.; the Rev. John Carson, B.D. (Joint Hon. Secretary), and Gerard C. Weekes, Secretary.

The report and financial statement for the month of February showed that 434 applications from poor families, duly vouched in accordance with the rules, had been admitted, the amount expended in relief being £233 16s. 6d.

The Society is at present indebted to the bank to the extent of £3,478. Subscriptions towards reducing this heavy burden are urgently needed, and will gratefully be received and acknowledged by the Secretary, 2 Palace street, Dublin.

Three hundred and fifty members of the Right Wing of the Japanese Labour Party forced an entry last evening into the house of Mr. Hamaguchi, the Prime Minister, despite opposition by the police, says a Reuter message from Tokyo, and handed the Prime Minister a resolution demanding the dissolution of "this bourgeois Diet."

It is officially announced that Sir William Henry Venables Vernon, K.B.E., Bailiff of Jersey, has been compelled by illness and advancing years to tender to the King his resignation of that office. Sir W. Vernon has held offices in Jersey under the Crown for a period of over fifty years, having, prior to his appointment as bailiff in 1899, been one of the insular law officers since 1880; and His Majesty, in accepting his resignation, has commanded the Home Secretary to convey to Sir W. Vernon an expression of appreciation of the services which he has rendered to Jersey throughout this long period.

TOBACCO AND ITS MANUFACTURE.

VALUE OF CLEARANCES IN DUBLIN.

At the meeting of the Dublin Rotary Club yesterday in Clery's Restaurant, Mr. G. J. T. Clampett, President, in the chair, Mr. J. E. Dawson (Gallaher, Ltd.) read a paper on "Tobacco," in which he gave an interesting history of the growth and manufacture of the "weed."

THE PAPER

Mr. Dawson said that it was a great pleasure to him on his return to his native land after an absence of twenty years on the other side of the water to have the honour of addressing the members of the Dublin Rotary Club. The subject that he was to speak on might be described as "the burning question of the hour," although it all "ends in smoke."

In the course of his paper Mr. Dawson stated that in October, 1492, Christopher Columbus landed on the island to which he gave the name of San Salvador, one of the Bahama group, and it was during the first week of November of that year that Europeans first noted the Indian custom of tobacco-smoking. Two sailors who were sent to explore Cuba returned to their ship and told how they found the natives carrying a light firebrand and puffing smoke from their mouths and noses. They thought at first that the natives were perfuming themselves; but they were told that it was the leaves of an herb from which the smoke arose. The aborigines of Central America rolled up tobacco leaf and dreamed away their lives in smoky reveries ages before Columbus was born, or the colonists of Sir Walter Raleigh brought it within the precincts of the Elizabethan courts.

The general supposition was that the name "Tobacco" was derived from the island of Tobago was a fallacy. About 1560 was the date generally awarded to the introduction of tobacco to Europe. While its introduction into Europe was more for medicinal purposes than for smoking, it was true that the use of tobacco gradually spread out from Spain until to-day virtually the whole world was aware of its narcotic properties Tobacco reached Bristol before the end of the sixteenth century. In 1624 the Government decided to limit the importation of the weed to London alone, but fourteen years later, owing to the impossibility of coping with smugglers, four other ports were allowed to engage in the importation. From that onward the tobacco trade thrived throughout Great Britain and Ireland.

GROWING THE PLANT.

The growing of the tobacco plant, he said called for expert attention, and the curing of the leaves after the harvest was a most important function—the utmost care being essential for its proper drying. A large number of Customs officials are employed at the principal tobacco ports in the collection of the duty, and the bonded warehouses are carefully guarded. The development at the Dublin port in connection with the storage of tobacco showed a very gratifying change within recent years, and it was interesting to note that duty on clearance of tobacco in this department exceeds two and a quarter million pounds annually. Since 1825 no less than sixteen laws pertaining solely to tobacco had been placed on the Statute book.

Of recent years cigarette smoking had increased enormously, and in this direction manufacturers had made great strides to meet the demand. Millions of cigarettes were still being made by hand, but machinery had been introduced, and there were now machines capable of turning out over 60,000 cigarettes per hour.

A DUBLIN FACTORY.

The speaker said that the firm of Gallaher, Ltd., Belfast, had ramifications extending the world over. The factories in Belfast were the largest in the world outside the combine; they had a floor space of 11½ acres. They had recently opened in factory in Dublin, with directors of its own, and working as a separate company. It was hoped that the Dublin factory would not only maintain, but enhance the reputation of the firm. The extension to the Free State was a project about which the management were very optimistic, and their enterprise in establishing a new factory in Dublin was, he said, certain to have an appreciable effect, directly or indirectly, on the employment question The net selling value of cigarettes, cigars, tobacco and snuff, inclusive of duty, produced in the Irish Free State in 1929 was £5,215,746, as compared with £5,033,366 in 1926. There was a slight decrease in the number of persons employed in the tobacco industry in Ireland between the years 1926 and 1929—2,049 against 2,105; but the amount paid in salaries and wages showed an increase of £27,986—the figure in 1929 being £314,775, as against £286,789 in 1926. The great bulk of the cost of tobacco, he said, goes into taxation, the duty being 8s. 2d. per lb. in the Free State, and 8s. 10d. in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. When that and other costs were discharged, there was little or no room for reduction in price.

THE TOBACCO HABIT.

In conclusinon, Mr. Dawson said:—"I submit that tobacco and the habit of smoking makes it easier for a person in his daily life and conduct, to put into practice those principles of humanity and sociability which are so essential in the world to-day; which are embodied in and practised by such organisations as that in which your interests are centred, and under whose auspices we are met and as represented by your motto—"Service Before Self."

On the motion of Mr. H. G. Gower, seconded by Mr. James McMahon, a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Dawson.

THE WOMAN'S PAGE.

SPRING CLEANING WITHOUT TEARS.

HINTS BY AN UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPER.

DEAR AILEEN,—Although the ancient methods of spring-cleaning went out with the advent of electrical cleaners and their various attachments, nevertheless it is still the habit of the average housekeeper to devote the days of early spring to household renovations. Possibly, this is due to the cruel penetration of the brighter daylight, which shows up all the defects so kindly hidden by the murky days of winter.

Even the best-kept houses will at this season require alterations, which should never be allowed to clash with school holidays—children hate to find painters and others of that ilk in possession when they arrive for a couple of weeks of home life. Therefore, the work must be done now or put off until after Easter.

Careful Preparation.

No matter how small the renovation or cleaning job seems to be at first, it is sure to gather bulk as it proceeds; hence careful planning is the most important part of the enterprise. Instead of starting work right when the mood seizes her, the experienced housekeeper will walk from room to room with notebook and pencil to list and to plan all details. She will also find out what outside help she will require, and hire it right away.

Probably the sweep will be her first requirement. May used to be the month of sweep hire, and when his job was done fires wore screens until the end of summer; but with fires going all the year round there is no sense in delaying his visit.

Do not be afraid to aim high. Take a good look at the ceilings: they are almost sure to need attention. Although interior decoration can be attempted by amateurs, whose careful enthusiasm will often help them to overcome the difficulties of inexperience, I consider it a false economy to have ceilings white-washed, distempered or papered except by a firm of decorators. Apart from the fact that such overhead work is very tiring, these men will have the correct ladders, brushes and sheets to preserve the wall-paper.

Do not Hoard.

While this work is in hand is the time to clear out, dust out, and tidy in all cupboards, bookcases and wardrobes. With special reference to the latter, I say "Don't hoard." If a garment has given you good service, be generous and let it take on a second lease of life with some poor woman, who will appreciate both its warmth and its appearance—don't wait to give it away until it is old-fashioned and moth-eaten. If money is very scarce then make a little by selling a parcel of old clothing.

Things like old vests that are not good enough to give away or sell will make excellent dusters and polishers. In any case, make some use of all old stuff and "Don't hoard!"

Old newspapers should be folded on top of wardrobes and cases to prevent loose dust working its way into corners. Another use for old newspapers is to soak them in hot water, make a pulp, add any kind of paste, allow to cool and then use the material to fill holes in floors.

The Sewing Woman.

A large box or basket should be kept handy into which can be put clothes, cushions and similar articles for renovation. If possible hire a good sewing woman to attend to its contents. It is wonderful what a slight alteration will do to freshen up a favourite frock of last season.

The sewing woman will be able to make any new loose covers required also, but before her arrival the sewing machine should be well oiled, so that no mechanical deficiency will delay her.

As regards cretonne or chinz for loose covers or cushions, never buy this without first seeing a strip of the cloth in the room for which it is required. The shops have usually short ends, which they will send for your approval.

Dealing with the Walls.

To return to the actual cleaning, the walls will now require special attention. If they require repapering this can very easily be done without ouside help. Wet the old paper well and scrape it all off, fill in any nail holes, go over the walls with size and, cutting your paper to the required lengths, spread with paste and hang. Once you are sure that the paper falls straight, tap it to the wall with outward strokes of a clean cloth. Before cutting the paper into strips the left-hand margin should be trimmed off.

I am more concerned at the moment, however, with walls which do not require repapering. One of the attachments to the electrical cleaner is a wall brush. It is tiresome work holding this brush against the wall, especially if the rooms are large, but the clean result is well worth the trouble. When cleaning very lofty walls it will be found less tiresome if the machine is mounted on a table.

This wall brush may be used also on the painted woodwork, especially in the crevices, but the paint will also need a good wash with soap and water.

Do not skimp food in spring renovation time, but adjust the menu so that no extra time will be spent in the preparation of meals.—Yours,

MARY.

Spring Fashion from Paris.

This charming suit can be made in any colour. The model is in rose-beige crepe-de-chine. The coat, which has a rippling "jabot" movement, fastens at the side, and the collar—which can be closed or left open at will—finishes with a bow and a beautiful flower.

Try this Chocolate Pudding.

Put four ounces of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice into a charlotte mould and cook over the fire until the sugar is dark brown. Cool and fill up with chocolate custard.

To make this cut up three ounces of chocolate and put it into a saucepan with two-and-a-half gills of milk. Cook over a slow fire for ten minutes and mix in three eggs, two ounces of sugar and a few drops of vanilla.

Steam gently for one and a half hours, turn out and serve either hot or cold.

General Household Hints.

If a sewing machine needle sticks when sewing heavy goods, rub the line to be stitched with a piece of rather dry soap.

* * * * *

Before washing new woollens, soak them for two hours in rain water. This enables the wool to retain its natural oil and keeps it soft.

* * * * *

Iron saucepans are apt to rust if not in daily use. To prevent this make a thick paste of starch mixed with a strong solution of soda and water and coat the inside all over. This paste is easily removed when the saucepan is required.

* * * * *

Suede bags, belts, and shoes are best cleaned by rubbing in hot bran. Afterwards brush well and raise the nap with fine glasspaper

* * * * *

If tea cloths are a bad colour, make a solution of ammonia and soak them all night. You will be surprised at the result.

* * * * *

Borax used for washing crêpe-de-Chine preserves the gloss of the material.

* * * * *

If your sewing machine will not run smoothly during cold weather turn it over and leave the under-part exposed to the warmth of the fire for a short time. Afterwards wipe it with a soft duster.

* * * * *

Dip a candle in hot water when you want to make it fit a candlestick. This is more effective than scraping it.

* * * * *

If your knitting needles are bent just dip them in boiling water, straighten them while they are still very hot, then plunge them in cold water. This will make them as good as new.

* * * * *

Cotton wool dipped in methylated spirit will clean a photograph without injuring the surface.

* * * * *

To remove scorch marks from linen rub with a freshly cut onion and afterwards soak in cold water.

* * * * *

Black marks can be removed from brown shoes by rubbing in unbeaten white of egg. Apply with a soft rag, afterwards using brown polish in the ordinary way.

* * * * *

A soiled fur collar can be satisfactorily cleaned with a dry shampoo powder. Rub in, leave for a time, then shake and brush out all the powder.

* * * * *

If you have more beetroot than you can use, place it in a jar with half a teaspoonful of mustard in a muslin bag. It will then keep a long time without turning mouldy.

* * * * *

Add a little grated nutmeg to mashed potatoes; it greatly improves them, especially when they are getting old.

ADVANCE GUARD OF SPRING FASHIONS.

Formality Once More ∴ Beautiful Lace Costumes ∴ The Use of Metal.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Sunday.

AT last the time has come to answer the question: "What is the spring mode of 1931?"

Perhaps it seems a bit late to talk of winter fashions, but not when it is realised that modern clothes are the result of slow and steady evolution, instead of the mere caprices they used to be.

Dame Fashion has turned into a very conservative old lady, and should really be represented with two faces, like the statues of Janus, one looking back to the past, and another looking ahead to the future, because what we wear is coming to have a closer and closer relation to what we do, and so, though manufacturers and purveyors of feminine attire have already planned for spring and summer, it is very necessary for them to know exactly where the modes stand at this moment in relation to our lives.

At the time of writing we are only just able to say definitely what the spring mode really is. The well-dressed Parisienne, who has the last word, has made her choice, and is wearing her selection now. What she chooses influences the Parisian designer immensely.

Formality Gaining.

As I look over a typical assembly of women, I see that formality is gaining. At the Ritz at luncheon, for example, it is rare to see anyone in actual "playing" clothes.

A few seasons ago there was a sort of distinction in wearing a real, country-club sweater costume to luncheon in town. This season it is done only if one is actually on one's way to the golf links or to one of the smaller race meetings held in the environs of Paris, at which real sport clothes may be worn.

The new evening dresses certainly draw attention to themselves at all costs. You may admire, or disapprove of them, but you cannot help noticing them.

After the frills and furbelows and meaningless bits and pieces of the frocks worn last season, hitched up in front, and almost trailing down at the back, showing ankles that would have been better discreetly hidden, we now have frocks that, by their clever line, proportion and simplicity, are becoming to every woman—the sleek, tight bodice for the young figure, with its ample length skirt, and the normal waistline, with the severe type of frock, long and backless, for the woman of all ages.

Lace Costumes Popular.

Lace for grace, lace for beauty, lace for the youthful spontaneity of the débutante, and lace for the dignity of the dowager—lace for every hour of the day.

Here is a fashion that will not be ousted. Each time we reach the conclusion that lace is old-fashioned we find that something has been done to put it back in the foremost ranks of style.

Stiffened lace is much used for tea-time frocks or the formal afternoon dress, whichever you choose to call it.

A deep beige shade is attractive for this sort of gown, and one of the wide belts of brown velvet is a good trimming for it.

Add to this brown shoes (pumps preferred) and hosiery of a brownish shade, and you have a costume at the peak of fashion. We say brownish, not brown, for the stockings for hosiery that is smart is never quite brown, it being one of those off-colour things in fashion.

Stiffened or starched lace is being worn this season. A pastel blue starched lace dress worn by a young girl a recent ball is worth

The Whalebone Dragon.

The Paris dressmakers have set their feet quite firmly on the corset idea. Despite the fitted lines of the new dresses, the mannequins at the dress-shows, which are now in full swing, wear no "stays" proof of the fact that correct posture, and though given to styles best suited to the individual—will do more towards making clothes becoming than all the steel and whalebone in the world.

Clothes designed last summer could have been worn without corsets, but many women said this could not be, so boleros, peplums and frills were introduced for those who thought that to wear the clothes they must also wear cumbersome-boned corsets.

Many pleats are used on both dresses and coats. They are placed to overlap each other, and, although somewhat complicated in design, appear simple — a good method of breaking long lines and making women appear slender.

FUNERAL OF MR. W. G. ARMSTRONG.

The funeral of Mr. William George Armstrong, solicitor, took place yesterday from his residence, 19 Morehampton road, Dublin, to Dean's Grange Cemetery.

The attendance included Richard W. Armstrong (son), Samuel Norris Green (son-in-law), George Corry (nephew), Major Richard R Martin (Bloxham, Taylor and Martin), Erroll Austen, Crawford Shortt, the Rev. W. A. Rea, B.A.; I. Hawkins G. W. R. Grice, C. B. de Lacy, H. C. Shellard, Sir Robert Tate, K.B.E., F.T.C.D.; R. F Kelch, T. V. Shellard, A. W. Bennett, G. J. Cole, S. R. McNamara, L.D.S.; Harford Kelly, George S. Greene, Eric Gorman, Miss Taylor.

The Rev. W. N. Harvey, B.D., conducted the Service.

Some shepherds, who were opposed to the policy of the Mayor of the isolated township of Megara, attempted to blow up the mayoral residence with dynamite yesterday, says a Reuter message from Athens. Half the building collapsed, but no one was injured.

SOUTH WALES MEN ASK FOR SPECIAL CONFERENCE.

WEEKLY MINIMUM WAGE URGED.

THE position in the South Wales coalfield arising out of the recent award was considered at a delegate conference of the South Wales Miners' Federation at Cardiff yesterday.

The conference really resolved itself into a battle of tactics. The men were overwhelmingly in favour of an immediate stoppage as a protest against the new wage award, but the Chairman, Mr. Enoch Morrell, refused to accept a motion to this effect, and eventually the delegates decided to adjourn the conference until Monday next, in order that certain recommendations of the Executive Council might be placed before the lodges.

These recommendations were:—This Conference, representing 150,000 South Wales colliery workmen, calls the attention of the Government and the public generally to the desperate plight of the mining community of this coalfield, consequent upon the recent award of Mr. F. P. M. Schiller, K.C.

"The award fixed the minimum wage at a point which is only 12½ per cent. above the minimum wage paid in 1914, whereas the index figure of the Ministry of Labour shows that the cost of living is 52 per cent above 1914 costs.

"It is well known that the pre-war standard of wages in the mining industry was below the average of workers in other industries. This award reduces that low standard to a level that is 25 per cent. still lower.

"The award provides a subsistence wage of 7s. per shift for single men, 7s. 3d. for married men with no children, and 7s. 5d. for married men with children.

"In view of these facts, we resolve to ask the Executive Committee of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain to call a special national conference of the Miners' Federation, to which the forty-two miners' Members of Parliament should be invited for the purpose of considering the low wages paid in the British coalfields, and to decide what amendments are necessary in the Minimum Wage Coal Mines Act of 1912 to secure:—

"(1) That the minimum rate of wages to be paid in this industry shall be at least equal to the 1914 rates, with the cost of living added.

"(2) To establish the principle of a weekly minimum wage.

"(3) Extend the Act to workmen employed on the surface of collieries.

"We, therefore, resolve that, pending the new legislation indicated, the Executive Council be instructed to give the necessary notice to apply for a revision of the present minimum standard rates and the provisions of the present inadequate Minimum Wage Act.

"In the hope that Parliament and the community generally will be moved to secure some measure of justice to the men engaged in this dangerous calling and in pursuance of our policy of endeavouring to secure this justice by peaceful means, we recommend the workmen of this coalfield to continue working until the result of our efforts in this direction is known."

ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL.

As may be seen in our advertising columns, to-day will be observed in St. Patrick's Cathedral by the following Services:—Holy Communion will be celebrated at 8, 9 and 11 o'clock. The 9 o'clock celebration will be conducted in the Irish language. Matins will be as usual at 10 o'clock. Festival evensong will be at 4 p.m., when the special preacher will be the Very Rev. R. S. G. King, M.A., Dean of Derry.

A lecture on the history of the Cathedral will be given at noon.

Cult of the Mussel.

A USEFUL SHELLFISH.

THE recent decision to form new mussel beds at the mouth of the Boyne is an excellent example of the far-sighted policy pursued by the Government in fostering, as far as possible, the natural resources of the country.

History certainly repeats itself in this case. The mussel fisheries in France and on the Continent mainly owe their being to the powers of observation and practical ability of a shipwrecked Irishman, one Walton, who was rescued from a watery grave by the fisherfolk of the Bay of Aiguillon, somewhere about 1135. Thus exiled and completely on his "beam ends," Walton commenced a wild fowling business as a means of livelihood. While visiting his snares and nets he observed that the wooden supports and framework, to which they were affixed, soon became covered with mussels of excellent quality.

FIRST MUSSEL CULTURE.

From this discovery was evolved the present system of mussel culture, so successfully followed around the coast of Rochelle and Ile de Ré, also famous for their oyster parks. The "crop" is grown on a framework of strong piles, interlaced with wicker work and branches, arranged in V-shaped converging rows, the sharp end pointed seawards. These hurdles are called bouchots, and usually are about 200 metres in length and roughly six feet in height.

The bouchots are classed according to their position in the bay, bouchots d'aval or du bas, the farthest out, and only uncovered during spring tides, bouchots bâtard, bouchots milieu and bouchots d'avant. The bouchots du bas differ from the rest inasmuch as only stakes are employed in their construction.

THE PLACING OF THE STAKES.

These stakes are placed several yards apart, and are destined to collect or intecept the young mussels or naissain. The babes are afterwards transplanted to the other bouchots which, nearer the shore, more frequently are uncovered by the tide.

The different stages in mussel cultivation are called as follows:—Sowing, planting and transplanting. About the end of April the seed fixed in February and March to the bouchot du bas has attained the size of a grain of flax. In this stage it is called naissain. In July the naissain has become renouvelain, and it is about the size of a bean when it is transplanted to the bouchot bâtard. The mussels are affixed to the bouchot bâtard by a method called la batrisse. The seed is enclosed in bags of old net along the hurdles; soon the bags rot and disappear, when the mussels are left adhering to the bouchot.

As the crop increases in size it is thinned out, and the removals are placed on the bouchot milieu, which is duly uncovered during neap tides.

MARKETING THE MUSSELS.

After a year or so the mussels are fit for market. They are removed then to the bouchots d'avant nearest the shore, whence they are gathered easily as they are required for sale. Strangely enough, there is a very perceptible difference in flavour according to the locality. Those from the upper divisions are decidedly better than the lower divisions. No doubt, the weather and exposure are responsible, and possibly the food supply contributes to this phenomenon.

Owing to the muddy nature of the coast it is impossible to wade; so the "farmer" pushes himself about with his bare feet in a small flat-bottomed canoe called a pirogue.

VALUE OF THE MUSSEL.

The value of the crop is very considerable, amounting to about £50,000 yearly according to fairly recent figures. In Germany a ruder, but not dissimilar, method is used. Large branches are strewn on the mud and are left during four or five years. The resulting crop then is taken up and sold by weight throughout the country.

Beds of mussels form a very strong barrier against coastal erosion, and there is little doubt that, properly directed, mussel beds would safeguard greatly the crumbling portions of our coasts.

There is a bye-law forbidding the removal of mussels from Bideford Bridge, as the molluscs are supposed to assist in holding the stones together, and a large landowner in Norfolk is very jealous of anyone removing the mussels from the shore bounding his property, as rightly he considers them a potent barrier against the encroaching sea.

COLD WEATHER A DANGER.

Mussels object strongly to cold weather, and a cold spell may do tremendous damage to the beds. During one bitter night in 1874 nearly two hundred acres of "bed" were destroyed by cold. Besides affixing themselves to stones, piles, etc., mussels are found in large numbers on the keels of old hulks and vessels long stationary in harbours. It has been estimated that over two hundred tons were scraped from the keel of the Great Eastern at one "cleaning."

Besides the revenue from their sale as bait, they are excellent eating, as all who have sampled Moules d'Ostende will agree. Care is required, however, in selecting them, as, indeed, is the case with all shellfish, for a polluted mussel bed is a fertile source of typhoid and other dangerous diseases. It is possible to remove the infected "fish" to clean waters and to disinfect them. Shellfish so treated soon become suitable for the table or export.

PEARLS.

Pearls occasionally are found in mussels, but in this country they are seldom of any appreciable value, though in America the freshwater pearls constitute a very valuable asset to those engaged in searching for them. It is as a food supply that we must consider our mussels, and it is to be hoped that, when supplies are available, Irish hotels will insist on only Irish mussels, and help to maintain the important industry that has been re-started.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

JUVENILE CRIME.

NOT SUITABLE FOR BORSTAL.

Reducing a sentence of five years' penal servitude, passed at Naas on Thomas Page, a boy under 17 years of age, for an offence against a young girl, to one of three years' penal servitude, the Court of Criminal Appeal, having regard to the nature of the offence of which the defendant was convicted, and the necessity for preventing the contamination of Borstal inmates, which possibly would result from association with persons found guilty of such crimes, expressed the opinion that the case was not a suitable one for Borstal detention, and that, as there exists at Mountjoy Prison a class for juvenile offenders who have been sentenced for similar offences, and who are, as far as possible, treated on lines analogous to the treatment provided for Borstal inmates, the defendant should be remanded in custody to undergo the reduced sentence, and placed in the special class for juvenile offenders in Mountjoy.

Page applied personally for leave to appeal against the sentence of five years' penal servitude.

The Chief Justice said that in considering how they should best deal with the punishment of the offence of the very grave kind of which this youth had been convicted, the court had received very great assistance from Mr. Justice Hanna, who had gone into the matter in great detail. The boy no longer was in the class of those who received special treatment in Borstal, but it was very satisfactory to find that in Mountjoy special provision was made for youths of this kind, who were kept apart from ordinary adult criminals, and were given an educational course, with a view to fitting them to earn a livelihood in some trade. The court thought that the best way to deal with the prisoner would be to return him to Mountjoy for a period of three years' penal servitude, and that, subject to that alteration, the application for leave to appeal should be dismissed.

Mr. T. P. McCarthy (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the Attorney-General.

GROUNDS OF APPEAL.

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEAL RULING.

The Court had laid it down, said the Chief Justice, during the hearing of an application in the Court of Criminal Appeal, that they would not allow, after a transcript of evidence had been given, the making of grounds of appeal which were not made at the time when notice of appeal was served.

The Court refused the application of Michael Halpin for leave to appeal from a sentence of three years' penal servitude passed on him at Naas on a charge of conspiracy to steal and of receiving stolen property.

Mr. Art. O'Connor (instructed by Mr. John Shiel) appeared for the applicant; and Mr. Roe (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the Attorney-General.

Edward McGinnity, Monaghan, was refused leave to appeal from a sentence of three months' imprisonment on a charge of attempting to obtain money by false pretences from the Royal Liver Insurance Company.

Mr. T. P. McCarthy (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the Attorney-General.

MUSICAL WORKS.

INJUNCTION AGAINST PERFORMANCE.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

The Performing Right Society, Ltd., and Lawrence Wright, Dublin, trading as the Lawrence Wright Music Company, sought an injunction against Elizabeth McCormick, of the Cabin Café, 30 and 31 Wicklow street, Dublin, to restrain her from performing in public a number of musical works in which the plaintiffs claim vested rights.

Mr. Nolan Whelan (instructed by Mr. D. H. Charles) appeared for the plaintiffs.

There was no appearance for the defendant.

Mr. Justice Meredith granted an injunction, with costs.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

"JOY-RIDING."

WRECKED CAR AND THE SEQUEL.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

A young man named Arthur McGauran pleaded not guilty to having stolen and damaged a motor car owned by Mr. George Hornsby. A further count charged him with receiving the car, knowing it to have been stolen. The extent of the damage to the car was said to be £81.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., who, with Mr. Joseph Healy (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted, said that the offence of stealing motor cars left in city streets was a serious one. Mr. Hornsby left his car in Lower O'Connell street at about 6 p.m. on January 25th last, and when he returned later the car was missing. Afterwards the car was seen at Rathmines, travelling at a great speed across Portobello Bridge into Aungier street, scattering people in all directions. It finally dashed into a wall in Aungier street and was wrecked. The driver of the motor car, who was identified as the prisoner, was subsequently arrested in his home at Ellis's quay.

Several witnesses were examined for the prosecution.

FITS OF DEPRESSION.

Mr. Joseph O'Connor, K.C., who (instructed by Mr. J. V. Brady, solicitor) defended, said that the prisoner made no concealment of the fact that he took the car. He was in bad health, which subjected him to acute fits of depression, and when he took drink when in this condition he became quite reckless and lost all sense of responsibility. On the 25th January he drank some whiskey for the first time in his life, and, having done so, became completely reckless. He went for a drive to Enniskerry, where he had some more drink, and he was returning to the city when the car skidded and dashed into railings in Augier street.

The prisoner did not mean to take the car permanently; he simply took it for a "joy-ride," and joy-riding was not yet a criminal offence——

Mr. Justice Johnston—I hope it soon will be.

Mr. O'Connor—I understand that it will be, my lord, under the Traffic Bill.

Medical evidence was given regarding the prisoner's state of health.

The prisoner gave evidence to the effect that he was depressed and had some drink, and took this motor car for a drive. He was returning the car to O'Connell street when the car skidded and the accident occurred.

"NOT GUILTY" VERDICT.

Judge Johnston told the jury that, while the prisoner's conduct was most reprehensible, it would be unsafe for them to find him guilty on the counts of larceny of the car; or receiving it, knowing it to have been stolen. If they believed that the prisoner drove the car in a grossly careless manner, amounting to criminality, without having any regard to consequences, they could find him guilty of causing malicious damage.

The jury found the prisoner not guilty on all counts, and he was discharged from custody.

THREE YEARS FOR ROBBERY.

John Caffrey and Michael Brennan pleaded not guilty to breaking into the premises of Baxendale and Company, Capel street, Dublin, and stealing money and stamps to the value of about £12.

The jury found Caffrey guilty, and Brennan not guilty. The latter was discharged, while Caffrey was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

The Court adjourned until Wednesday morning.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT.

COMPENSATION CLAIMS.

QUESTION OF MENTAL OR PHYSICAL TROUBLE.

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

In a case under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, Christopher Duff, of Old Bride street, a labourer, was the applicant, and the Electricity Supply Board respondents.

It appears that on 6th June, 1930, transformers carrying a charge of 5,000 volts of electricity were hung on a wall at Synnott place. The applicant came along and put his hand on the cubical trip-stick, which flashed to him and hit him on the fingers of the left hand. Applicant's weekly earnings had been 59s. He received 35s. weekly from the date of the accident until December 11th last, when the compensation stopped.

Dr. Martin Farrell, who examined the applicant last week and on several other occasions since the accident, said that in his opinion the man was unfit for his usual work, but could do light work.

Surgeon Pringle, for the respondents, expressed the opinion that the applicant's trouble was more mental than physical. He had got it into his head that he could not use his fingers, but he would be perfectly able to work if he could be induced to work.

Dr. Andrew Butler also expressed the opinion that the applicant was fit for work.

Judge Davitt awarded £1 weekly on the basis of partial incapacity from 11th December until the 13th inst.

Mr. Harrison (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle) appeared for the applicant, and Mr McGonigle (instructed by Messrs. Corrigan and Corrigan) for the respondents.

FALL OFF A LADDER.

William Costelloe, a gardener, of "The Yard," Carysfort, Grove avenue, Blackrock, sought compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1906 from Peter O'Reilly, of St. Leonard's, Avoca avenue, Blackrock, and South Great George's street (draper).

It appeared that on 23rd September, 1930, while the applicant was trimming a holly tree at St. Leonard's, he fell off a ladder sustaining injuries to his back. He got five payments of 35s. a week, and claimed that sum weekly for the remainder of the period from 23rd September until the present date. His wages had been £2 2s. 6d. weekly, with milk and vegetables.

Medical evidence having been heard,

Judge Davitt awarded £1 weekly on the basis of partial incapacity until further order. He thought that if the applicant endeavoured to cure himself he would be better off, and would be able to do some work.

Mr. Reddy, solicitor, appeared for the applicant, and Mr. McGonigal (instructed by Messrs. Corrigan and Corrigan) appeared for the respondent.

A FRACTURED LEG.

In a case under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, John Kelly, of Nottingham street, Dublin, able seaman, was the applicant, and the British and Irish Steampacket Co., Ltd., respondents.

It appeared that while the applicant was aboard the ss. Lady Chloe off Plymouth on 15th April, 1930, a rope attached to an iron block was carried away, and the bight of the rope struck applicant on the leg fracturing it. He was in hospital in Plymouth for five weeks, when he returned home. From his return until 31st December, 1930, the respondents paid him 35s. weekly, but then reduced the compensation to £1 weekly. He claimed 35s. weekly.

The respondents' case was that the applicant was fit for light work at the beginning of this year. Arrangements were made accordingly to provide him with such work, which he refused. The compensation was thereupon reduced to £1 weekly, but this the applicant also refused. Respondents were still ready to give him light work until he had recovered completely from his accident.

After hearing medical evidence, Judge Davitt awarded applicant full compensation from the end of December, 1930, and compensation of £1 weekly, on the basis of partial incapacity, from now until further order, not to be paid if the respondents provided applicant with light work.

Mr. Harrison (instructed by Mr. C. B. W. Boyle) appeared for applicant, and Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Norris Goddard and Coulter) appeared for respondents.

KNOCKED OFF HER BICYCLE.

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Bridget Fields, domestic servant, of Geraldstown, Santry, sued Michael Dinneen, dairyman, of Bolton street, Dublin, for damages for personal injuries received when she was knocked off her bicycle by the defendant driving a motor car on the Ballymun road.

The defendant's case was that the plaintiff, who was cycling on the wrong side of the road, wobbled in front of the motor car [illegible]hen only a few yards away. He did not [illegible]w the horn because he thought she saw [illegible] car coming.

Judge Shannon, whilst accepting the defendant's explanation, said that he thought that if he had blown his horn there would have been no accident. He awarded £18 10s. compensation.

Mr. Charles Casey (instructed by Mr. Gerald Tench) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. James Cawley (instructed by Mr. P. D. O'Grady) for the defendant.

LOSS OF A BROOD MARE.

George Hill, Brittas, sued John Egan, a neighbouring farmer, for £250 damages for the death of a three-quarter bred in-foal mare, caused by the alleged trespass on the lands of plaintiff of a horse belonging to defendant on June 2nd last.

Mr. Kingsmill Moore (instructed by Messrs. Dobbyn and McCoy) appeared for plaintiff, and Mr. Roe (instructed by Messrs. Brown and McCann) for the defence.

Judge Shannon held that the defendant's horse attacked the mare, and he gave a decree for £50.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT.

SPURIOUS COINS.

STORY OF BAD FLORINS AT RUGBY GAMES.

(BEFORE MR. LITTLE.)

Said to have confessed that he had been making base coins for the last thirty years without being caught, John Harte (63), of Lower Gardiner street, Dublin, described as a labourer, and having the appearance of a tramp, was remanded in custody for a week on the charge of uttering six spurious florins.

Gertie Doyle, cashier in the shop of Robert Holland, butcher, Emmett road, Inchicore, gave evidence that Harte entered the shop hurriedly and asked her to give him a pound note in exchange for silver coins. Five florins among the coins were bad.

According to Guard 154 A, who arrested Harte in a public-house, Harte at first said that he must have got the bad money when selling flowers, and denied being in Inchicore on the day alleged, but, after being identified by Miss Doyle at a parade, he made the following statement:—

"I made coins for the last thirty years and I was never caught. Three weeks ago I made eighty two-shilling pieces in my home at Gardiner street.

"I made them for the Rugby match, and passed about fifty. I sold badges for sixpence each, and when anyone gave me half-a-crown I gave him a badge and a bad two-shilling piece.

"I had about thirty of the bad two-shilling pieces left for the other Rugby match, but when I heard it was being played in Belfast I tendered them in shops."

The Guard added that when arrested Harte had in his possession £1 9s. 7d. He said that the 9s. 7d. was obtained by selling flowers, while a pound note was given him by the cashier at the shop at Inchicore. He told the witness that he threw the mould into the Liffey, but later he said that if he got three or five years the mould would be all he would have to fall back upon.

BIGAMY CHARGE.

John Glynn, builder's labourer, Queen street, Dublin, was charged with bigamously marrying Brigid Grimes, 4 Upper Dominick street.

Guard 58 D said that when he told Glynn that he was making inquiries about a bigamous marriage, defendant said: "I might as well get it over at once. There is no use me denying it."

The witness then produced what he said were certificates of a marriage between John Glynn and Mary Ormsby, of 33 Mountjoy street, Dublin, in 1915, and of a further marriage between the defendant and Brigid Grimes.

Mr. Little—Is his first wife still alive?—Yes.

Inspector Beggs said that Glynn's lawful wife would be present if the case were remanded.

A remand was granted until Thursday, the defendant being admitted to bail, himself in £25 and an independent surety of the same amount.

ALLEGED SHOPLIFTING.

Two handbags, three pairs of gloves, five handkerchiefs, a muffler, socks and a pair of women's shoes were among the articles piled out on the solicitors' table when Elizabeth Grace (40), a married woman, of Richmond road, was charged with stealing two men's scarves from Messrs. Pim Bros. last Saturday afternoon.

Guard 179 B said that he called at the woman's house and found there a quantity of property, to the value of about £6 10s., for which she was not able to give a satisfactory account.

The defendant was remanded on bail for a week.

A DISMISSED CHAUFFEUR.

When the case was called in which John Eager was charged with attempting to obtain by menaces the sum of £2 from Miss Catherine Reid, Sandycove, by whom he had been employed as a chauffeur, Inspector Wolfe said that there was no further evidence to offer.

Mr. J. P. Murnane (instructed by Messrs. Gerald Byrne and Co.), who defended, said that the defendant had not been in trouble before. He had been in the employment of Miss Reid for eleven years, and now as the result of a drunken spree he had lost that employment, stained his character, and had had his heels cooled by being remanded in custody for the last few days.

Mr. Little applied the Probation Act and bound the defendant over for twelve months in £10.

The Weather Blamed.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
ENNISKILLEN, Monday.

AT Enniskillen Petty Sessions to-day Patrick M'Namara, Bodarra, had two cases against him for selling butter containing water in excess of the standard, and a third case for selling buttermilk containing an excess quantity of water. He said that the weather was cold at the time, and he had to use more hot water than usual. He was fined 2s. 6d. and 15s. 6d. costs in each case.

John Dolan, Corralinnen, made a similar plea in regard to butter which he sold containing an excess quantity of water, and he also was fined.

The Three Scholarships.

Some time ago we published an account of the trip to Dublin organised by Messrs. Williams and Woods, Crosse and Blackwell, and Keiller in connection with the Second National Scholarship Scheme. Over one hundred prize winners, with parents or guardians, from every county in the Irish Free State, were entertained at the Hotel Russell, and shown over the factory. They then sat for the final examination for the three Grand Scholarships in the Bolton street Technical Schools. The following are the winners:—First Prize, £100—Patrick G. Flynn, St. Stephen's National School, Waterford; Second Prize, £50—Kathleen Cronin, St. Louis Convent, Monaghan; Third Prize, £25—Kitty Nolan, Dublin street, Kildare.

Features of the final examination were the exceptionally high standard of the essays submitted, and the fact that the second prize winner wrote her essay in Irish.

The Third National Scholarship Scheme will be held during the present year, and full details of this will appear in our advertisement columns early next week.

Edwin Claude Thick (26) was charged at Birmingham Assizes yesterday, before Mr. Justice Avory, with the murder of his wife, Ivy Emma Thick (aged 23), between August 25 and 29 last at their home in King's road. The dismembered and decomposed remains of a woman were found by detectives in a wall cavity at the house on November 27, and the body, it is alleged, was that of Mrs. Thick. After evidence had been heard, the jury disagreed, and the case was postponed till next assizes.

The finding of a memorial stone from the grave in Henley Cemetery of an officer who died from wounds in a ditch at Kidlington, thirty miles away, is being investigated by the Oxfordshire police.

By Our Special Correspondent.

BELFAST, Monday.

THE Marquess of Londonderry continues to take a deep interest in the working of the Education Act of 1923, which bears his name, and anything calculated to enhance its value has his cordial support. Although the measure has lost a number of its original features through demands for amendment, it is still of enormous benefit to the development of education in elementary schools, and quite recently Lord Londonderry expressed the conviction that its influence for good would go on increasing with the passage of the years. He is not unmindful of his old associations with the Belfast Corporation, and he has just written to Mr. D. Lyle Hall, chairman of the Education Committee, wishing him a successful year of office.

The financial arrangements already have been made for this year's educational expenditure in the city, but in many quarters there is an impression that the suggested restriction in the building of new schools is not a wise policy to pursue in view of the urgent need for better accommodation for the pupils. The Corporation has been told by the Government that any additional expense incurred beyond a certain limit will have to be borne by the ratepayers; but it is unlikely that the children will be made the victims of an economy campaign.

Marquess of Londonderry.

THE PATH OF REFORM.

The severe criticism of the Home Office administration by temperance reformers in Belfast last week is still a subject of general comment in the city, and there is a great deal of curiosity as to possible developments. Three important committees of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church are considering the question, and they are determined that the laws relating to licensing and betting shall not be "mocked and broken" if they can do anything to prevent it. In this particular respect they are not calling for new laws so much as that the existing laws shall be rigidly enforced, which seems to be quite a reasonable claim.

It should not be forgotten, however, that more far-reaching demands are being made by the Temperance Party, some of whom advocate local option as a preliminary measure, while others are out-and-out prohibitionists. It is pointed out that prohibition, with a long open border to be considered, would be futile, and the optimists look to the time when the Free State will co-operate with Ulster in temperance legislation for all Ireland.

The vision of an army of "bootleggers" rioting across the border is not pleasant to contemplate even by the extremists. As illustrating the steady decline of the licensing trade in the North, it may be mentioned that the amount spent on strong drink is £3 per head of the population; in Southern Ireland it is £5 per head; and in Great Britain it is £6 10s. per head. Thus, Ulster leads in the path of reform.

"SUNSHINE THROUGH GLOOM."

The importance of the dairy side of farming has been stressed frequently by Sir Edward Archdale, who guides the operations of the Northern Ministry of Agriculture. The wisdom of his suggestions has been proved by the enhanced value of Ulster butter and eggs and other produce in the British markets; and the Central Milk Recording Society of Northern Ireland, of which Sir Edward was president last year, also has a pleasant story to tell of progress and increasing prosperity. Its members are mostly enthusiastic young farmers, led by a number of veteran agriculturists, who see in improved methods of production of milk and in the scientific selection of animals—weeding out the deficient—the best way to place their business on a sound and paying basis.

At their annual meeting in Belfast the other day it was pointed out that in the twenty best herds recorded the results showed an increase of sixty gallons of milk per cow as compared with the figures for the previous year. The amount may not be very large, but it is an increasing quantity, and shows that the Society is working along right lines. Adapting themselves to changing circumstances, this band of farmers are endeavouring through cattle improvement and a modern system of dairying to better their condition, so that when crops fail they may have something else to tide over bad times. As Mr. Rowley Elliott, M.P., their new president, told them, they are beginning to see a little sunshine through the gloom. The scheme of milk recording would be beneficial in every part of Ireland.

THE PREMIER'S PROPHECY.

The business outlook must be very gloomy indeed when even Lord Craigavon, usually so cheerful, foreshadows a distressing time for industry during the coming year—worse probably, than at any period since the war. He says that it will be better for the people to tighten their belts one or two holes now rather than to have to tighten them to the last hole later on. This was his advice, given at Newry during the week-end. The revenue of the province is diminishing steadily, and it is anticipated that during the next financial year it will be very much lower than it has been for a long time past. Should the imperial contribution reach vanishing point, the situation would be unpleasant, and, as the Government is determined not to borrow money to balance the Budget, there may be need for the Premier's advice.

AMONG THE TAIL-WAGGERS.

The dog population of Belfast has many friends who take an interest in its welfare. As the time approaches for taking out licences there is anxiety in numerous poor homes, as money is scarce, and it is difficult to raise the necessary amount. The law, however, shows no favour, and in the past hundreds of dogs have met an untimely fate. Indeed, there are some people who seem to rejoice in this and advocate publicly that 75 per cent. of the dogs in the city should be sent to the lethal chamber. There are others, however, who take a different view, and a committee, headed by Mr. James Nesbitt, J.P., has organised an "Assisted Dog Licence Fund," out of which poverty-stricken owners are helped to pay the tax, and, in cases where necessary, the full amount of the licence is freely paid.

It is one of the sights of the city to see Mr. Nesbitt's premises besieged by hundreds of workless dog-owners when cases are being considered. No deserving application for assistance is turned down, and it is a happy feature of the movement that many prominent men are associated with the subscription list. Last week Sir Robert Meyer, City Town Clerk, who is deeply interested in the doggy world, sent in a brilliant original sketch of a dog by Louis Wain, to be sold by auction for the benefit of the fund.

AN IRISH CONFEDERATION?

Is Northern Ireland in an eighteenth century position? That, at least, is the opinion of Captain Denis Ireland, a prominent Belfast merchant, who contested East Belfast in the Liberal interest at the last general election. He suggests that people should work for an Irish confederation, which, while restoring the single economic unit of Ireland and gaining for the Six Counties a voice in the affairs of Ireland as a whole, would reserve certain disputed matters like education and compulsory Gaelic to a reduced Six-County Legislature.

Until that happens, however, Captain Ireland thinks that Northern Ireland should control her own finances and affairs, while there should be greater initiative on the part of the State in relation to agriculture co-operation, electrical development, rationalisation of the linen industry, and the study of the functions of modern banking in other countries. Certainly there are many ways in which the North could co-operate with the South, without loss of dignity to anyone, and with profit to all concerned.

THE SOCIAL ROUND.

The dance organised by the Belfast branch of the Overseas League will take place in the Carlton Hall on Friday, 27th inst. Lady Katharine Seymour is at present abroad, and will, therefore, be unable to attend; but it is expected that her mother, the Duchess of Abercorn, will be present.

On the following day the Duchess of Abercorn will open the 1st Holywood Girl Guides' new premises at Park Drive in the Maypole town.

A dance in aid of the forthcoming Unionist Fête will be given at Orangefield on 17th April, the residence of Captain Herbert Dixon, M.P., and the Hon. Mrs. Herbert Dixon. This is expected to be an unusually attractive event.

An at home will be given in the Unionist headquarters on Wednesday afternoon, 18th inst., by the Ulster Women's Unionist Council, of which Viscountess Craigavon is president. An interesting musical programme has been arranged.

St. Patrick's Day in England.

It is curious that St. Patrick's Day is celebrated so much more cheerfully in other lands than in our own. As usual, the Irish organisations in London and in some of the chief provincial cities in England have made elaborate preparations for to-night.

The Four Provinces Club in London will not be able to assemble to-night, as in former years, at the Hotel Cecil, which has been taken over for other purposes, and their function will now be held at the Mayfair Hotel. Sir Thomas Neill, the president, will be in the chair, and a long list of distinguished guests includes the Spanish, American and Italian Ambassadors; Mr. J. W. Dulanty, the High Commissioner of the Irish Free State, and many prominent politicians. The principal toast will be given by Mr. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions.

The Irish Club will also have many distinguished public personages at their function. These are expected to include Sir John Lavery, Lord and Lady Hailsham, Sir Malcolm and Lady Campbell, in addition to the Home Secretary, Miss Jenny Lee, M.P., and Mr. R. M. Tisdall.

The National University of Ireland, as I have already announced, will have as one of their guests Mr. Hilaire Belloc. There will be a special St. Patrick's Day Service, under the auspices of the Gaelic League, on Sunday next. At the Hull function the toast of "Ireland" will be given by the Bishop of Middlesbrough, who is an Irishman.

St. Patrick and Noah.

In mediæval times March 17th not only was dedicated to St. Patrick, but was celebrated throughout the British Isles as the anniversary of Noah's entry into the ark. A very busy day that must have been for the old shipbuilder if the evidence of the morality plays produced on the anniversary can be accepted. In these Mrs. Noah almost invariably figured as a typical shrew, causing all sorts of trouble. In one of the most famous of the plays, when Noah tells his wife the flood is coming, she sneers at his credulity. Words lead on to blows, in which the husband gets the worst of it and retires to build his ark. When the vessel is finished, Mrs. Noah refuses to enter, and finally her sons have to carry her aboard, kicking and screaming. Noah greets her with a conciliatory, "Welcome, wife, unto this boat," and in response receives a swinging whack across the head, which draws from him the lament:

> Lord, that women be crabbed, aye.
> And none are meek, I dare well say.

This rough and tumble farce was designed to enliven for the ignorant multitude the teaching of Biblical history.

The Sentiment of the Day.

Shamrock is not the only thing that the exile may receive on St. Patrick's Day. Our shops are at present filled with favours, picture postcards, and little cottages carved out of turf, most of which are, no doubt, destined for England or America. I commented a few days ago on the artistry, or lack thereof, displayed in these objects.

Few gifts, however, make such a determined appeal to local sentiment as one which I noticed recently in Cork. An enterprising firm will supply you with a piece of shamrock, a pebble from Bantry, an ivy-leaf from Bandon, a blade of grass from Spike Island, a rather exhausted flower from Berehaven, and a fragment of the Blarney Stone—all for sixpence.

Patrick's Crosses.

I notice that many stationers are making a special display of greeting cards for St. Patrick's Day. These cards are, of course, intended for despatch to friends abroad. I observe also that there is a revival of the old-fashioned "Patrick's crosses." These "crosses," which frequently take the shape of harps in green and gold, were formerly worn on the shoulders of little boys and girls. Nowadays they are termed "Patrick's Day favours."

Animals Arranged.

The announcement that Oxford University is about to confer the degree of Doctor of Science, honoris causa, upon Mr. C. Davies Sherborn, calls our attention to a life devoted to science. This high honour is being conferred upon him for his "Index Animalium," on which he has been engaged for forty years.

In the seventeenth century Linnæus evolved a system under which every species of animal or plant received two names, the first indicating the genus to which the organism belonged, and the second the individual species. Under this system he classified 4,370 species of animals. As time went on, however, it became increasingly difficult to discover whether a species had already been described or not, and many species were described by successive naturalists under different names.

In 1890 Mr. C. Davies Sherborn began to prepare his exhaustive index of all the scientific names applied to animals by naturalists from the time of Linnæus to 1850, with the exact date and place of publication. The work has now been completed, and is said to record the names of half a million species.

Irish General's New Post.

General Sir Archibald Armar Montgomery-Massingberd, K.C.B., K.C.V.O., who has been gazetted as Adjutant-General to the Forces, War Office, London, is a son of the late Right Hon. Hugh de Fellenberg-Montgomery, formerly of Blessingbourne, County Tyrone.

The General, who assumed the additional surname of Massingberd five years ago, is sixty years of age, and was educated at Charterhouse. He served in the South African and the European wars, and in 1920 became Deputy Chief of Staff in India. Two years later he was appointed to the command of the 53rd Welsh Division (T.A.), and a few months later was given command of the 1st Division at Aldershot.

In 1926 he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-General, and in 1928 became General Officer over the Southern Command.

Dual M.P.'s.

By his unopposed election to the House of Commons as Nationalist member for Fermanagh and Tyrone, Mr. Cahir Healy becomes the third member of the present Northern Ireland Parliament to hold a seat simultaneously at Westminster. The other members to have this dual distinction are Captain Herbert Dixon, the Northern Government's Chief Whip at Belfast, and Mr. Joseph Devlin, the fiery little leader of the Nationalist Party, who, during the interval between Mr. T. J. Harbison's death and Mr. Healy's election, has been the only representative of Irish Nationalism in the British House. Mr. Thomas Henderson, who sits in the Northern Parliament as an Independent Unionist, and is also a member of the Belfast Corporation, was another candidate for a Westminster seat at the last general election, but without success. As the Nationalists profess contempt for what Mr. Devlin refers to as the "petty Parliament" of Belfast, it is likely that Mr. Healy will follow his leader's example and devote most of his attention to the Imperial Legislature, reserving his attendances at the local assembly for occasions upon which exceptionally contentious measures are being discussed. Unionist members who held duplicate seats have, on the contrary, made it a practice to give primary attention to affairs in the Northern Ireland Parliament, though an exception was made during the term of the last Parliament, when the great Prayer-book controversy was raging. On that occasion the then Speaker of the Northern Commons, Sir Hugh O'Neill, who also represented Co. Antrim in the Imperial House, doffed his wig and robes and joined the other Ulster Unionists at Westminster in helping to defeat the proposed alterations.

Mr. Cahir Healy.

The Battle for Reform.

Students of English political history cannot fail to be deeply interested in dipping into the pages of Hansard or of daily papers of a hundred years ago. In March the great parliamentary battle on the question of reform was being waged in the Lower House. On the 22nd of the month, when the division on the second reading was taken, all the Irish representatives were present except six—the members for the boroughs of Dundalk Enniskillen, Ennis, New Ross, and those for Counties Carlow and Donegal. At the time there were two seats vacant, and of the ninety-two who were in the House when the division bell rang, fifty-five voted for the bill and thirty-seven against it. It was the influence of O'Connell, who then represented Waterford County, and of Sir Thomas Wyse, a Tipperary member, which brought most of the Irish representatives into the "Aye" Lobby. It is worthy of remark that the great landlords, who stood for towns now intensely Nationalist, like Clonmel, Wexford, Athlone, Newry, Cashel, Carlow and Sligo, were among the Opposition. The absence from the House of so prominent a figure as William Smith O'Brien, who stood for Ennis, lost him much of the good-will of the popular party, and made him ever after suspect with O'Connell.

Rural Spring Cleaning.

Motoring in the country a few days ago, I observed a number of farmers and cottagers spring cleaning the exterior of their homes. The freshly white-washed houses looked charming and gave a picturesque appearance to the landscape. It has always been a pleasing country custom to have everything clean and tidy just before Easter. Furthermore, at a southern seaport recently I noticed a Liverpool steamer discharging large consignments of paint, distemper and linoleum. On fair days the farmers' carts may be seen wending their way homewards laden with rolls of oilcloth, pots of paint and parcels of wallpaper.

Windmills as Homes.

Houses are constructed nowadays out of all sorts of strange buildings, such as lighthouses and Martello towers, but one of the quaintest I have seen was in East Anglia, and was a converted windmill. The owner was delighted with his home, which was as snug as a ship, in spite of the fact there were no flat walls against which to place furniture, but then his windmill was one of the later types, built of solid brick, and known as "tower" mills. The earlier kinds were usually wooden—the most primitive were the so-called "post" mills, on account of the revolution of the whole structure round a central post. Then, in the thirteenth century, the "smock" mill was evolved, of which only the cap turned in the wind. There seem to be few windmills left in Ireland, but I advise the person who chances on one for sale to snap it up at once, and he will have one of the most charming homes imaginable.

"Dublin Doggerels."

Industry in book-hunting is usually a tantalising and disappointing quest; but the other day (writes a correspondent) a long-sought little book, "Dublin Doggerels," peeped at me from a barrow, and, without waiting to ensure myself of its completeness, I parted with the coin requested. A glance at its blithe and breezy effusions, full of the sentiment of a man who knew and loved his Dublin, her citizens and historic institutions, with an ardent civic pride, makes one regret that there are no sprightly local versifiers like Edwin Hamilton, to bring a pretty, but not too caustic, wit to bear on some of our present-day pretensions and frivolities. His pen was always able to turn out a piquant stanza on whatever trifle occupied his thoughts—colour, atmosphere and zestful persiflage were stamped on all his compositions. Still, were he with us, his "St. Patrick's Day" would breathe a less convivial spirit than the song of that name which he wrote in his post-graduate days.

Sunday Observance.

The commotion which has been aroused in England over Sunday observance has one peculiar parallel in the past.

Nearly a hundred years ago there was introduced in the House of Commons a Sunday Observance Bill of a particularly puritanical brand. The bill, however, is only interesting on account of a pamphlet which it prompted. It was entitled, "Sunday Under Three Heads: As it is: As Sabbath Bills would make it: As it may be." The author signed himself "Timothy Sparkes," but later became known to the world as Charles Dickens. In this pamphlet he was already at work on his favourite pastime of "exposing cant and humbug."

Portobello House.

I had occasion recently to visit a friend recovering from an illness in the Portobello House, which overlooks Portobello Bridge, and in the course of our conversation she recalled occasions in the past when she used to be in the same building. That would have been about thirty-eight years ago, and at that time the building was a hotel, although almost empty and past its heyday as one of the city's most prosperous establishments. She was then a member of a club that used to meet once a week in one of the rooms for dancing.

Years before the railways had been built, when travellers from the South of Ireland came up to Dublin by water, the Portobello Hotel constituted a famous and welcome landmark at journey's end.

Irish in Kentucky.

The American statesman, Henry Clay, once declared that in the landscape of Kentucky, with its woods, rolling mountains, and fields of blue-green grass he saw the Ireland of America. As if to bear out his contention, the early history of the State may be said to have been made by Irishmen. James McBride, the first white man to paddle up the Kentucky River, was followed by the famous pioneer, Daniel Boone, who was accompanied by three adventurous Irishmen. Most of the early fortified stations bore Irish names, while other sons of Erin are commemorated in the names of eleven of the present county divisions of Kentucky. Almost every Irish name was said to be represented in the State during its early days, and a glance at a voting list would make the exile think that he was back once more in his native country.

Cat and Rat.

The Central Market at Alexanderplatz, Berlin, is infested with rats, and the market authorities have been carrying on a campaign against them with the aid of poison. Recently certain stray cats have been prowling about the market place. Their activities have been greeted with approval by the authorities, and it has been decided to appoint them as "official cats." In return for their services they will receive a daily milk ration. They will also wear official collars of red and white, the city colours. Mischievous youths found tormenting them will receive a short shrift.

QUIDNUNC.

A FILM OF THE WEEK.

MAURICE CHEVALIER AT THE CAPITOL.

By Our Cinema Correspondent.

The fascination of Maurice Chevalier, now one of the most popular personalities of the screen, is entirely a matter of accent and smile. His English has that lisping quality which only French people seem to have as a natural gift, and this alone is worth many hundreds of thousands of dollars in the estimation of Hollywood directors. It is being exploited also on the stage in England by Alice Delysia, who has found it quite a remunerative gift to be used upon English audiences.

Both these artists have that insouciance and abandon which are characteristic of the Paris music hall, and are so very attractive to British and American audiences in theatre or cinema. With Chevalier, insouciant behaviour is accompanied by a winning smile that even the most hardened cinema-goer would find it difficult to resist. He can dance, too, but it would not be urged by his greatest admirer that he has a good singing voice. With the songs of the café chantant, he can do well enough, but audiences may tremble when they are asked—if they ever are asked—to hear him in anything other than these.

GREATER OPPORTUNITY NEEDED.

In "The Big Pond," which has proved popular enough to be retained for a second week at the Capitol, he has little or no singing to do—just a couple of songs which might as easily be sung as said. In one of these, "You Brought a New Kind of Love to Me," he has a kind of "theme song"; but it is in "Having a Wonderful Time" that he may be heard at his best. Here he has no dancing to do, except it be held that the capers which he cuts in his own bedroom to mark his joy at a discovery is dancing.

On the whole, while he is not at his best, Chevalier is as irresistible as ever in "The Big Pond"; but a better story, and more sympathetic direction, would probably have provided him with greater opportunity for the display of his inimitable talents. On the screen to-day there is no one with quite the same kind of appeal, and in consequence greater efforts should be made to find material worthy of his peculiar genius. There is little or nothing of the personal glamour of "The Love Parade" or "The Roofs of Paris" in the paltry story of "The Big Pond."

"The Big Pond" is, of course, the Atlantic Ocean, across which Barbara Billings had come to Venice in search of romance. She met it in the guise of Pierre Morande, the French guide, who sang to her in a gondola as they floated languidly on the moonlit canals. But Barbara's father would have none of her love-making with worthless folks; a man must "make good" to the extent of at least 20,000 "bucks" a year before he would consent to hear of him as a possible son-in-law. In the hope that Pierre would break under the strain, he is offered a position in the Billings chewing-gum factory in America, and he is started there in the lowest and most arduous work. Like Mr. Brisling, he "sees it through," but a lucky accident gives him the grip on his 20,000 dollars. His foreman, an Irishman, endeavoured to reach a private whiskey supply and accidentally fell, breaking the precious bottle. Billings came to the factory and discovered a foreigner engaged in the nefarious practice of undermining the United States Constitution, and "fired" the culprit at once.

GUM AND FLAVOUR.

Absent-mindedly, Pierre began to chew a piece of the gum that had been soaked in the whiskey, and fortune was within his grasp. The Billings gum could be marketed in all the flavours from "Scotch" to "Champagne," so that gum-chewers could have all the flavour "and none of the kick" of their favourite beverages. The great sales campaign was begun, and Pierre got his 20,000 dollars salary, after he had converted his Venetian love-song into one designed to sell Billings chewing-gum—"I've Brought a New Kind of Gum to You." Then Barbara threw him over, because he had become a "typical American business man," while she sought romance and glamour. Pointing to the array of pencils and pens in his pocket, she says, "You're like a pipe-organ." In his boarding-house Pierre is reminded of how princes behave in fairy tales, so he, too, kidnaps his Barbara; and they leave for Cleveland "on business."

No doubt, as he says in this film, Maurice Chevalier will "speak Americ-an," but if he does, much of his screen popularity will desert him.

SIR OLIVER LODGE'S NEW THEORY.

Sir Oliver Lodge elaborated a new suggestion on the "Interaction of Life and Matter" when speaking at the Imperial College Literary and Debating Society yesterday.

"There has recently been discovered or suspected," he said, "a physical agent which exerts guidance without imparting energy that might serve as the instrument for life and mind, and is more at home in space than in association with material objects, such as the bodies of animals and men.

Sir Oliver Lodge.

"There is some doubt whether the ether ought to be called substance," he said. "It differs from every substance so far known, yet is very fundamental, and therefore substantial.

"No one now supposes that the ether is a rarefied form of matter, or that its properties can be expressed in terms of mechanism or material behaviour. It is evidently something more fundamental than matter, something of whose properties we have very little knowledge.

"It was found that in electricity, in magnetism, and in light, the really effective medium, whatever it was, existed in space-time, and that the movements of the particles of matter were only an index, a demonstration, a phenomenon which could be observed, and it was found that the perceptible motions of matter were consequent upon the real phenomenon which was operative in that which appealed to our senses as empty space.

"The moral of it all is that when we seek the real causes of things, which is the object of science, we must concentrate on that which cannot be directly observed, but which can only be inferred by the action of the mind."

ROYAL IRISH ACADEMY.

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT.

MEMBERS OF THE NEW COUNCIL.

PROFESSOR R. A. S. Macalister, Litt.D., presided yesterday at the stated general meeting of the Royal Irish Academy, at 19 Dawson street, Dublin.

Professor Macalister returned thanks for having been elected five years ago to the presidency of the Academy. Under the statutes, they must now elect someone else, and that someone would be from the Science side, because it was generally the practice to elect the president alternately from one side or the other.

Chief Justice Kennedy suggested that Dr. Praeger be elected president as one who not only represented the scientific side, but the whole life of the Academy.

Dr. R. Lloyd Praeger.

The Chairman said that everybody was free to adopt the suggestion of the Chief Justice, and explained the system of election.

Ballot papers for the election of a president, eleven members of the Committee of Science and ten members of the Committee of Polite Literature and Antiquities were then issued.

COUNCIL'S REPORT.

On the motion of Professor Alton, the report of the Council for 1930-31 was adopted. The report referred in laudatory terms to the late Professor A. Henry, who became a member of the Academy in 1908, and was vice-president for the session 1925-26. Dr. Henry travelled widely in the Continent and America in connection with tree studies. He married, in 1908, the eldest daughter of Sir Lauder Brunton, by whom he was survived. Professor Henry's herborium of trees and shrubs was presented to the Government of Saorstat Eireann by his widow. It was now housed in the Botanic Gardens at Glasnevin.

Proceeding, the report stated that the rearrangement of the collections in the Museum had been continued during the past year, and that all the main exhibits were now in their final places. Work on the Academy's Dictionary of the Irish Language was proceeding, and the whole of the letter E was in type.

Regarding the library, the report stated that the special grant from the Carnegie Trust for binding books had come to an end, and the Academy had had to fall back on its own resources. Sixty Irish paper manuscripts which were in bad condition had been rebound and relettered. The leaves of two dozen of these needed repair badly, as the paper was worn and could not be handled with safety. White Malines gauze, such as was used in the manuscript department of the British Museum, had been procured, and repairs were being carried out by a skilled worker.

Professor Macalister read a paper on a "Catalogue of Irish Traders' Tokens in the Collection of the Royal Irish Academy" which he had prepared.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

The result of the ballot was next announced. Professor Macalister asked the assembly to rise, and, amidst general hand-clapping, stated that he had much pleasure in declaring that Dr. R. Lloyd Praeger had been elected President.

Dr. Macalister then took off the presidential robe and put it on Dr. Praeger, who took the chair.

Dr. Praeger read the result of the election to the Council, as follows:—

Science Committee—Messrs. John J. Nolan, M.A., D.Sc.; F. E. Hackett, M.A., Ph.D.; A. W. Conway, D.Sc., F.R.S.; T. J. Nolan, B.A., D.Sc.; W. B. Morton, M.A.; K. C. Bailey, Sc.D.; J. Doyle, D.Sc.; C. H. Rowe, M.A., M.Sc.; L. B. Smyth, Sc.D.; and J. W. Bigger, M.A., M.D.

THE QUEEN.

PURCHASE OF A HOUSE

The Press Association learnt yesterday that the Queen has been interested in the purchase of a house, 32 Green street, Mayfair, W. The house was the property of Mr. T. O. M. Sopwith, the aviation expert. Statements that the Queen has purchased the house for Prince George, her youngest son, are officially denied at Buckingham Palace.

It is understood that the house has been purchased in connection with certain rearrangements which are taking place with regard to certain of the Crown properties, but no member of the Royal Family will take up residence at the house.

OLYMPIA THEATRE.

A MUSICAL SKETCH.

One of the best-known of Irish revue producers, Mr. Tom Powell, presents "All Out" at the Olympia this week. The show, which is described on the programme as a "Revusical extravaganza of mirth and melody," was played before an appreciative audience last night. From the opening scene, "The New York Dublin Club," to the final curtain, the humour was sustained, the melody unstinted, and the production lavish. Harry Lino was the chief laughter-maker, and was well assisted by Dick Forbes, a well-known Cork comedian. Mr. A. J. O'Farrell contributed several very pleasing vocal items.

County Down Murder Trial Fixed for To-morrow.

References by Judge at the Opening of the Assizes.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

MR. JUSTICE WILSON, opening the Down Assizes at Downpatrick to-day, referred, in his address to the Grand Jury, to the Dromara affair, in connection with which two men, named Kennedy and Morrison, of the tramp class, are charged with the murder of an elderly woman, Miss Ellen Maguire, on February 27 last.

The Judge said that the old lady lived alone in a house 300 yards off the county road, at a place near Dromara. It appeared that the old lady was about 76 years of age, but she was still hale and hearty, and had a reputation in the neighbourhood of having a considerable quantity of money.

These two men, Morrison and Kennedy, it appeared from the depositions, were tramps. One of them either originally came from Ballynahinch, or his people lived there. The other man, Kennedy, was alleged to have come from Athlone. They left Ballynahinch on the morning of February 27, and went along the road from Dromara. It was clear from the depositions that they then had very little money. They got into Dromara, and spent some time there, and then they were traced to the rector's house and another house. Eventually, having spent most of the day in Dromara, they went to the house of a man called Hawthorne. They left his house about six o'clock in the evening, and then it was alleged they came back and turned in the direction in which the old lady lived. Morrison was seen close to the entrance to Miss Maguire's house at seven o'clock that evening. Nothing more was seen of them until they were found together in Dromore.

MIDNIGHT LIGHT.

On that day Miss Maguire had been down at a neighbour's house in the morning. She had been seen about three o'clock that day going to the well to get water. Nothing unusual was observed until that night, when a neighbour who was on his way home saw a light in the house about 11 o'clock, and again about midnight. He thought that very unusual, as the old lady generally went to bed by sundown. He did nothing then, however, but next day he went to the house and found the door locked. He made his way in through the window and found the poor old lady lying not far from the door, with her hands tied together and with cloths wound round her mouth and nose. Having discovered this, he sent for the police, and they sent for a doctor. When the doctor arrived he said that she undoubtedly was suffocated, and that these cloths were so wrapped that she must have been suffocated in a very few minutes. A box in her bedroom where she kept notes and gold was broken open, and a good deal of money was taken away.

ARRESTED IN FREE STATE.

The two accused men disappeared, and the police proceeded to get on their track, and discovered that they had arrived in Dromore that evening very anxious to change sovereigns and half-sovereigns. That was not a very common form of money at the present time. They eventually succeeded in getting a half-sovereign changed, and stayed in a house there for a time. They made great endeavours to get some jarvey in the place to drive them to Banbridge, but failed. They left Dromore in the morning and walked to Banbridge, and then to a little place called Loughbrickland, a short distance outside that town, where they got a 'bus going from Belfast to Dublin, and which carried them to within a few miles of Dundalk. They apparently disappeared there. The police got on their track, and eventually the Civic Guards went to a lodging-house in Dundalk and proceeded to inquire for them. Apparently they were not there, but, as the Civic Guards stood making inquiries, a cough was heard, and they went up a ladder and found the two prisoners, Morrison and Kennedy, and a woman. It appeared this woman was really called Mrs. Stapleton, who in the West of Ireland had deserted her husband and had gone with Kennedy for the charm of the roving life.

GOLD.

They were taken over from the Civic Guards, and when searched a considerable quantity of gold was found in their possession. The woman Stapleton had made a deposition, in which she said that the two men were willing to give four or five sovereigns for three £1 notes. That looked as if they came by the money very easily. These were the facts. The men had been seen together at six o'clock at Hawthorne's. They were seen together after they came back on their tracks near to Miss Maguire's. It was asserted that they had entered the house, and, after binding her, had robbed her of the gold and the notes. In addition to that evidence, Morrison had made a confession, and that confession would be evidence against Morrison and not evidence against Kennedy. They would hear that confession, and it seemed to be clear evidence that he did it.

THE LEGAL ASPECT.

In saying a word on the legal aspect, Mr. Justice Wilson said that if two men made up their minds that they would enter this house or any other house for the purpose of taking the money, and if the old lady resisted, they purposed keeping her quiet and tied her up with those clothes and she died, that was murder in law, and it was the malice aforethought spoken of in indictments.

"Because, if they go to do a deed of violence," added the Judge, "and any person or persons dies as a result of the violence, then murder has been committed.

"About the general state of the county, notwithstanding these cases, the respected County Inspector, who they all knew was about to retire from his duties after twelve years maintaining the peace of the county and enjoy his well-deserved rest, has been able to tell me that the state of the county was perfectly peaceful and good."

TRIAL FIXED FOR WEDNESDAY.

Subsequently, Francis Morrison and Gerald Kennedy were indicted for the wilful murder of Miss Ellen Maguire, at Drumadoney, near Dromara, on February 27 last.

Mr. J. Williamson, K.C.; Mr. William Beattie, K.C., and Mr. Gerald B. Dougherty (instructed by Mr. H. H. Mussen) represented the Crown.

When arraigned, both prisoners pleaded "not guilty."

Mr. Williamson said that he understood that neither of the prisoners was in the position to have professional assistance.

Morrison, asked by the Clerk of the Crown and Peace if he had anyone to represent him, said that he had Mr. Heron, and Kennedy replied that he had Mr. Fitzpatrick.

In reply to the judge, both these gentlemen said that they had got no retainers. The prisoners had no money. Mr. Fitzpatrick added that the reason he was in court was because the chief warder of the prison had telephoned to him.

The judge assigned for Morrison Mr. Heron and Mr. J. H. Campbell, and for Kennedy Mr. Fitzpatrick and Mr. James McSparran.

Mr. Williamson asked the judge to fix the trial for Wednesday morning, and he did so. The trial is expected to occupy the whole day.

St. Patrick's Day Ghosts.

HOW DUBLIN ENJOYED THE DAY IN THE PAST.

(By A. E. M.)

STANDING by the steps of the City Hall to-day, memory may induce one to hear the sharp metallic ring of trotting horses approaching from the direction of Parliament street. It is the clattering noise made by the escort of Hussars coming with the Lord Lieutenant for the Trooping of the Colour in the Lower Castle Yard. The glittering and rattling company on the sleek horses wheels sharply round the corner into Cork Hill, and with an air of intent abandon wheels again to the left into the Castle.

Brilliant sunshine—there was invariably brilliant sunshine in those days—brought the towers of Christ Church Cathedral into dreamy silhouette, and was reflected dazzlingly from the drawn sabres of the cavalry officers as they wheeled into the Castle Yard. The small crowd gathered about the precincts of Parliament street and Cork Hill raise a cheer, which is more vigorously echoed by the larger crowd about the Castle gates, as the Lord Lieutenant passes in his open carriage.

Suddenly from within the Castle crashes out the notes of "God Save the King" as the Lord Lieutenant arrives on the parade ground, to be followed almost immediately by "The British Grenadiers." On the parade ground itself is assembled all the pomp and fashion of Dublin—officials of the Viceregal Court, officers of the Irish Command and the Dublin Garrison, the high officials of the Civil Service, police officers in polished uniforms, and the ladies in all the colours they will wear shortly at Punchestown. The massed bands of the regiments composing the Dublin Garrison crash suddenly into the marches of the ceremonial Trooping of the Colour, and the Colour company goes solemnly through the various evolutions. The salute is taken by the Lord Lieutenant and the General Officer Commanding in Ireland, and then His Excellency takes the opportunity of greeting his friends who are assembled by the saluting base. Quickly he reaches his carriage again and is driven off, his escort settling into place for the return to the Viceregal Lodge. Cheers are heard in the streets again as the cavalcade passes out.

Then the regimental bands get into position for the return march to barracks in all parts of the city, and the troops pass out to the strains of "The girl I left behind me," or some other rollicking Irish air. Along Parliament street, up the hill towards Christ Church Cathedral, or to the right towards George's street, they go, stepping lively enough, but now making no sound. They will pass about half-past eleven this morning.

GREETING THE LORD MAYOR.

At College Green there is another, and a much larger, crowd a little later in the day. It has assembled to greet the new Lord Mayor of Dublin as he wends his way in all the panapoly of State on a visitation through the city. There is a big crowd at College Green because some fun is always to be had there from the attitudes and antics of the "College boys," who notoriously do not like Lord Mayors. An ancient "town and gown" spirit is in the atmosphere about the College railings, and "the boys" may be seen decorating the windows in the front. No one knows, but everyone greatly hopes, that "the boys" have a supply of "ammunition" lying in wait for the new Right Honourable the Lord Mayor as he permits his citizens to view him in all his glory.

There is a great cheer from the crowd-lined streets as the old "gingerbread" coach lurches and lumbers on its weary way, shaking his lordship and his chaplain and secretary as if they were on a ship or at the tail-end of a tramcar. The sound of "rebel" tunes is heard as the civilian bands in the procession hurl their challenging notes against the very walls of the oppressor's strongholds, each bandsman contesting with his fellow his might in patriotic music, and his fervour in the "cause." The first band passes with a medley that might be "God Save Ireland" played as a quick-march, and soon the State coach of the Corporation of Dublin is being drawn towards the corner of Grafton street. It is a great affair this coach, carved and gilded so that its ornate and burnished surface shimmers in the sunlight. It is drawn by six horses, with postillions and outriders, and a person in gorgeous uniform gathers the reins into white-gloved hands as he sits impassive in his seat, high "above the battle." The "tigers," standing on the narrow ledge behind, are equally gorgeously apparelled, but they seem none too comfortable on their lurching pedestal.

Suddenly there is a mighty roar, drowning the discord of the patriotic bandsmen, as a small bag of flour burst against the ornate "Ginger-bread," and scatters itself over the trappings of horses and men alike. None had found itself into the carriage, so the august personage of the Lord Mayor was unsullied. Then comes another, and another, and still another; the ground is now as if snow-covered, and the Lord Mayor is looking whitish. But it is the unfortunate bearers of the Sword and Mace who take most of the flour; cocked hats and crimson gowns can no longer be identified, and their ancient weapons can no more be used against offenders. The crimson-gowned and cock-hatted Aldermen and Councillors, who follow in open carriages, have a bad time, indeed, and much brushing will be necessary ere they become presentable to the more abiding Northern side of his lordship's city.

Nothing is left for the waiting crowd now but the passage of the Fire Brigade, always a popular rear-guard to the procession. With clanging of bells and glittering helmets the Brigade passes, and the crowd breaks into the following ranks, to march towards possible further adentures.

AN INDUSTRIAL PARADE.

"Burn everything English except coal." As the crimson poplin banner bearing this device in gold lettering passes by a meek little man in the crowd says, "They have forgotten matches and cigarettes," but such things were unheard of in Swift's day, so he agreed to ignore them. The St. Patrick's Day Industrial Parade is passing through the Dublin streets, and is attracting the attention of the patriotic and he curious. It is a miscellaneous collection, ranging from thread and biscuits to fishing-nets and cigarettes, with tableaux interspersed to attract the greater attention to some particular goods. The procession is something of a novelty, as is the Irish Week,, which it is intended to inaugurate, and the watchers are not quite sure whether they are to be amused or instructed, so they stare silently until a passing band awakens comment. It might be a funeral, so silent is the crowd; only the drums are heard, "not a funeral note."

The lorries and carts pass slowly, sometimes stopping for quite long periods for unknown reasons; but soon the whole procession has gone without any ending such as curious Dublin crowds are accustomed to have in all their outdoor displays. The crowd melts quickly for its drinks and its meals.

ONE WITH LUBBOCK.

It is curious that when the seriously-minded had made of St. Patrick's Day a national holiday it should have been listed with the others named by Sir John Lubbock as a bank holiday. A day on which the populace goes to Howth and Baldoyle and Killiney and Bray to enjoy itself as does the populace everywhere. But not yet; the outside cars find their way by the Phœnix Park to the "Hole in the Wall," and the Strawberry Beds, where the porter is black and the fun fast. Religion and patriotism having been satisfied, it is right to have some fun, so to the "Hole in the Wall" on a car for the afternoon and evening. Towards dusk is the best time; then the fun will be at its height.

The fiddles and melodeons vie with each other in dance tunes as the famous hostelry is reached, and crowds are dancing and singing about the freshening grass of the Park. An extremely large gathering is endeavouring to negotiate the intricacies of "The Lancers," but there is much more noise than elegance about the display. Shouts and laughter may be heard everywhere, so that the entire population of the city may be believed to be present. As a fact, only those from the districts which are sometimes called "The Liberties" fraternise in these gatherings, but the "jarvies" do good business with family parties, and every car has its musician, who will insist upon playing and repeating his limited repertoire as the cars pass homeward in the early hours of to-morrow morning.

At any hour from midnight onwards it will be possible to hear one of the venturers from the past pull and push from a melodeon the notes of "Fond memory brings the light of other days around me" as his alcoholic companions drawl and hiccough the words. Listen for them!

IRISH KENNEL CLUB DINNER.

A group of the guests at the Irish Kennel Club's annual dinner, held in Jury's Hotel, Dublin, last night.

BURNED TO DEATH.

LONE OLD MAN'S FATE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

GURTEEN, Monday.

THE story of how a small farmer, John Devitt, who lived alone at Powellsboro', Tubbercurry, was burned to death was told to Coroner O'Hart and a jury last evening.

Charles McDonnell and Patrick Durkin gave evidence of finding Devitt's house filled with smoke and the old man lying in the centre of the floor, with his clothing alight.

Michael Connolly told how Devitt called at his house for petrol for use in a cigarette lighter.

Sergeant Drugan, Tubbercurry, stated that when he visited Devitt's house he found the old man lying in the centre of the floor, with the legs burned to the bone. The left-hand was burned off, but the face was uninjured. A petrol cigarette lighter was found beside the chair on which Devitt was apparently sitting. The clothing was all burned, as was a chair and a cushion. A small bottle containing petrol was found near the body. When witness entered the house the place was full of smoke.

Dr. E. Flannery having given evidence, a verdict of "Death from shock due to burns" was returned.

Summer Time.

Altered Licensing Hours.

IN the Howth District Court Mr. Gerald Byrne, solicitor, applied, on behalf of Mr. W. Findlater, St. Lawrence Hotel, Howth, to entitle him to open his licensed premises from two o'clock till nine p.m. instead of from one o'clock till eight p.m. during summer time.

A similar application was made in respect of Mrs. Duff, Baldoyle; Mrs. Campion, Balgriffin, and the Messrs. Cassidy, of Howth.

Superintendent Hughes, objected to the applications.

Mr. Findalter, in reply to Superintendent Hughes, said that the people who came into the hotel between eight and nine p.m. were very respectable people. He would be surprised to know that many people who visited Howth on Sundays were people who were on the dole.

Mr. Cassidy, Summit Hotel, Howth, said, in reply to Mr. Lynch, solicitor, that he only had a licence for the sale of beer and stout. He had no spirit licence, but he had a soda fountain.

Superintendent Hughes—Would not the soda fountain be sufficient?

Mr. Byrne, solicitor—Well, a glass of soda water is not much good after a walk up Howth Head. (Laughter.)

Superintendent Hughes said that 30,000 people might visit Howth on a fine Sunday. He admitted that the licensed premises were well conducted, but he based his objection on the grounds that with the extra hour the greatest number of cases of drunkenness occurred.

Sergeant Nolan, Howth, said that his experience of this summer time traffic was that people came out from the city half drunk, and completed the performance by having an extra three hours.

Mr. Byrne—Well, now, if a man can get drunk in three hours I suppose he can get drunk in two.

Sergeant Nolan—I suppose it would depend on his capacity. (Laughter.)

Mr. Byrne—Well, I suppose, Sergeant, you do not want Howth to go dry like America? You know the hash America made of it. (Laughter.)

Superintendent Hughes said that there was no need to grant these applications, but if the Court thought well to grant them the Guards would do their best to see that no abuses occurred.

Mr. Byrne said that there had been no abuse of the privilege given to the publicans last year, and he asked the Justice to grant similar facilities this year.

Justice Reddin said that these applications had been granted for the past four years, and the publicans had not abused the privilege. There had been no convictions against these houses, and he granted the applications in all cases. It had been said that there were some cases of drunkenness in Howth, but such cases would be dealt with by the Guards with their usual ability.

£400 a Week.

Home Help in County Kildare.

AT the meeting of the Kildare Health Board, Mr. P. Phelan (Chairman) presiding, Mr. W. Murray, Superintendent Assistance Officer, reported that home help expenditure for the month of February amounted to £1,643, or an average of about £410 a week. Athy district alone was responsible for over £100 a week, which, in his opinion, disclosed a very serious state of affairs.

In reply to the Chairman, Mr. Murray stated that the expenditure in Athy for February was £40 higher than for January.

The Chairman said that home help expenditure seemed to be getting out of bounds altogether in County Kildare. They were paying more than double any other county in the Free State. The ratepayers of the county were being taxed to the tune of over £21,000 a year without getting anything by way of return. It was a very serious position to be in, and he thought that all the elected representatives of the county should come together to consider the situation. If they could devise some scheme of task labour, similar to what they had organised on a small scale in Naas, it would, at least, have the effect of getting some return for this money.

Mr. Fitzsimons—I remember one individual who got married on Saturday, and applied for home help the following Monday. He is drawing it ever since.

Mr. Bergin—I know myself that a number of soldiers who come up on reserve remain in the county. They get married and take rooms.

Mr. Doyle—Athy is costing us the most, and still the people are dying of starvation there.

After further discussion it was decided to call a special committee meeting of the Board to consider the matter.

FACING A NEW MENACE.

POSITION OF THE LINEN INDUSTRY.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

THE Irish linen industry is faced with a new menace the wholesale dumping of Russian linen goods on the British and foreign markets. Before the war Russia supplied nearly three-quarters of the flax used in the Irish linen industry, the other quarter, being finer flax, produced at home and in Belgium. Even last year, Soviet Russia supplied a large quantity of flax for Irish linen manufacturers, while considerable quantities also came from Latvia, Esthonia and other Baltic provinces formerly incorporated in Russia. Within the past few months there has been a notable decline in Soviet raw supplies; but instead, linen articles manufactured in Russia are being dumped upon the British market, at prices considerably below the home cost of production.

RUSSIAN IMPORTS.

Several London houses are importing these Russian linens, and they are being offered right and left. They include such classes as sideboard cloths, tray cloths, tea cloths, etc., made of coarse, cream embroidery linen, with fancy stitches. Last year Russia exported very little linen goods to Great Britain, according to the Board of Trade returns; but this year a much larger quantity will be probably imported. It would appear as if the Russian five-year industrial plan, so far as linen manufacturing is concerned, has begun to operate, and this should lead to a renewed demand for safeguarding duties to protect the British market from being exploited by the Soviet Government. Even with the recent reduction in the wages of spinners and weavers, ranging from 7 to 10 per cent., Irish manufacturers would not be able to compete upon a cost basis with the uneconomic labour conditions and costs prevailing in Soviet factories and mills. While it is admitted that the quality of the Russian linen goods is much coarser than those produced in Belfast, buyers find it hard to resist offers of goods which are saleable and, at the same time, under the cost price according to local economic standards.

A NEW MENACE.

It is to be regretted that at a time when Irish linen production is being put upon a lower basis of production costs both in regard to wages and raw material, it should be faced with a new menace. For the past few years linen manufacturers in the North of Ireland had to face severe competition on the American and other markets from Czechoslovakia and other continental centres, where labour costs were lower than in the North of Ireland, but latterly the industry has been steadily overcoming this handicap. Not only wages have been reduced, but the price of flax has been brought back to pre-war level, and now is being sold in the Northern markets at 5s. per stone, or 1½d. per lb. less than cotton (American middling) on the Liverpool market.

Recently cotton prices showed a tendency to harden in consequence of the policy in America of restricting by 10 or 20 per cent. the cotton area under cultivation this year. Any increase in cotton prices would naturally have helped the linen industry.

Lurgan Weavers' Strike.

Firm's Rumoured Decision to Close.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

LURGAN, Monday.

A MASS meeting of the winders and weavers on strike in Lurgan was held in Foster's Cinema, Lurgan, this afternoon. Mr. Michael Casey presided, and the building was packed.

Councillor Sam. Kyle, Belfast (divisional organiser) said that it had been reported that one of the firms in dispute (Messrs. Samuel McCrudden and Co., Ltd.) had decided to close down their weaving factory on March 28, and it was reported that the members of their staff had received two weeks' notice to terminate their employment. Councillor Kyle said that the members of the Union were prepared to return to Messrs. McCrudden's inside twenty-four hours provided that Messrs. McCrudden agreed to withdraw the notices of a reduction in wages, and that also applied to the other four firms where notices of reductions had been posted. They were prepared to enter into negotiations with these firms in order to get the wheels of industry going again.

Mr. Robert Getgood, district organiser, said that if Messrs. McCrudden, of Lurgan, decided to close down their firm, well and good; that was the firm's concern; but no matter what body of employers decided to carry on the weaving sheds in Lurgan, the weavers and winders and other people employed in the weaving end of the linen trade must be paid good wages and enjoy good conditions of labour; otherwise they could carry their looms out of Lurgan.

Mr. R. McClung, district organiser, said that if any employer or set of employers wanted a settlement of the Lurgan textile dispute, the Strike Committee were sitting every day in the Textile Hall in Lurgan. They did not want a strike; they did not want to continue the dispute if an honourable settlement could be arrived at. Every textile worker in Northern Ireland was looking towards Lurgan and hoping and praying for the Lurgan textile workers to win the fight. Textile workers were to-day coming inside the trade union movement in order to encourage the Lurgan workers in their fight.

Widow's Fatal Burns.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

WEXFORD, Monday.

"DEATH from shock, the result of burns received when her clothing accidentally took fire," was the verdict returned by Mr. J. J. Roche, Coroner for South Wexford at an inquest which was held to-day in the County Hospital, Wexford, on the body of Elizabeth Donohoe, The Oil, Oylegate, a farmer's widow, aged 55 years.

Cork County Board of Health to-day, on the recommendation of the Appointment Commissioners, appointed Dr. MacSearraigh, Culmaoile, County Sligo, and Dr. O'Regan, Doneraile, Assistant Medical Officers of Health for the county.

RATEPAYERS TO BENEFIT.

LOUTH AND THE SWEEPSTAKE.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

DUNDALK, Monday.

THE ratepayers of County Louth will benefit, at least to the extent of one thousand pounds, from the Grand National Sweep. At the quarterly meeting of the Louth County Council to-day, the Chairman (Mr. J. T. McGee) announced that the Council had decided to reduce the annual contribution payable out of public funds to the Louth Infirmary by £1,000, seeing that the infirmary was hoping to get a substantial contribution from the Sweep. The contribution had been increased by the Council when the infirmary was in a bad way, and now that things looked brighter for hospitals throughout Ireland, he was sure the management of the county infirmary would not be annoyed at the reduction in the sum paid them from the Louth rates.

The estimate of rates adopted showed an increase of 2⅔d. over the rate of last year. The increase was largely due to an increased demand from the Grangogorman Mental Hospital, and a demand from the Vocational Education Committee for a grant of £1,400 from the county funds.

READY MONEY SCARCE.

In moving the adoption of the estimate, which was passed unanimously, the Chairman said that they had done everything they possibly could to help the class of people among whom there was, perhaps, more unemployment than any other class—the agricultural population. They realised long ago that the cause of so much unemployment was the scarcity of ready money on the farms to pay labourers, and that every additional burden placed on the shoulders of the farmers, who employed labour, tended to reduce the amount of employment available for the people of the country. The total rate was 8s. 2⅔d., and next year two very big items—the Ardee railway guarantee, and the repayment of a big loan obtained in 1924 to relieve agriculturists—would be wiped off.

GRANTS FOR ROADS.

It was announced that grants totalling almost £11,000 were made available by the Roads Board for the laying in concrete of three important roads in the county, and an application was suggested to be made to the Roads Board to enable this work to be done by direct labour.

The County Surveyor said that he would prefer contract work, for the reason that the work must be completed before next March, and actually would have to be done before November. The laying of concrete roads was like the making of hay, and had to be done during a certain season.

The Rotary Movement.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

MR. HARRIS RUNDLE presided at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Belfast Rotary Club, this afternoon, in the Grand Central Hotel. He extended a hearty welcome to the guests, among whom were Rotarians Arthur G. Camp (Wrexham) and Fred J. Simmons (Londonderry), the Rev. W. F. Marshall (Castlerock), Mr. J. H. Venning (Northern Rhodesia), Mr. Arthur Johnson (Dublin).

Past President Dr. George G. Lyttle announced that a meeting of the Irish District Council of Rotary International was held in Belfast on Saturday last, when the following Rotarians were elected to take office on July 1st next:—Chairman, Mr. F. M. Summerfield (Dublin); vice-chairman, Mr. R. W. Sinnott (Cork); secretary, Mr. G. J. T. Clampett, barrister-at-law (Dublin); treasurer, Mr. Samuel Dowds (Londonderry).

Robbery from House in Sutton.

Court Sequel.

In the Howth District Court, yesterday, Thomas Kelly and Bartley Carrick, Baldoyle, were charged by Superintendent Hughes with having broken into the residence of Mrs. Teresa Lawlor, Sutton, on February 21, and stolen two one pound notes, two sovereigns, one half sovereign, a gold wristlet watch and pendant.

Mr. Gerald Byrne, solicitor, appeared for Carrick, and Mr. Herman Good, solicitor, for Kelly.

Mrs. Teresa Lawlor deposed that she drove home in a van, driven by her nephew, on the night of February 21. She saw a light in the house, and just as she came to the house two men rushed out. The glass at the hall-door was broken, so as to give access to the Yale lock. Witness went to her bedroom and missed the money and articles mentioned.

Mr. Louis O'Connor, nephew of the last witness, said that he saw the two men running out of the house, and he chased them. Witness fell over some barbed wire just as the men got near the golf links, and then they got away. The men both wore caps, and at an identification parade he picked out two men. He now pointed out Kelly as one of the men whom he chased.

Replying to Mr. Good, the witness said that he could not swear that either of the prisoners was one of the men whom he saw coming out of Mrs. Lawlor's house.

Mr. Stephens, a neighbour of Mrs. Lawlor's, said that on the night of the 21st February he was going into his house, and saw a man standing near his gate. This man went towards Lawlor's. Witness subsequently attended an identification parade, and picked out a man who, he believed, was the man he saw that night, Bartley Carrick.

Mr. Byrne—Are you absolutely sure that Carrick was the man you saw?—Well, I could not swear it.

Sergeant Nolan described his visit to Mrs. Lawlor's and detailed measurements of footprints he found nearby. He saw similar footprints on the foreshore shortly afterwards. Witness afterwards questioned the accused, Kelly, and compared his footprints with those which he found on the foreshore, and they corresponded. A diagram of the sole of Kelly's boot was shown, to which Mr. Good took exception, as he contended that it did not tally with the sole of the boot (produced).

Mr. Good and Mr. Byrne both urged that there was no identification and no case to meet.

Justice Reddin said that he was satisfied a prima facie case had been made.

ALIBI DEFENCE.

Evidence was given by Kelly's father and sister to the effect that he (Kelly) had not left the house all day on February 21.

The case having occupied about two hours at hearing, Kelly, one of the accused men, was called and swore that he was not out of the house at Station road, Sutton, on the night of February 21.

Justice Reddin said that two of the witnesses came to Court obviously intimidated, and were afraid to tell the truth. The evidence was circumstantial, but he (the Justice) thought that it was convincing. In Carrick's case he dismissed the charge, but advised him to get some decent work, and he ordered him to find bail himself in £10 and two solvent sureties of £10 each, failing which to go to gaol for a month.

He convicted Kelly and granted a remand in custody till next Wednesday to enable Mr. Good to consult his client.

Woman Attacked.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

DOWNPATRICK, Monday.

AT the Down Assizes to-day William H. Blakely, Portadown, pleaded guilty to having, on December 1, while armed with an offensive weapon, assaulted, with intent to rob, an aged woman, Elizabeth Armstrong, of Coolsallagh.

Dr. Henry Carlisle, in answer to Mr. J. Williamson, K.C., Senior Crown Prosecutor, said that he had examined the woman on the day she had been attacked, and found her suffering from shock. She had a wound an inch and a half long on the head, near her right ear. The wound went down to the bone, which was bare. She had another wound an inch long on the right forehead, and the bone also was bare in that case. She had other minor injuries. Next day when he saw the woman her eyes were blackened above and below. She was unconscious, and her heart was in a poor state. She was a woman of seventy, residing by herself. She was in danger of her life for five or six days after the assault, and was altogether eight weeks in hospital.

Mr. Justice Wilson, in passing sentence, said that the prisoner had undoubtedly gone to the woman's house to rob her, and had assaulted her with a stave from her garden and very nearly killed her. The least sentence he could impose was twelve months' imprisonment with hard labour.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND.

In connection with the dispute between beet growers in the Free State and the Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company regarding the price of beet in the coming season, it was learned yesterday that the whole matter is now under consideration in Belgium.—(Page 7.)

At the opening of the Down Assizes yesterday the trial of Francis Morrison and Gerald Kennedy, of the tramp class, was fixed for to-morrow. They are charged with the murder of Miss Ellen Maguire, an aged woman, at Drumadoney, near Dromara, on February 27 last.—(Page 5.)

At the stated general meeting of the Royal Irish Academy in Dublin yesterday, Dr. R. Lloyd Praeger was elected President in the room of Professor Macalister, whose term of office had expired.—(Page 4.)

Arrangements are now complete for the international clay pigeon shooting competitions to be held at Woodbrook, Bray, on Friday and Saturday.—(Page 8.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Government was defeated on the Representation of the People Bill in the House of Commons last night, the clause abolishing university representation being rejected by 246 votes to 242 votes.—(Page 7.)

The South Wales miners, at a delegate conference yesterday, resolved to ask for a national conference for the purpose of considering the low wages paid in the coalfields.—(Page 2.)

ABROAD.

The value of United States exports in the month of February last was the lowest recorded since November, 1914.—(Page 6.)

The use of light aircraft by the Prince of Wales and Prince George—who spent Sunday night on a big cattle ranch—has stimulated aeroplane sales at the British Empire Trade Exhibition in Buenos Aires.—(Page 6.)

SPORTING.

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets made a good start yesterday on the 21-day account. Industrial shares were prominent, with Columbias and Radios strong on merger rumours.—(Page 12.)

In connection with War Debt payments, credits in Lombard street were stringent, and overnight loans were charged 3 per cent. Discount rates were firmer. The bank received £250,000 in sovereigns from South Africa.—(Page 12.)

Dublin Market was busier, with mixed price changes. Exchange will be closed to-day.—(Page 13.)

Following a strong opening on New York Stock Exchange, a broad advance developed under the leadership of Utilities. The close was strong.—(Page 12.)

Germany and Poland.

Last Thursday the Seym, or Lower House, of Poland ratified the year-old Commercial Treaty with Germany, and so advanced one step towards the settlement of Central European unrest. The ratification was not accomplished, as The Times remarks, with any show of enthusiasm, even on the part of the Minister who introduced the bill. When the Treaty was signed a year ago there was considerable opposition among important interests on both sides of the frontier. Only a few days after the signature the Reichstag raised its customs duties on imported agricultural products—an act which did not help to convince Polish exporters of Germany's good faith—and it is preparing a further increase. Nevertheless, the impulse towards agreement has prevailed so far as the Seym is concerned, and there is every expectation that the Senate will follow its example. Whether Poland or Germany will benefit to any large extent does not matter. The point is that, whereas since the War there has been no commercial contact between the countries, the complete ratification of the Treaty will authorise such contact. A succession of similar contacts in process of time can do much to establish good feeling, that eventually will enable the real subjects of contention to be tackled in a reasonable spirit. To this end we must hope that, when the matter of ratification comes before the Reichstag, it will reciprocate Poland's overture.

Still more will be accomplished if the German-Polish Liquidation Agreement, now under discussion at Warsaw, is ratified. Its terms are designed to simplify outstanding issues between the signatories. The two Governments agree to renounce all financial claims arising out of the War and the transference of German territory to Poland; and Poland, in addition, waives her right to liquidate German estates and expropriate German owners in the Corridor. If such an agreement had been made years ago, a great deal of tension might have been averted. The agreement under discussion is not directly the work of Marshal Pilsudski, who was not in office when it was signed. Nevertheless, its ratification, if accomplished, will be a consequence of his efforts. Although by no means well-disposed to Germany, he seems to maintain that the liquidation of debts will be to the advantage of Poland and will promote a somewhat easier situation in Europe. With the weight of his authority added to the supporters of ratification, the agreement stands at least a reasonable chance of success. Yet a strong party in Poland is opposed to concert with Germany on any matter whatever; and the Nationalists of the Corridor know that the agreement will deprive them of a share in the once German estates.

The German people's sentiment in regard to German co-operation with Poland is no less divided than that of the Poles. In both countries, while the Governments are anxious for harmony of some sort, a large and influential section of the people refuses to permit any attempt to make relations easier. On the German side opposition to the Commercial Treaty is represented mainly by the agrarian interests, while the "Nazis" resent the Liquidation Agreement. It is somewhat difficult to understand why the latter dislike an arrangement that will afford a stronger safeguard against the oppression of German minorities in Poland than any hitherto proposed. Yet sentiment without reason is a strong feature of the "Nazi" character. Fortunately, Germany has a Hindenburg, even as Poland has a Pilsudski; and it is likely that the action of these two strong men will just turn the balance in favour of agreement. The two Governments apparently are determined on a policy of co-operation, in which they see the only remedy for Central Europe's economic ills. We hope that their efforts will bear fruit. The German-Polish Liquidation Agreement would mark a long step towards a settlement of the German minority's troubles in the Corridor. The whole matter of minorities in the partitioned areas requires consideration; for while difficulties exist Europe's peace is in constant danger.

The Indian Princes.

It is impossible to forecast exactly the rôle that the various factions and castes will play in the framing of India's future; but, whatever may befall, there can be no doubt that the part of the native princes will not be insignificant. During the last twelve months they have maintained a watching brief on behalf of their own interests, and they have committed themselves only to a general acceptance of the policy of federation. Their silent power has been recognised by the Imperial Government, as is shown by the second of the five safeguards upon which it insists before any concessions to the Congress Party can be granted. "The inviolable rights of the princes," runs the condition, "corresponding to their pledges of inviolable loyalty to their Imperial head," must be secured. This loyalty has not been deficient for at least a hundred years; indeed, to-day the native States can give points to the Presidencies in so far as internal order is concerned. No episodes such as those which have occurred in Bombay, Calcutta and Sholapur have troubled their police; Swaraj has not raised its head. Yesterday at New Delhi the Viceroy opened the annual session of the Chamber of Princes, and signalised the occasion with a homily on the merits of financial rectitude. His advice was good and, perhaps, timely, since in the present crisis it would be most unfortunate if some palace scandal should furnish the enemy with fuel for the fires of his suspicions. Lord Irwin urged that every ruler's personal expenditure should not exceed the requirements of his necessary dignity, so that a larger sum might be available for the development of the State's resources. Such words are not altogether superfluous; for in certain States no clear demarcation exists between the Rajah's privy purse and the State's revenue. Nevertheless, the evil is very much smaller than usually is supposed, and in several of the more enlightened States it is wholly absent. The wonder is that, where it occurs, it is not greater. Until recent years the theory that the revenues of a country were not the personal property of the monarch was unknown in the East. It is much to the credit of the princes, therefore, that they have learned an entirely new and rather unpalatable lesson so quickly. What might have happened to the finances—and what may happen—in an India governed by a Hindu bureaucracy does not bear contemplation. Referring to the anxious days that lie ahead, the Viceroy urged the need for a "genuine spirit of compromise and concession." Hitherto the princes have not been found wanting even to their own hindrance; and no desire to placate clamorous elements should tempt the central authority to strain their loyalty too far.

French Railways.

France's 25,000 miles of railway are under State control, and are partitioned among six great companies. The Government, which owns about one-third of the invested capital, will become, some twenty years hence, the absolute proprietor of the various systems. It has the right to fix fares and charges and to determine proposals for new mileage. Recent critics in the Chamber demanded a stiffening of State control on the ground that the railways were managed badly, and five of the six companies have addressed a protest to the Minister of Public Works. Denying the charges of bad management, they say that the railways are hampered on all sides by the State's interference. If they are run at a loss, the blame lies with the Governments which compel them to increase working expenses without any proportionate increase of rates; these expenses have increased eleven times since 1913. In their desire to help industry and agriculture French Governments have reduced passenger rates, which to-day are lower by one-third than those before the War, and have checked the increase of goods rates. The railways pay large taxes, and must give privileged rates to military, post office and suburban traffic. "These charges," say the five companies, "might have been admissible when the railways enjoyed a monopoly, but now that they are in competition with other means of transport, less taxed, less restricted and without obligations, they are no longer tolerable." Furthermore, the French companies complain that their efforts to reduce costs, consistently with the security and regularity of services, "have been neutralised by the action of the Chamber in voting higher wages for the railwaymen, further paid holidays, larger pensions and a seven-hour day." Such fruits of nationalisation in France deserve careful study by Irishmen. The Irish railways, with all their troubles, are fairly efficient now. If the State adopts them, they will become the prey of rival vote-hunters in Parliament, and their soaring costs will be a heavy burden on the taxpayer. Yet, unless the Government intervenes quickly to save them from an unjust, uneconomic and chaotic rivalry, the Free State railways must collapse into nationalisation.

Carency's Bell.

If, during the Great War, the British troops regarded the Ypres sector as their supreme trust, while Verdun held this honoured position in French eyes, the sector about Carency, Souchez and Notre Dame de Lorette saw the highest flights of British and French heroism. For many months the heap of rubble which was Souchez was pointed out, though, perhaps, untruthfully, by soldiers as the "flattest" village of the line; and, even on a "quiet" day, those who were compelled to cross the Zouave Valley trod, like Agag, delicately, with their ears attuned to catch the first whine of the almost inevitable shell. Across these places at various times each army fought at least one bloody battle, and in this sector, in the attack on the Vimy ridge, the famous creeping barrage made its historic début. Thus, though thirteen years have passed, the news that the villagers of Carency—and, indeed, of the whole neighbourhood—will assemble with fitting ceremonial next Sunday to attend the re-installation of the village's famous bell in its belfry sounds strangely incongruous to those who knew Carency in the War. A deputation from the Paris Municipal Council and a guard of a hundred old soldiers from the district will be present, and, perhaps, the spirits of many others, alive and dead, will be there as well. Since its removal to safety in the early days of the German invasion, the bell has been lying in the Petit Palais, in Paris. More fortunate than many of its fellows, it has escaped the final indignity of transmutation into war material for the enemy. Intact and honourable, it can resume its peaceful calls in its old home.

MR. SNOWDEN'S OPERATION.

BUDGET SPEECH HOPES.

Mr. Philip Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, underwent an operation at his home, Eden Lodge, Tilford, Surrey, yesterday, and the following official bulletin was issued:—

"An operation for drainage of the bladder was performed on Mr. Snowden this afternoon by Sir John Thomson-Walker. The operation was very successful, and was well borne by the patient, who is now resting quietly."

Mr. Snowden has been suffering from cystitis, following an attack of influenza.

Mrs. Snowden said to a reporter last night: "I am very happy and satisfied, and I am hoping that he will soon be about again. If he progresses as well as he has done up to the present, there is no doubt that he will be quite recovered in time to make his Budget speech."

A Versailles message through Reuter's Agency states that the gendarmerie of two Departments are on the watch for a prisoner who has escaped from Evreux Prison. He was recently sentenced to penal servitude for life for killing his wife.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

RATES IN RATHMINES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Will Mrs. Kettle or someone in authority say who is liable in Rathmines area for payment of the threatened increase in rates—tenant or landlord? Many occupiers are tenants free of all rates and taxes, but, under the Rent Restriction Acts, have to pay increased rent plus the increase in rates since 1914. Further, the Electricity Supply Board has captured the surplus of the electricity undertaking in the district. The Board has refunded in some cases the amount of deposit, without interest promised, to the consumer, which surplus should in all fairness be used for the benefit of the residents in the old township. House rent is now increased—sometimes by 100%—on that of 1914. When will the Government set up a fair rents board?—Yours, etc.,

"TENANT."

Dublin, March 16th, 1931.

BRAMBLING AND STOAT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The brambling is fairly common in this district. Though it is seldom seen in daylight, if I go through clumps of laurels at night with a light, I always see numbers of them roosting. They come sometimes to pick seeds where threshing refuse is thrown out, but not often.

I have seen the statement twice lately in the Irish Times that stoats do their hunting at night. This is against my experience of stoats, and I am well acquainted with them for nearly sixty years. I believe that they rarely begin their hunting till the dew is off the grass, and leave off as soon as the grass is wet with the evening dew. I have been in the fields a good deal at night, and, whenever I heard a rabbit or a rat in distress, I never found a stoat to be the cause or saw a stoat hunting. The reason probably is that, being so small, they would get all wet and perished at night, and would be in more danger of losing their prey to cats, dogs, foxes, badgers, etc.—all night-hunters. I wonder if there are two varieties of stoats. I believe that there is a large species which usually goes in large packs, and a small variety which goes usually in pairs.—Yours, etc.,

W. J. NASH.

Fardrum, Athlone, March 16th, 1931.

WEASELS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your correspondent is correct in stating that weasels are extinct in Ireland. The carnivores found in all parts of the island are really stoats, and it is a common error to call them weasels, although they are closely related, and very similar in their habits. However, they are easily distinguished, the weasel's body being only about eight inches in length, whereas the body of the stoat at maturity is frequently twice as much. The former's tail is between two and three inches long, whereas the stoat's is from five to six, and ends in a black tip. Nevertheless, naturalists are generally agreed that they are two species of one genus—in fact, first cousins. Both are proverbial for their courage and tenacity, and I have had practical experience of their vindictiveness if they are unduly interfered with. When they mobilise for attack, as they sometimes do, they are no mean opponents for "feather weights."—Yours, etc.,

A CHALLENGE TO MR. BALDWIN

AND A CUTTING REPLY.

"TOO IMPUDENT TO DESERVE CONSIDERATION."

Mr. Baldwin made the following statement last night, after having seen the London evening newspapers:—

"I notice that Lord Rothermere has addressed his challenge, not to me, but to his own newspapers. That fact alone must throw doubt on its sincerity, and, of course, it is obvious enough that the challenge would never have been issued at all if there had been the remotest prospect of its acceptance.

"The idea that any member of the Conservative party, to say nothing of its present leader, should debate in public the question of the party leadership with a peer who, so far as he is anything, is a professing Liberal, is too impudent to deserve a moment's consideration. That question is not to be settled by any individual outside the party, however rich and influential, but by the whole body of Conservative members."

Earlier in the day the Press Association received from Lord Rothermere a statement in which Lord Rothermere declared that Mr. Baldwin had criticised his intervention in the St. George's by-election as the action of "an insolent and irresponsible plutocracy."

Lord Rothermere proceeded: "I, therefore, make the following proposal to Mr. Baldwin. I am prepared to meet him in open debate at any time after the end of next week. I suggest that this debate should take place in a public hall.

"The subject of our debate would, of course, be the policy, leadership and record of the Conservative party in the last eight years."

LORD ROTHERMERE'S COMMENT.

On being informed of Mr. Baldwin's reply, Lord Rothermere's comment was as follows:—

"Mr. Baldwin has run away.

"The idea that I am a Liberal is the invention of Mr. Baldwin for the purposes of this controversy.

"He did not call me a Liberal in 1924 when, thanks to the Zinovieff letter, the Daily Mail, under my direction, secured his return to office with the largest majority of any Prime Minister since 1832.

"Mr. Baldwin has funked the issue, as one of his most intimate associates told me to-day he would."

PRINCES' NIGHT ON AN ESTANCIA.

ROYAL FLIGHT HELPS TO SELL 'PLANES.

FROM THE PRESS ASSOCIATION'S SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.
BUENOS AIRES, Monday.

Refreshed by their invigorating air journey from this city and a restful night in the soothing quiet of the La Marion Estancia, where they were the guests last night of Mr. Carlos Brown, the famous cattle breeder, the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, resumed their flight this morning, and arrived at 4.14 this afternoon at Cordoba, where they will spend two days with friends before returning on Thursday for a final visit to Buenos Aires.

That the Princes' use of light passenger aircraft has impressed Argentina is evident from the fact that within a few hours of the public being admitted to the British Empire Trade Exhibition, which the Prince of Wales opened on Saturday, three sales, aggregating nearly £3,000 in value, had been concluded at the De Haviland stand, the sales including two actual show machines, a Gipsy Moth and a Puss Moth.

The two Princes arrive back here on Thursday evening, and will bid farewell to the Argentine capital on Saturday, when they leave for a short stay at Monte Video. There they will join the liner, Alcantara, en route to Rio de Janeiro.

BIG DECLINE IN U.S. EXPORTS.

LOWEST RECORD SINCE THE YEAR 1914.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

There was a startling decline in the value of United States exports in the month of February—226.000,000 dollars, the lowest recorded since November, 1914.

Imports for February totalled 175.000.000 dollars, the lowest since September, 1921. The February imports in 1930 were 281,707,000 dollars.

LONDON LETTER.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

St. Patrick's Day will be celebrated in London to-morrow with much of the usual enthusiasm. There will be no distribution of shamrock to the Irish Guards in London this year, since the regiment is at Windsor Castle, where the Earl of Cavan will deputise for Princess Mary, Countess of Harewood, though the Princess herself will send the shamrock. The main religious celebration will be at St. Patrick's Church, Soho, where Cardinal Bourne will preside over a Service, and there will be celebrations in a number of Anglican churches. It will be the evening, however, that will see the gayest side of the celebration; for some thousands of guests will attend dinners given by the Union of Four Provinces Club at the Mayfair Hotel, the National University of Ireland Club at Grosvenor House, and the Irish Club at Park Lane Hotel. The Benevolent Society of St. Patrick will hold its annual meeting in the morning at the Hotel Metropole, and the afternoon will be marked by the At Home to be given by Mrs. J. W. Dulanty, wife of the Free State High Commissioner, at Piccadilly House. The concerts and dances at night will be manifold. Sir James Cooper, of Belfast, will take the chair at the St. Patrick's dinner of the Irish Club to-morrow, in place of Sir John Lavery, who is unable to be present.

The Impending Budget.

The brilliant weather of the past three days prompted members of the House of Commons to-day to talk of the Easter holidays, which they fear will be on the short side. An early return to Westminster will be necessary, since the Budget must be taken before the end of April, and it is expected, for some unexplained reason, that the debates on the consequent Finance Bill will be unusually prolonged. It is now accepted generally that Mr. Snowden will be unable to make a Budget speech, though the Prime Minister, I understand, clings to the hope that he will be recovered sufficiently to do so. At all events, Mr. William Graham is preparing to take his place. In financial circles there is an opinion that the deficit on the Budget this year will not be so heavy as has been anticipated hitherto, since revenue is coming in more freely than appeared possible a few weeks ago.

America and the Naval Agreement.

Senator Dwight Morrow, of New Jersey, who arrived in England to-day, is visiting Europe on a brief holiday; but since his departure from Washington there have been developments in which he has been required to act with General Dawes, the United States Ambassador in London, in discussing the position of his country in connection with the Franco-Italian naval agreement. When the liner in which Mr. Morrow was a passenger was nearing Europe, he was asked to interrupt his holiday in order to clear up uncertainties concerned with the extension of the Three-Power Naval Treaty into a five-Power agreement. The Franco-Italian agreement is not strictly in accordance with the principles of the Three-Power Treaty, but efforts are being made to include the modifications by treating them as separate obligations.

The Labour Independents.

If the Independent Labour Party section of the Parliamentary Labour Party were to proceed with its plan to organise itself as a separate body with its own whips, Mr. Macdonald's difficulties would be increased, and the time when British politics would resemble those of the Continent in containing numerous, comparatively small groups, would be brought nearer. The I.L.P., as a detached group under the chairmanship of Mr. Maxton, acting with the present Government on some subjects and opposing it on others, would compel the adoption of a more definitely socialistic programme. The speedy downfall of Mr. Macdonald's Administration would follow, unless the Liberals as a body were to identify themselves definitely with extreme measures.

Tourists from Scandinavia.

Before leaving England, the party of representatives of travel agencies from Norway, Sweden, Finland, and Denmark who have been here on a visit expressed their warm appreciation of the welcome and hospitality given them. It was a matter of regret that they were unable to accept scores of invitations during their three days' stay to visit other parts of the British Isles, but they assure those interested that they are more than ever convinced that Great Britain and Ireland are countries to which they can send Scandinavian clients with confidence. For some of the representatives it was their first visit to England, and they greatly enjoyed the experience. At one of the luncheons to which they were entertained in the West End, the organisers followed the Scandinavian custom of serving the hors d'œuvres in a separate room before the meal. This seems to have been a novelty to the English guests, but it is not so long ago since a great restaurant was opened in the Strand, where scores of varieties of hors d'œuvres were placed in a room leading to the dining hall in order that guests could walk round and help themselves.

Landing Fields.

The Royal Institute of British Architects, in its first interim report regarding landing fields for aeroplanes, states that such places ought to be at intervals of not more than twenty miles. Otherwise the country cannot be considered adequately equipped for the flying of the next ten years. In this connection, expert opinion in the United States agrees that a minimum of ten miles is desirable. The Committee has inspected a great number of English and foreign aerodromes, and points out the backwardness of this country, not only in regard to the provision of landing grounds, but also in town-planning and the architectural aspects of the position. Immediate action is urged. The Committee maintains that the community ought to secure at least a reservation of a large number of aerodrome sites as a matter of vital and immediate urgency. Britain's chief aerodromes ought to give a good first impression to travellers from abroad, but at present a cursory view of nearly all the civil aerodromes of this country show little but a series of large sheds, with steel or asbestos covering and wooden hut frames.

The King of Spain.

The King of Spain is looking remarkably well, and appears to be as active in his movements as usual. It is noticeable, however, that freedom of approach to the Spanish Monarch is not nearly as easy as it was, and he appears to be guarded and surrounded by a number of British and Spanish guards. The King, whose main reason for coming to London is to visit Princess Beatrice, will be present at an evening party at the Spanish Embassy on Wednesday, and next week he will attend a reception to be given for him at the Spanish Club. A most enthusiastic reception has been given to him by the Spanish colony in London.

BRITISH GOVERNMENT AGAIN DEFEATED.

COMMONS VOTE IN FAVOUR OF UNIVERSITY SEATS.

MAJORITY OF 4 AGAINST PROPOSED ABOLITION.

ELECTORAL REFORM BILL MAY BE ABANDONED.

THE Government was defeated in the House of Commons last night on the Committee stage of the Representation of the People Bill.

The defeat occurred on the clause proposing to abolish university representation. The figures were:—

AGAINST THE CLAUSE	246
FOR THE CLAUSE	242
MAJORITY AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT	4

Mr. Lloyd George and most of the Liberals voted with the Government. On the figures being announced, the Conservative members demonstrated for some minutes, and prolonged cries of "Resign" were raised.

Immediately after the defeat of the Government, Mr. Baldwin asked the Prime Minister what course he proposed to take. The Premier replied that the matter would be considered before the bill was put down again for discussion.

CLAIMS OF QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY.

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Monday.

AFTER a tribute paid to the memory of Mr. Hartshorn, the late Privy Seal, by the leaders of all parties, the House resumed the consideration of the Representation of the People Bill in Committee, this being the third allotted day.

The Committee at once embarked upon the question whether Queen's University, Belfast, should retain its representation in the Imperial Parliament. Clause 4 abolishes the university vote, and one of its sections applies to the Queen's University, Belfast.

Major Ross (C., Londonderry) moved the omission of this section. The university seat was, he said, given to Northern Ireland by the Act of 1920, which reduced the membership of Northern Ireland from 29 to 13 members. They had hoped as the result of that sacrifice that their representation would not continue to be the plaything of British politics and that they would be left alone.

Colonel Sinclair, who represents Queen's University, seconded the amendment.

KEEPING FAITH.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, supporting, pointed out that it was not Ulster who sought a change in Parliamentary representation, but Great Britain, who begged them to acquiesce, moved by a desire to bring to a close a misunderstanding between Ireland and this country. The Ulster of to-day being the party which reluctantly acquiesced in the change, one had no right within the period of a few years to alter the representation to which they had agreed. (Opposition cheers.) He was one of those responsible for the arrangement in the Act of 1920, and he desired to keep faith with those with whom a consecrated bargain had been made.

Mr. Ian Macpherson (Lib., Ross and Cromarty) held that Belfast University was entitled to retain its representation.

Mr. Clynes, replying for the Government, said the Act of 1920 never contemplated absolutely permanent representation in that House of university constituencies. If they once adopted a system whereby something done could never be undone they could never enjoy a condition of freedom. It was preposterous to argue that, however much they wanted to change the university representation of England, Wales and Scotland, there must be no interference with the position in Northern Ireland. Queen's University had an electorate of only 3,300 and was represented in the Imperial Parliament in a dual sense.

Sir Samuel Hoare contended that the House was under a moral obligation to carry out the bargain which was come to with Ulster.

THE LIBERAL VIEW.

Sir H. Samuel said that Ulster was given thirteen members in a Parliament of 615. She now asked to retain that representation in a House of 604 members. There was no question of breaking a bargain. If this amendment was carried the arrangement would be modified to the advantage of Northern Ireland as against Great Britain. It was not reasonable to argue that Queen's University seat should be the only one left.

Sir Stafford Cripps argued that the university seat was introduced by an amendment to the Act of 1920, and could not, therefore, be said to be part of a bargain.

Mr. D. D. Reid said that from his personal knowledge it was part of the bargain.

The amendment, on a division, was defeated by 178 votes to 168, a Government majority of ten. The figures were received with Opposition cheers.

LORD HUGH CECIL.

On the motion that the clause stand part of the bill, Lord Hugh Cecil said that university representation was being attacked in deference to a political theory—the theory of equalitarian democracy. (Laughter.) Voting was not a right; it was a public function. No one had any more right to be a voter than he had to be a policeman or a judge or a Prime Minister. (Laughter.) There was only one good argument for anybody having a vote, and that w the public interest.

The university electorate was composed of a body of people who were common to the realm. From that electorate came leaders of the people, and it was well known that no revolution had ever been successful which had not been led by the professional classes. (Laughter.) They were an essential part of the public voice who went to the making up of that mysterious thing called public opinion and should not be shut out. (Opposition cheers.) He invited the House to reject the clause.

The Home Secretary defended the clause. It was not right, in his opinion, that one section of men should have two votes whilst their fellows had only one. University representation was a privilege which could no longer be endured, and the time for a change had come.

There followed the representatives of the Scottish, Cambridge, and Oxford Universities, all of whom urged the retention of the University seats. Mr. John Buchan said that whilst on certain matters he would take the views of a border shepherd against all the professors of Europe, there were certain spheres of knowledge which demanded special representation in the House.

Mr. Cowen contended that education demanded, and deserved, special recognition. Sir John Withers protested that the main reason for abolishing the University vote was that the University members did not agree with the Socialist party, and Sir Charles Oman stressed the independence of the University members. They were specialists elected by specialists.

Sir Herbert Samuel, opposing the retention of the University vote, said that University seats were the present-day pocket boroughs of the professional classes.

Mr. Baldwin said he desired to intervene in the debate, not so much as leader of the Opposition, but as one who had enjoyed the signal honour of having been elected by all parties to the high office of Chancellor both of Cambridge and St. Andrew's Universities.

Proceeding, he said that ever since the creation of the Labour party there had been no more prominent feature in its programme than the demand for higher education, and with that demand he entirely sympathised. There was nothing more worthy and nothing which excited his admiration more than a fight of the men who sought to make good the lack of learning which had been denied to them in their early days. People in ever increasing numbers were seeking a University education, and the Universities, for their part, were trying to make it easier for people who had brains to make use of them.

It was because this desire for a higher standard of education was increasing that the Universities would play a great part in the future, and it was a little mean to take advantage of this bill to disfranchise them. To retain the University representation would redound to the credit of the Labour party.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood said that as a university voter he was unrepentant in his attitude towards the clause. Nothing had been said which really touched the fundamentals of the problem. People who had left a university forty years ago had no moral right to speak for that university, and some of the most stupid people he had known had been men of learning. The Conservatives were anxious to retain every shred of privilege, because they dare not trust the people. No one would convince him that by giving a graduate a vote they were doing anything for education.

THE DIVISION.

The result of the division, which was taken on the question that the clause stand part of the bill, was a defeat for the Government.

As the tellers approached the table it was seen that the Government were defeated, and Conservative members rose in a body and loudly cheered. Order papers and hats were waved, and as Sir F. Thomson, one of the Opposition tellers, made an attempt to read out the figures his voice was drowned in a fresh outburst.

When at last the Chairman Sir Robert Young) secured a semblance of calm, the figures were announced as follows:—

For the rejection of the clause...	246
Against	242
Opposition majority......	4

Another demonstration followed the reading of the figures, and cries of "Resign" were flung across the floor of the House.

Mr. Baldwin rose to ask the Prime Minister what course he proposed to take, and suggested that, all things considered, it would be better to put an end to the bill.

The Prime Minister replied that the matter would be considered. He would not say more than that. The matter would be considered before the bill was put down again.

The debate was then adjourned.

BILL MAY BE ABANDONED.

FROM A LOBBY CORRESPONDENT.

In the division on which the Government was defeated Mr. Lloyd George and most of the Liberals voted with the Government. Liberals who voted with the Conservatives included Sir John Simon, Sir Robert Hutchison, Dr. Morris Jones, Colonel England and Mr. James Duncan Millar, K.C.

The Labour attendance was considerably below normal for an important occasion. In addition to this disadvantage from the point of view of the Government's safety, some Labour members who were present abstained from voting. Two Labour members—Major A. G. Church, M.P. for Central Wandsworth, and Colonel Wedgwood, M.P. for Newcastle-under-Lyme—voted against the Government.

The Government's defeat caused much excitement. Ministers may now be expected to consider very seriously whether the bill should be proceeded with. The bill has never made any great appeal to Labour sympathies. Its main provision is the alternative vote, which attracts support from most of the Liberals, and other clauses deal with the abolition of plural voting and university representation, the reduction of election expenses, and the regulation of the use of motor vehicles at elections.

Since the withdrawal of the Trade Disputes Bill because of the insertion of a Liberal amendment to the illegal strike clause, Labour voting in divisions on the Electoral Reform Bill has reflected the absence of enthusiasm for this measure on the Labour benches. It will not be surprising if the Government solves its difficulties by abandoning the bill.

THE SENATE AND DAIL.

PROGRAMMES FOR THIS WEEK.

THE TOWN TENANTS AND TRAFFIC BILLS.

FROM OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

GOVERNMENT Buildings in Merrion street and Leinster House will be closed for the national holiday. At about five o'clock this evening President Cosgrave will send another radio message to America.

His address on Sunday last went over very successfully, and numerous cables received at Government Buildings yesterday from places as far apart as New York, Brooklyn, Chicago, Indianopolis all testified to the excellent reception of the message, as well as of Mr. Sterling's introductory speech.

THE SENATE.

To-morrow both the Senate and the Dail will sit. The Senate, in addition to the motion to be proposed by Sir John Keane regarding the relations of the Local Government Ministry with the local administrative bodies, will have for consideration a series of bills, including the Hairdressers' Bill, second reading; Limerick Harbour Bill, report; Agricultural Bill, committee; Aliens Restriction Bill, committee; Courts of Justice Bill, report; Public Health (Special Expenses) Bill, report; Dublin Poor Relief Bill, report; Defence Forces (Temporary Provisions) Bill, report; Legitimacy Bill, second stage.

In connection with the Agricultural Bill Senator Linehan has given notice of several amendments.

THE DAIL.

TOWN TENANTS BILL AT LAST.

In the Dail, after the Land Bill Committee stage has been disposed of, the House will be occupied for the most part of the week with the Vote on Account, upon which any number of topics may be raised.

It seems that deputies who have been anxiously inquiring for the Town Tenants Bill will at last have their curiosity satisfied by the production of the measure, probably to-morrow.

From all that one hears about it there is every probability that the new bill will be far short of the comprehensive and far-reaching measure which some expected. It will, as already foreshadowed, deal with compensation for disturbance, under which head a very large number of items may be included; also it will deal with questions as to the renewal of leases, compensation for improvements, and will give better protection for business premises.

DECONTROL OF RENTS.

People who thought that it would deal with the decontrol of rents seem likely to be disappointed. My information is that it does not refer to rent control, rent restriction, or rent legislation in any form. Under present conditions and in the absence of further legislation complete decontrol of houses of lower valuation will occur automatically during the present year. Houses of higher valuation have already been decontrolled.

Many had hoped that the new bill would continue control, but apparently the Government thinks that decontrol must come to an end some time, and that in the circumstances which now exist the ordinary law of supply and demand will tend to the stabilisation of rents at reasonable figures. Whether provision will be made for exceptional cases remains to be seen.

THE TRANSPORT BILL.

Notwithstanding statements to the contrary, it can be said that no progress has yet been made with the big Transport Bill which is to regulate the relations between railway and road transport and give relief to the railway companies in matters of unfair competition and in other respects. The subject has, of course, been considered by the Government in some of its aspects, and the heads of a scheme suggested by the Great Southern Company have been considered, but no advance towards a solution of a very difficult problem has yet been made.

"HUMILIATED" MINISTRY.

LABOUR TO DEMAND RESIGNATION.

NEW POLITICAL MOVE IN AUSTRALIA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

SYDNEY, Monday.

"No New South Wales body has the authority to expel me from the Labour movement. Mr. Lang's henchmen will finish like the chief priests of the French Revolution, by terrorising each other, and all will eventually go to the guillotine."

This was how Mr. Theodore, that stormy petrel of Australian politics, replied to-day to the announcement that the Metropolitan Labour Conference meeting at Sydney had unanimously expelled him from the party. The Conference disapproved of Mr. Theodore because of his opposition to the repudiation policy advocated by Mr. Lang.

The Canberra Correspondent of the Sydney Morning Herald states that a section of the Parliamentary Labour Party, believing that the Government's position is no longer tenable, will propose at to-morrow's meeting of the Caucus that the Government should resign. This section feels that the Ministry is only humiliated by remaining in office with the support of the Lang group.

ANOTHER RESIGNATION.

FROM "THE TIMES" CORRESPONDENT.

CANBERRA, Monday.

All observers are agreed that the days of the Scullin Ministry are numbered, and the only points on which they differ are how long the Ministry will stave off defeat, and what will be the manner of its passing.

To-day Mr. McGrath, Chairman of the Committees in the House of Representatives, announced his resignation from the Labour Party to throw in his lot with Mr. Lyons, who was acting Commonwealth Treasurer during Mr. Scullin's absence.

It was rumoured to-day that at the Labour Caucus to-morrow Mr. Scullin would resign and urge the party to leave the unpopular task of reconstruction to others. This rumour is discounted. The general belief is that Mr. Scullin's Ministry will retain office until it is defeated in Parliament or until the rejection of the fiduciary issue by the Senate enables it to seek a dissolution.

If the Ministry is compelled to resign and Mr. Latham is unable to give the Governor-General the necessary assurances, Mr. Lyons would be sent for. Mr. Lyons would accept the commission with the support of Mr. Latham.

The defection of Mr. McGrath has reduced the effective voting majority of the Ministry to three, making it even more dependent upon the favour of the frankly contemptuous and insolent Lang faction. Further resignations from the Party are feared, and it will be argued that to delay resignation will only further disintegrate the Party.

The trial began in Chicago yesterday of Leo Brothers, a St. Louis criminal leader, for the murder of Jake Lingle, a newspaper "crime reporter," in June last.

NATIONAL FESTIVAL.

HOW DUBLIN WILL SPEND THE DAY.

MILITARY PARADE IN THE CITY.

NUMEROUS SPORTING ATTRACTIONS.

TO-DAY the Feast day of Ireland's Patron Saint will be observed in the traditional manner in Dublin.

There will be no work anywhere, and banks, business houses, factories, workshops and Government departments will be closed for the day. It will be a "dry" day so far as the licensed trade is concerned.

IN THE CHURCHES.

There will be special Services in the various churches in the city and suburbs, and at St. Patrick's Cathedral and St. Andrew's Church, Suffolk street, there will be Services in the Irish language. The preacher in St. Andrew's will be the Rev. J. B. Shea, and traditional Irish hymns will be sung.

At the Pro-Cathedral, Marlborough street, there will be Masses from 5 a.m., and at 12 o'clock noon there will be Solemn High Mass preceded by the Office of Terce. The Archbishop of Dublin, Dr. Byrne, will preside, and after the first Gospel a sermon will be preached in the Irish language by the Rev. Father Canice, O.S.F.C.

MILITARY PARADE.

There will be the annual military parade through some of the principal streets of the city. The troops will start after 11 o'clock Mass on the square, Collins's Barracks, and the salute will be taken by the Minister for Defence at College Green at 1 o'clock.

Special excursion trains have been arranged on the Great Southern and Great Northern railways to enable excursionists to spend the day in different parts of the country. Those who like a sea-trip have a special excursion arranged between Dun Laoghaire and Holyhead on the London Midland and Scottish railway boat, with rail connections to North Welsh coast resorts. Many will no doubt make the trip.

RACING AND FOOTBALL.

Those who wish to spend the day in the city or the immediate surroundings have an attractive programme from which to choose. For racing folk there is an excellent card at Baldoyle—the first day of a two-days' meeting. No doubt the popular seaside course will attract its wonted large attendance.

Dog lovers will have a gala day at Ballsbridge, where, beginning at nine o'clock in the morning, the Irish Kennel Club's Dog Show will be held. It is always a largely attended function; and this year will be as well patronised as ever.

Of football there is a very full programme. All the codes have special fare. At Lansdowne road Rugby followers will have a couple of keen ties to watch in the Leinster Senior Cup.

At Croke Park the finals of the G.A.A. Railway Cups are sure to draw a very big "gate" to see the selected of Connaught and Munster in the hurling final, and Leinster and Munster in the football final. Trains from all parts of the Free State will bring thousands of enthusiasts to cheer on their teams.

FREE STATE SHIELD.

Under the Association code there are several engagements in the Free State Shield, any one of which will repay watching, though possibly the majority of the crowd will make their way to Harold's Cross for the game between Dolphin and Waterford.

The day is an important one in hockey circles, and there is a full session, starting with the much-discussed game between Naas and Railway Union in the Senior Cup final at Park avenue at 11.30. The Mills' Cup final between Wicklow and Three Rock Rovers will be played at Londonbridge road, whilst the Intermediate and Minor Cup finals and the Railway Cup final will be staged at Claremont road.

The programme is full of variety and interest for the day's pleasure, and all that is required is a spell of good weather.

GANDHI MEETING IN AN UPROAR.

COMMUNISTS HOIST RED FLAG.

SHOUTS OF "DOWN WITH CONGRESS."

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BOMBAY, Monday.

A handful of members of the "Red Flag Union" created an uproar this evening when Mr. Gandhi addressed a large public meeting in the mill area.

Before his arrival, rowdies of the "Red Flag Union" forced their way into the meeting, mounted the rostrum, pulled down the Congress flag, and hoisted the Red Flag in its place. All these operations were accompanied by shouts of "Down with Congress" and "Down with Gandhi!"

Congress volunteers later succeeded in reinstating the Congress flag.

Mr. Gandhi, amid continual interruption from the Red Flag supporters, said that Congress would stand by the Lahore independence resolution, which would be reiterated at the Karachi Congress. He added that a clear mandate would be given to Congress leaders attending the Round Table Conference that they should accept no scheme of independence which did not contain the substance of independence.

RELIGIOUS RIOTING.

Riotous scenes occurred yesterday at Nasik, when the "war" between caste Hindus and "Untouchables" was revived over the demand of the "Untouchables" to be admitted to the Temple of Kalaram. Five thousand "Untouchables," according to The Times of India, resorted to passive resistance, lying on the ground in the temple courtyard, and fighting ensued, in which several persons were injured by stones.

An armed guard has now been placed at the temple gates.

A similar agitation took place last year, and was only suspended through the intervention of the leaders of both sections.

POLICE OFFICAL SHOT.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CHITTAGONG, Monday.

Sasanka Bhattacharjee, an assistant sub-inspector in the Criminal Investigation Department, was shot at to-day in the village of Barema, twenty miles from here. He was taken to hospital, where he was found to have been wounded in the abdomen. His condition is precarious.

A Reuter message from Marseilles states that eight passengers of the Paris to Ventimiglia express were slightly injured by broken glass in an accident a few miles beyond Marseilles yesterday. The express was passing a goods train when one of the waggons of the latter train became derailed and swung into the side of the coaches. All the injured persons were able to continue their journey after receiving first aid.

SEALING VESSEL BLOWS UP.

LOSS OF TWENTY LIVES.

SURVIVORS HUDDLED ON ICE FLOES.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, Monday.

The Viking, a fifty-year-old sealer, commanded by Captain Abram Keen, with a crew of 138, two stowaways and several cinema camera operators on board, has blown up at sea eight miles east of Horse Island, White Bay, with the loss of twenty lives.

Some of the survivors who have reached Horse Island report that their comrades are marooned on ice floes and that the Viking is a complete wreck.

The wireless operator on Horse Island says that the burning ship was visible from the shore and that he could see the survivors huddled together on the ice. It is believed that it will be exceedingly difficult for them to land, as the heavy ice is swept by an off-shore wind.

One of the passengers on board the Viking is Mr. Varick F. Rissel, a film director. He was engaged with several camera-men in taking pictures for a film depicting the adventurous life on board a sealer.

The Viking left St. John's with eight others on March 9th.

A message reporting the loss of the boat was read in the Newfoundland House of Assembly by the Prime Minister, Sir Richard Squires.

Horse Island is about twenty miles from Lewisporte, whence the only method of transport to Cape St. John, the nearest railway station, is by dog team.

According to the latest details the Viking disaster was due to an explosion of gunpowder, which blew off the stern of the vessel and inflicted heavy casualties among both officers and passengers.

FIFTY SURVIVORS.

Later.

Fifty survivors from the ill-fated sealer, Viking, have now reached the shore of Horse Island.

They are unable to give a coherent story of the disaster. It is supposed that the explosion was caused while the crew were filling tins with the powder used to blast openings through the ice-floes, and that a spark from a pipe fell among the 25-pound iron powder kegs. Everybody in the cabin was hurled overboard and killed.

The possibility of the relief ships reaching the scene in time to save the injured and others still among the ice-floes is doubtful. A north-east gale, with snow and intense frost, prevails in the locality.

RESCUE STEAMER ON WAY.

NEW YORK, Monday.

Messrs. Bowring Bros., Ltd., the owners of the sealer Viking, state that they have received the following message from their St. John's (Newfoundland) office:—

"The explosion occurred on board the Viking at 9 p.m. on Sunday, eight miles east of Horse Island, White Bay. Men are walking ashore on ice floes and report about twenty dead. All the crew have not yet landed.

"A steamer, with doctors and nurses, etc., has been despatched to her assistance. Little information is available at present."

CARDINAL MAFFI DEAD.

VICTIM OF SEVERE INFLUENZA.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PISA, Tuesday.

The death is announced of Cardinal Maffi.

It was Cardinal Maffi who performed the marriage ceremony of the Prince of Piedmont and the Princess Marie José of Belgium. The Cardinal had a severe attack of influenza last month, and after a partial recovery suffered a relapse.

The Pope, who was kept continually informed of the progress of the Cardinal's illness, had sent Cardinal Maffi his special Benediction. Extreme Unction was again administered yesterday at a moment when the illness was at its worst. The Cardinal, declaring that he wished to show by his example the necessity of taking the Sacrament in time, got up, put on his purple robes and received Extreme Unction kneeling before an improvised altar in the sick-room.

TERMS OFFERED TO BEET-GROWERS.

Dr. Addison, Minister of Agriculture, stated in the House of Commons yesterday that the companies of the Anglo-Dutch group of beet sugar factories had declared that they were prepared to operate their factories for the manufacture of white sugar from home-grown beet in the 1931 season, not for the purpose of making profits or increasing their reserves, but in order to utilise the whole net proceeds in payments to farmers. No charge would be made for depreciation, for directors' fees or for salary increases. Growers would receive from these companies during the season payments on account at 30s. per clean ton of beet of 15½ per cent. sugar content.

Additional payment would be made if the markets justified it. The reserves of the five companies of the Anglo-Dutch group amounted to £1,046,845.

Dr. Addison added that the terms offered to growers of beet by those factories that had accepted the Government offer provided a firm price of 38s. per ton for beet of 15½ per cent. sugar content.

ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY'S HEALTH.

The Ecclesiastical Correspondent of the Daily Telegraph writes:—Unless there is unforeseen delay, the Archbishop of Canterbury will begin his Mediterranean cruise with Mr. Pierpont Morgan on the yacht Corsair to-day. A great deal depends upon the voyage, for I have good authority for stating that His Grace has been taking into serious consideration the question of resigning his See. If he does not feel at the end of a reasonable convalescence, such as that upon which he is now embarking, that there is good prospect of his being able to resume the full discharge of his responsibilities he is resolved to follow the precedent, unique in English ecclesiastical history, set by his immediate predecessor.

THE IRISH SUGAR BEET DISPUTE.

MATTER UNDER CONSIDERATION IN BELGIUM.

HURRIED CONFERENCES HELD IN DUBLIN.

FROM OUR AGRICULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

CARLOW, Monday.

WHEN asked to-day if there was any fresh development regarding the price of sugar beet for 1931, an official of the Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company, Ltd., replied: "I have nothing to say at the moment. The whole matter is now under consideration in Belgium, where one of the Irish directors and some officers of the company have gone to interview the promoters with a view to having the disagreement settled."

It was subsequently learned that the directors of the company had been in conference with Dr. Hinchcliffe, of the Department of Agriculture, in Dublin last Saturday, and that following this meeting they left for Belgium, where the whole position will be reviewed in the light of existing conditions. It had been the intention of the company's representatives to meet the Executive of the Irish Beet Growers' Association yesterday, but this arrangement was cancelled because of the decision of the company's Irish representatives to go to Belgium. They are expected home on Thursday or Friday next.

CALLED TO DUBLIN.

Meanwhile, a Committee meeting of the Irish Beet Growers' Association was held in Carlow yesterday, when an urgent message was received from Dr. Hinchcliffe, summoning the chairman, secretary and members of the Executive to a conference at the offices of the Department of Agriculture. When I attended at the offices of the Irish Beet Growers' Association here to receive a statement, I was informed that Mr. Fahy, the secretary, and certain members of the Executive had gone to Dublin as requested.

When seen last night, Mr. Fahy, secretary of the Irish Beet Growers' Association, stated: "For the moment, while we are expecting developments, we think it much better to say nothing."

THE COMPANY'S OFFER

BEET GROWERS' REPLY.

Following a Committee meeting of the Irish Beet Growers' Association, held in Carlow to-day, the appended statement was issued in reply to the Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company, Carlow, regarding the company's reduced offer for the 1931 beet crop. The price offered for this season's crop is 38s. for beet containing 15½ per cent. sugar, or 8s. per ton under last season's crop, "owing to the depressed state of the sugar market."

The Beet Growers' Association's statement reads:—

"There is no room for any doubt as to the inadequacy of the factory's offer when one scrutinises the full facts and figures. For the 1929-30 campaign, the factory paid 15 per cent. dividend and carried forward a balance of £6,000 odd, as well as writing off £40,000 for depreciation on premises and plant. In that year they manufactured 20,000 tons of sugar, and the price paid for beet was 46s. basic.

"Sugar has fallen £3 10s. per ton (Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company's figure) since, pulp has fallen £1 per ton (Beet Growers' Association estimate), which means that if the factory turn-out of the 1931 crop 20,000 tons of sugar at these present-day prices they will be short £82,000 as compared to 1929-30. To counteract this drop in price of their products they will receive in the form of cash subsidy from the Government £54,000 more for 1931 crop than they did for the 1929-30 campaign, which still will leave a deficit of £28,000.

"To obtain this deficit by reducing the price of beet and thus maintain their 15 per cent. dividends, it would be necessary to reduce the price of sugar beet by 3s. per ton. The Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company's proposal is to reduce the price by 8s., which would enable them to pay a dividend of well over 20 per cent. or to further enhance their huge reserves.

ROCK BOTTOM.

"During the dispute two years ago the Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company directors stated repeatedly that they were entitled to expect a 10 per cent. dividend and 10 per cent. depreciation, and by putting this into practice now it would leave available a further £20,000, which, together with their carry-over, would wipe out the deficiency of £28,000 mentioned above, and leave the price of beet unaltered.

"Sugar is generally believed to have reached the bottom as regards price, so that any rise in price during the next twelve months would be money found for the Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company.

"Though there is no necessity for comparing the recent settlement in England with an Irish one, we must comment on a recent statement made by the Irish Sugar Manufacturing Company in an attempt to justify their offer: That the 2 per cent. 'water tare' exists in England and does not exist here: that no freight allowance is given in England. Both these statements are incorrect. The 2 per cent. water tare does not exist in England. There is an arrangement whereby no beet grower in England has to pay more than 8s. freight.

THE ENGLISH RATE.

"They also state that they have always paid the same price as the English factories, whereas the English factories have been paying approximately 1s. 4d. per ton more for beet owing to their higher valorisation of sugar content over 15½ per cent. This attempt to justify the Irish offer by producing an imaginary 1s. to bridge a gap of 12s. which actually exists when both cases are compared, is surely not convincing.

"The Beet Growers' Association have no desire to be unreasonable in their attitude with regard to price; but when an attempt such as is being made at present to ride roughshod over the growers' interests, whom the Association represents, the Association will use every means in its power to frustrate the unjustifiable action, and we are doing so with the assurance that we have 100 per cent. of the growers behind us."

LATE NEWS.

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH "THE TIMES."

A REVENUE TARIFF.

EXPERTS' PLAN.

In a leading article The Times to-day observes:—The number of influential converts to a belief in tariffs is steadily growing. During the week-end Sir Josiah Stamp, an economist and industrialist of world-wide reputation, endorsed the conclusion recently published by Mr. Keynes, that nothing can meet the critical situation of this country so quickly and so effectively as the bold and comprehensive imposition of duties upon imports. These two authorities are also generally agreed upon the kind of tariffs most suitable to our case. They advocate a general tariff at a uniform rate upon all goods entering this country, with the exception of such commodities as are most obviously raw materials.

With a caution which, perhaps, takes more account of theory than of practical realities, they both advise that if, and when, prices reach a higher level, the duties should be automatically removed. Moreover, Sir Josiah Stamp, although he does not specifically say so, would clearly not quarrel with Mr. Keynes's further proposal—namely, that imported foodstuffs should also be subject to a much smaller, but uniform, duty, and that the levels of the two kinds of duties upon goods and upon foodstuffs should be high enough to raise a very large revenue, estimated at between £50,000,000 and £75,000,000 a year. In short, the main features of their plan are that the duties should be immediate, undiscriminating as between one kind of goods or foodstuffs and another, highly productive, invariable, and terminable by reference to facts and not to opinions. It is worth adding that the duties are to be strictly protectionist in character, because no countervailing Excise duties are to be imposed.

JUSTIFICATION FOR TARIFFS.

It is true that tariffs alone will not restore prosperity, adds The Times. The justification for tariffs is that they ought, on the one hand, to give industry confidence to reorganise, because producers will know that they have a better chance of a bigger market, with more stable prices; and, on the other hand, to give industry the resources to reorganise, because they will lessen the burden of direct taxation; and the last and greatest hope implicit in a revenue tariff is that it may make possible a real tariff truce, very different from the ludicrously unilateral bargain upon which the present Government has wasted so much time and trouble without even achieving it.

DUBLIN GAS.

In a leading article the Financial Times of to-day says:—One of the most progressive undertakings of its kind on either side of St. George's Channel, the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company, continues to render an excellent account of itself. A feature of its recent progress, which was more than maintained during the second half of 1930, has been the increasing popularity of its main product, not only with private consumers but also with industrial concerns, which are quick to appreciate the advantages of the older form of energy for heating purposes in particular. It is gratifying, but not therefore surprising, to find that, notwithstanding the unusually mild winter, sales of gas largely exceeded those of the corresponding six months of 1929.

GRAND NATIONAL SWEEPSTAKE.

ALL-DAY QUEUES OF PURCHASERS.

THE FIRST TICKET FOR THE DERBY.

THE Sweepstake on the Grand National closes to-morrow night, when it is expected that the prize-money will total at least £1,000,000. It would not be surprising, indeed, if the prize-money were well in excess of this sum; for it is understood that up to yesterday evening £950,000 had been received and allocated to the prize fund.

The correspondence from all parts of the world has grown to such an extent within the last couple of weeks that special arrangements have had to be made for its carriage from the Post Office to the offices in Earlsfort terrace.

LAST HOURS' RUSH.

When the Sweepstake closes to-morrow night it is expected that the volume of correspondence will be so large that it will take the staffs, working day and night, two to three days to clear it off.

The numbers of personal callers at the offices in Dame street have now increased to such an extent that Civic Guards have to be one duty from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. controlling the queues of purchasers of tickets.

FIRST TICKET FOR THE DERBY.

Full particulars about the Sweepstake on the Derby will be issued this evening. The Sweepstake was formally launched yesterday, when the Governor-General of the Free State purchased the first ticket from Sir William Taylor, Chairman of the Hospitals Committee, at the Viceregal Lodge.

Subsequently Sir William Taylor, Right Hon. T. K. Laidlaw, Surgeon Barniville, Dr. P. T. McArdle and Dr. J. B. Magennis had the honour of lunching with the Governor-General.

Already thousands of applications for tickets in the Derby Sweepstake have been received, and attention will be given to them immediately that the Grand National Sweepstake closes.

RUSSIAN RAZOR BLADES.

The Morning Post says:—There are on offer in Sheffield 25,000,000 Russian-made razor blades at 1s. 9d. per gross. The cost for steel alone to the British manufacturer is 6s. per gross.

DUBLIN OPERATIC SOCIETY.

PRODUCTIONS AT GAIETY THEATRE.

FIRST DUBLIN PERFORMANCE OF "GIANNI SCHICCHI."

The Dublin Operatic Society earned heartiest congratulations last night by the excellence of its production of two operas—an old favourite in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and a novelty in Puccini's "Gianni Schicchi." At the conclusion of the performances Maestro Viani, the Society's conductor, was accorded an ovation by the large audience assembled in the Gaiety Theatre.

Because of its novelty, "Gianni Schicchi" may claim first attention, though it came second in the programme. It is one of three operas which were intended by the composer to form together a complete programme. He called these three "Il Tritico." "Gianni Schicchi," the third of the trio, is comedy. In its place in the "Tritico" it offered a pleasant contrast to the other two members of the set. It loses nothing by being separated from them. Besides being an opera that can be counted on to please unless it is mishandled, it has the advantage for an amateur society that it contains a large number of small solo parts.

Critical opinion on this opera, which was produced for the first time in New York in 1918, is expressed by a writer in "Grove's Dictionary of Music" as follows:—

"The third opera, 'Gianni Schicchi,' on the other hand, had delighted by its deftness, skill and vis comica, even those who found little to praise in any other work of Puccini. The action fits admirably the requirements of the one-act play. It is swift, varied, interesting, and the music aids it at every point. It adds lyrical charm to the by-play of the two young lovers, and it gives zest to the adventure of the Florentine rogue who turns the greed of Donati's heirs to his advantage. Thus, vivacity, wit and humour rob the story of whatever gruesome feature it might have had it been less ably told."

The audience at the Gaiety Theatre last night was quite satisfied that "Gianni Schicchi" is an opera to be enjoyed both for its fun and its music. The performance went gaily, and even in the minor parts there was a good deal of clever character acting. In the part of the old rogue Gianni himself, Mr. Michael Gallagher sang confidently, and acted with comic freedom. Most of the lyrical strains fall to the lovers, Rinuccio and Lauretta, and these parts were taken with great ability by Mr. Harry Thornton and Miss Veronica Keary. Mr. Thornton's singing of the song in which he extols the ingenuities of Schicchi was particularly clever. Mr. Peter McCormack as the notary and Mr. John Yeates as the doctor were among the more prominent members of the cast, which included also Ella Clarke (Zita), Alice Maclean (Nella), Carmel O'Callaghan (Ciesa), James Gattens (Gherardo), Thomas S. Kealy (Betto) and Kevin Nolan (junior), a very young member of the cast.

"CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA."

Santuzza	Gertie Liddy

Turridu	Patrick Kirwan

"Cavalleria Rusticana" also had a good cast of principals, but was most particularly admirable for the excellence of the choral work. The chorus was large, and certainly contained a large proportion of good voices. "The Easter Hymn," "Now Homeward Returning," and the chorus to the Drinking Song were sung with splendid volume of tone. Just a trifle more of quickness in taking up the leads in the several parts would have made them perfect performances. The tempi were in every case a little slower than those we have been accustomed to hear in professional performances, but they were appropriate and effective, proving the conductor right in deciding on them in view of the size of the choral body.

All the principals displayed wealth of tone, as well as accuracy and expression, in their singing. No professional company within my knowledge of operatic performances in Dublin has presented here a better performance of Mascagni's opera.

An interesting feature of the staging was the position of the church, which was placed in the centre instead of to the right. In both operas an efficient orchestra was employed. Maestro Viani handled it ingeniously to give leading and support to the singers. The stage work showed the results of Mr. Herbert Bailey's direction.

A BIG LIGHTING CONTRACT.

The British Thomson-Houston Company, Ltd., manufacturers of Mazda Lamps, have been successful in securing from the Great Northern Railway (Ireland), Amiens street Station, Dublin, a twelve months' contract for the supply of Mazda Automobile Lamps.

A Reuter's message from Greenborough, North Carolina, states that a party given in honour of the team of British women golfers there on Sunday was marred by the sudden death of an American woman guest, which brought the proceedings to an abrupt termination.

PUT AN END TO SLEEPLESS NIGHTS

No longer need you suffer the tortures of insomnia. There's a certain way to cure it that doctors have known and recommended for nearly fifty years. Sleeplessness comes from disordered nerves, restless, irritable nerves, which will not leave you alone.

Just take a glass of Wincarnis at 11.30 a.m., at 3.30, and before going to bed. You'll find relief the very first night, for Wincarnis is the surest quietener of tired nerves a doctor knows. Containing wine—the juice of 2½ lbs. of the finest grapes—meat extract and vitamin malt extract, Wincarnis is not a drug but a perfectly natural way to build up health and strength, to create new blood and restore jaded nerves.

Try this simple, pleasant way to perfect sleep and perfect health to-day. Take it always when you're run down or convalescent after illness. Doctors recommend it for neurasthenia, anaemia, debility, neuralgia, and a host of other ailments.—(Advt.)

CLAY PIGEON SHOOTING AT BRAY.

ALL READY FOR INTERNATIONAL CONTESTS.

STRONG TEAMS FROM SCOTLAND, ENGLAND AND WALES.

THE first international clay pigeon shooting meeting to be held in Ireland takes play on Friday and Saturday at Woodbrook, Bray, and the arrangements for the event have now been completed. The four teams from England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales have been selected.

The three visiting teams are expected to arrive on Thursday evening, and will be met at the boat by Mr. T. Glynn, the Honorary Secretary of the Irish Clay Pigeon Shooting Association, and members of the Committee.

MANY VISITORS.

Many visitors are expected in the capital for the meeting, and it is known that over fifty shots, including the team, will travel from England, and about thirty-five shots from both Scotland and Wales.

On Friday the main event will be the open International Challenge for the Governor-General's Cup, in which teams of twelve aside will compete. On Saturday will be staged the big event of the meeting, the International Team Match for teams of twenty-four aside for the International Cup.

On each day there will be two special open events in which internationals will not be allowed to compete. There will also be three other competitions open to all, internationals included. For all the competitions there will be valuable cash prizes.

Throughout the two days an open pool shooting competition will be held. In this competition a man shoots until he misses, the top score being 25. He can enter for it as many times as he pleases.

For any of these competitions previous entry is not necessary, so that shots from all over Ireland, as well as from the three other competing countries, will be able to take part. At the meeting of the Committee in the Dolphin Hotel, Dublin, last night, Mr. T. Glynn, the Honorary Secretary, stated that he had received several applications from all over the country with regard to the open competitions.

For the banquet on Saturday, at which it is expected that the Governor-General of the Free State, President Cosgrave, and several Free State Ministers will be present, there are still some tickets available, and these can be had on application to the honorary secretary. The banquet will be held in the Dolphin Hotel.

TRAIN AND 'BUS.

Special train and omnibus services have been arranged for taking visitors to Woodbrook on Friday and Saturday, and arrangements have been made for the free parking of motor cars on the grounds of Woodbrook. The meeting opens at 10 a.m. on each day, but practice shooting will be permitted between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m.

Ireland is rather out of luck at present, for one of her best shots, Mr. Burke, of Galway and Glasgow, is unable to travel; while G. S. Good, of Cork, the well-known Munster champion, who is ill with influenza, may not be fit enough to compete.

OBITUARY.

COLONEL FRANCIS CHARLES BURTON.

The death took place last week, at "Bythorne," Sandhurst road, Tunbridge Wells, of Colonel Francis Charles Burton, a member of a well-known Irish family, at the age of 87 years. Colonel Burton had a distinguished record in the Army. Educated at Wellington College on its foundation for the sons of Army officers, under Dr. Benson, and later at Sandhurst, he went to India in 1866 as a junior officer in the 38th Regiment (Staffordshires), and after a period of service in the 9th Lancers, he transferred to the Bengal cavalry (Indian Army). In 1874 he was attached to the Quartermaster-General's Department at Simla, under Lord Roberts. In 1878, as a captain, he served through the Afghan War, commanding a Punjab Battalion under Lord Roberts. The following year he was Political Officer to the Khyber Field Force, and subsequently Chief Political Officer of the Khurd Kabul Area. For his services in the Afghan War he received the brevet rank of Major, and his name was specially mentioned in the House of Commons when thanks were moved to the Army in connection with that campaign. In 1885 he became Assistant Adjutant-General, and two years later he was promoted to Second-in-Command of the 1st Bengal Lancers. In 1891 he was appointed officiating Commandant of the 17th Cavalry. From 1892 to 1896 Colonel Burton commanded the 2nd Bengal Lancers at Allahabad. He was Adjutant and Quartermaster-General at Rawalpindi in 1896, and he was in command there from 1898 to 1901, when he retired. During the Great War he served in the War Office, and also in various places in charge of the Censor's departments. Colonel Burton was an accomplished athlete. He played for Ireland against England in the days before international caps were given; also, while at Sandhurst, he won the 200 yards handicap. Colonel Burton's wife and his family of three sons and one daughter predeceased him.

CAPTAIN R. D. POLLOCK.

The death is announced of Captain Robert D. Pollock, a noted business man, of Ward avenue, Bangor. He was a son of Mr. Francis R. Pollock, late Town Clerk of Bangor. He was founder of Messrs. R. D. Pollock and Company, public works contractors, Bangor, County Down, who have completed large public works contracts all over the country. He was one of the pioneers of reinforced concrete roads construction in Ireland, chairman of Messrs. R. J. Allam, Limited; owner of the Enniskillen Gas Company, and proprietor of an extensive farm in Northern Ireland. He served on the staff of the Royal Engineer Services during the Great War.

Captain Pollock was the Liberal candidate for County Down at the last general election for the Northern Parliament, but was defeated.

Captain Pollock had been at business on Friday, and his death on Saturday evening came as a great shock to his many friends.

DR. W. DONALDSON.

Dr. William Ireland Donaldson, whose death took place on Sunday last at his residence, "Fairholme," Ailesbury road, Dublin, was the second son of the late Dr. Robert Donaldson, of Fort Hill, Castleshane, Co. Monaghan. At an early age he entered Trinity College, Dublin, and obtained his B.A. Degree. He passed through the Medical School with the degrees of M.B. and B.Ch., and later proceeded to the higher degree of M.D. in Dublin University. Soon after he had been qualified he went to England and joined the Mental Hospital Service of the London County Council. Having served for some years as Senior Medical Officer of Cane Hill—one of the largest institutions of its kind in London—he was promoted to the post of Medical Superintendent of the Manor Mental Hospital, Surrey, where he served for over twenty years. During the Great War he joined the R.A.M.C., and served as Officer Commanding in a War hospital in the London district, with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. After his retirement he came to reside in Dublin.

Following a two-hours' meeting last night the 1,500 miners employed at the Haig and Wellington pits, Whitehaen, which have been idle since the explosion on January 29, when twenty-seven lives were lost, decided to restart work this morning.

THE MOSLEY PLAN.

MR. ALLEN DEFINES HIS POLICY.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
BELFAST, Monday Night.

MR. W. E. D. Allen, M.P., who has joined the Mosley group, and has been requested by the West Belfast Unionist Association to resign his seat in West Belfast, had a very enthusiastic reception to-night, when he addressed a meeting in the Independent Labour Party Hall, York street, Belfast. The hall was packed and several hundred could not gain admission. It was obvious that the majority of those present, principally ardent Socialists, were opposed to the Mosley party; yet Mr. Allen was given a courteous and patient hearing.

Mr. Hugh Gemmell, the Chairman, said that the Independent Labour Party believed that every section of the community ought to be able to discuss their differences and point of view with the utmost courtesy and with fair play and good-will. Because of this and the rising tide of political thought in Belfast they invited Mr. Allen to their meeting.

Mr. Allen, who was well received, said that for some time past, and more particularly during the last few days, they would have seen that he was getting into trouble for attempting to uphold the very ideas of freedom of thought and action to which they in that hall, by their invitation to him that evening, had demonstrated they themselves adhered. While respecting, and, indeed, supporting whole-heartedly the very special religious and political principles of the province, he had endeavoured to proclaim the necessity of thinking economically, as well as politically, and, cost what it might, he proposed to maintain his stand for freedom of thought on economic questions among the Protestants and Unionists of Belfast.

Continuing, Mr. Allen said that neither the forces of Socialism in Great Britain, nor the forces of capitalism were sufficiently strong to develop national policy along lines consistent with their own interpretations of economic conditions.

RIVAL THEORIES.

The ship was drifting to disaster, while the two sections of the crew were wrangling over the principles of navigation. The Mosley plan did not attempt to reconcile the rival theories of Socialism and capitalism, but in a time of economic crisis, a crisis of appalling magnitude, which grew worse with every month that passed, the Mosley plan called for action, immediate and direct. It said in effect: "Let us save the admittedly capitalist ship, and when that ship is saved we can discuss, without prejudice, the distribution of the cargo." It calls a halt to the sterile antagonisms of the lobbies, and the committee rooms; and, in doing so, it infuriates the old gentlemen who were interrupted at their time-honoured game of political "put and take." The three party machines were up in wrath to excommunicate those who admittedly were not sticking to the rules of the party game.

"I think that you will find," he declared, "that this new party, and this emergency outlook, will make a profound appeal to those elements whom the old parties, by their abortive futilities and their irresponsible chicaneries have antagonised, disappointed and ignored."

He pointed out that large sections of the electorate refused now to vote in elections. The new party was a frank adoption of methods, borrowed as might seem fit from both Socialist and Tory theory, and represented a movement which responded to a widespread demand among the people for leadership and for action—the more direct the better. Their plan envisaged the scrapping of capitalist methods where such methods did not fit the immediate needs of the nation, and it envisaged the postponement of the application of Socialism where it appeared that the technical advantage of capitalist organisation met the needs of emergency reconstruction. The Mosley policy proposed the establishment of a National Planning Council, of a National Investment Board, Import Boards, and it proposed to set up a Housing Board to deal drastically with the slum clearance problem to meet the present grave situation in Great Britain.

The Mosley policy claimed that the most effective way to secure expansion of consumption through wages was by the insulation of the British industrial machine. The ideal solution was international agreement on hours, wages and markets; but they had to face the realities of the world to-day.

BASIS OF POLICY.

The basis of the new Mosley policy was the interest of the wage-earner and consumer, and it was only incidentally that industrial capitalism would benefit. Looking at it at its worst, the new party claimed that the interests of industrial capitalism were entitled to take precedence as time progressed. The new party envisaged the increasing participation of labour in the management, control and ownership of industry. Before he was old there would be no room for masters and men, but there would be only different categories of skilled technicians, of whom some would be technicians in management. They could not keep an educated people working and living on a basis of industrial feudalism. The new party sought to adopt the capitalist system in Great Britain to meet the progressive changes which it foresaw. The present socialist system was, in fact, the chauffeur of the capitalist system, and it was so busily engaged in trying to understand the mechanism of the high-powered car that the most it could do was to keep the road. The new party understood the mechanism. It was going joyriding in the car, and was going to choose its own road. The Mosley plan proposed to have power to control the location of new industries. This, he believed, should be of great advantage to the industrial North of England and the North of Ireland. The new party was opposed to the present futilities of parliamentary procedure. A whole day recently was devoted to the discussion of the habits of rabbits. Meanwhile, there were two and a half millions unemployed.

In conclusion, he said that at the next general election they would put into the field sufficient candidates to enable the country to pass judgment on their policy.

THE BORDER.

A number of questions were put to Mr. Allen. One question asked if Mr. Allen was in favour of continuing the border. He replied: "I do, and, what is more, I consider from the point of view of the working class in Belfast that the interests of the industrial workers is closely bound up with the wages and conditions in Liverpool and Glasgow. The Free State is becoming a small, self-contained agricultural area. I consider our future altogether with the British industrial areas."

A general discussion followed, and all the speakers from the body of the hall expressed disagreement with the Mosley party.

THE GAELIC LEAGUE.

To-day the Gaelic League is making a special appeal to the whole Irish people for support of the movement to bring back the use of the Irish language in all their affairs. A general collection of funds is being made.

Lord Ashbourne, President of the League, says:—"Our appeal is to the thirty-two counties of Ireland. By no effort of the imagination can either of the Governments which divide between them the destinies of our unfortunate country be said to represent the nation as a whole. Ireland is not two, but one, and the national language is the only possible symbol of our unity. The task of the Gaelic League is to get our people, as a whole, to think along these lines. Once more we call upon all to come in and strengthen the movement. No political party can do the work that is before us. If we are strong and genuinely independent we are bound to win. Everything depends upon ourselves."

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR D. O'CALLAGHAN.

Not many soldiers will leave more pleasant memories behind them than Major-General Sir Desmond O'Callaghan, whose death in his eighty-ninth year The Times announces this morning. Few could claim to be imbued with a more soldierly spirit, a more generous feeling of comradeship, or a more genuine regimental pride than that cheery artilleryman. Yet he never saw a shot fired in anger, but spent over thirty years of his service in offices laboratories, magazines or in the experimental ranges of Woolwich or Shoebury.

LIST WELL SUPPORTED.

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.
NEW YORK, Monday.

The recent resistance in face of unfavourable news, together with continued slow improvement in the steel industry, and the ready absorbtion of new bond issues was regarded as very encouraging. The opening was strong. The undertone was moderately cheerful, with operators apparently reconciled to the theory that the pace of business recovery demanded patience. A broad list of issues rose 1 to 5 points under the leadership of Utilities, but trading was apathetic, professionals appearing tired of the ineffectual churning about of shares. The U.S. Steel Corporation's annual statement was a very conspicuous item of news. The fact that the report ended with a conservative note of confidence in the future was regarded on Wall Street as significant, for no reference was made to the outlook in last year's report. The advance gained momentum in the final dealings, and the close was strong.

Government Bonds quiet. Railroad Bonds irregular. The day's sales totalled approximately 2,100,000 shares. Money on call closed steady at 1½ per cent. bid., and 1¾ per cent. asked. All business during the day was concluded at 1½ per cent. Sterling exchange steady. Silver 1½c. up at 31⅜.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Monday.

Recessions occurred in wheat on a private estimate indicating that the United States carry-over would be at least 350,000,000 bushels, while an increase in the visible supply, coupled with reports of ideal weather and crop conditions in the South-West, also had a depressing effect. Later the market rallied on a statement by a Farm Board official that no dumping of American wheat abroad had been done and covering operations. Maize values early improved owing to small country offerings, but later reacted under increased visible supply figures and pressure of March contract deliveries. Finally covering and buying by Eastern houses brought about a rally. After declining on advices of beneficial moisture in parts of Kansas, rye prices rallied owing to a decrease in the visible supply. Oats moved lower owing to reports of favourable moisture in the Central West, but afterwards recovered on a decrease in the visible supply figures.

WHEAT opened steady, with May old ¼c. down and new contracts unchanged to ⅜c. lower, closing steady, unchanged for old and unaltered to ½c. up for new deliveries.

NEW ASSOCIATION OF BUILDERS.

On the 12th March a meeting of builders who are solely or mainly interested in the building of houses for sale or letting was held in Dublin. This was well attended by representatives from all the areas of Dublin, and in the course of a very interesting exchange of views it was decided that an Association should be formed, to be called "The Dublin and District House Builders' Association."

It was decided that the objects of this Association should be essentially the promotion of the interests of all members, especially as regards dealing with other organised bodies, Government Departments, and similar organisations. It was felt generally that the lack of an organised body who could speak for the housebuilders as a whole had been very seriously hampering the development of housing in Dublin, and for this purpose alone the Association will be well worthy of support.

The offices of the new Association are at 16 Dawson street, Dublin, and the Secretary is Mr. P. Deey.

THE LATE DR. MILLER

FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
WATERFORD, Monday.

The remains of the late Right Rev. Dr. Miller will arrive in Waterford on Friday morning. Subsequently a Memorial Service will be held in Christ Church Cathedral, after which the funeral will take place to the County Wicklow.

DEAN TALBOT'S TRIBUTE.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.
CASHEL, Monday.

Speaking in Cashel Cathedral on Sunday, the Very Rev. Dean Talbot said: "We meet to-day under the shadow of a common sorrow. What a shock it was to hear so suddenly yesterday of the passing away of our beloved bishop. It is too soon for us to estimate the true value of the life and work of Dr. Miller, but this may be said, that he was a notable bishop.

"He was a warm and leading advocate in the sphere of education. As a Commissioner of National Education he was a recognised expert. And in the controversies of latter years regarding this subject he was able to point a way to [illegible] of education for [illegible]

He was a warm and leading advocate for the re-union of Christian Churches, both at home and abroad, and his work in Czecho-Slovakia, in this connection, will be long remembered. In the councils of the Church he was a recognised power, and in charge of the affairs of his own diocese, his wisdom and courage gave us all confidence.

"It would be hard to overestimate what a Bishop in his familiar intercourse with us one and all. His [illegible] pathy, and warm affection have cheered and encouraged us much."

DUBLIN FACTORY STRIKE.

FROM OUR LABOUR CORRESPONDENT.

Wednesday morning next will be the deciding day in the dispute between the management of the Greenmount and Boyne Linen Co., Ltd., Harold's Cross, Dublin, and their employés. The workers have been on strike for some time past against the decision of the company to reduce wages and alter the conditions of employment, and although conferences have taken place between the two parties under the auspices of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce it was found impossible to bring about a settlement.

The management last week informed the strikers that, unless they resumed work immediately, they would close down the factory, and transfer their work to premises in Drogheda. At a largely attended meeting of the strikers held on Sunday night it was decided by an overwhelming majority to resume work on the terms of the company, and this decision was communicated to the Ministry of Industry and Commerce to the employers yesterday.

Following the announcement of the decision of the strikers, the management of the factory had the following notice posted on the gates of the works:—

"Notwithstanding that we have been informed that the strike is to continue, one opportunity will be given to all who wish to return to work. The factory will, therefore, be open at the usual hour on Wednesday morning, March 18th, and if sufficient workers are not forthcoming it will close down and will not be opened again."

"Years ago I started seeking a way to remove the dingy yellow from my teeth and keep them sound.

"Nothing I used could lift the veil of ugliness. Stain and tartar shamed me. I decided to try Kolynos with its Dry-Brush Technique. A revelation!

"After the first brushing my teeth were whiter. Then I saw them whiten—3 shades in 3 days!"

If you want whiter, sounder teeth, switch to Kolynos. This double-strength dental cream does what no ordinary dentifrice can do .... It destroys the germs the presence of which leads to stain, discoloration, tartar and decay. That is why it whitens teeth so quickly.

Germs swarm into the mouth and attack teeth and gums but Kolynos kills these germs and makes a clean sweep of them.

As it enters the mouth, Kolynos multiplies 25 times and becomes a surging, antiseptic foam that permits the famous Dry-Brush Technique.

You can feel this foam work. It gets into every pit, fissure and crevice. It kills germs ... neutralizes acids and dissolves tartar ... purifies the entire oral cavity and quickly restores teeth to their natural whiteness, without injury. For 3 hours after each brushing this foam continues to clean teeth and combat germs that cause teeth and gum troubles.

Make This Convincing Test

Try Kolynos. A half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Within a few days teeth will look whiter. Gums will look pinker and firmer. Your mouth will tingle with delightful freshness. Get Kolynos — the antiseptic dental cream—from your chemist to-day.

KENNEL CLUB DINNER.

THE IMPROVEMENT OF IRISH BREEDS.

There was an attendance of about one hundred persons at the sixth annual banquet held under the auspices of the Irish Kennel Club at Jury's Hotel, Dublin, last night.

In proposing the toast of the "Irish Kennel Club," Mrs. Phylis Robson said that she fully appreciated the honour they had conferred on her that night. Every year she came over to Ireland she liked it better. The sportsmanship of the Irish fanciers was known all over the world. The Irish Kennel Club was the hall-mark of fair play and democracy; and their steady policy was well known. She congratulated them on the work they had done for the improvement of Irish breeds. The Kerry Blue and the Irish Setter were now very popular in the United States, and while on a recent visit to that country, no matter where she went, she heard nothing but praise for the Irish Kennel Club, whose famous Green Star system was well known on the other side of the Atlantic.

One of the most interesting features about the Irish Kennel Club was the opportunities it gave to women. This policy was a distinct success, and in comparison the English Kennel Club, was extremely narrow-minded; for women got no prominence what ever.

Mr. Justice Hanna, in replying to the toast, thanked Mrs. Robson for the kind words she had expressed about the Irish Club. He was very glad to say that the fanciers of Northern Ireland were taking a keener interest in the Southern shows, and that this co-operation was all for the good of the breeds of dogs which they fancied.

Mr. Henry Fottrell, in proposing the toast of "Our Judges," said he hoped that the fanciers in the North of Ireland would frequent the South a little bit more, and the Southern fanciers would reciprocate.

Mr. Walter S. Glynn, in replying to the toast, said there was no bunkum about the Irish shows, as there was in other parts. In some places fellow-committee men judged the chairman's dogs. This was absurd.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. Kyffin supported.

"Our Guests" was proposed by the Rev. E. Savell Hicks, M.A. He congratulated the members for the tact they showed in having the dinner the night before the show. They all had a spirit of optimism, but to-morrow night it might be totally different. (Laughter.)

Mr. Fred. Heney, M.R.C.V.S., in replying, said that Mrs. Robson had mentioned the democratic aspect of the Irish Kennel Club, and that women in the English Kennel Club did not get their place. Women in the Irish Kennel Club had always been great workers, and they had been a great credit to the club.

The Hon. David P. H. Cust, only son of Lord and Lady Brownlow, who died after a brief illness at Belton House, Grantham, on Sunday, aged one year, was interred in Belton churchyard yesterday.

CONFERENCE WEEK AT EXETER.

The Mothers' Union has arranged to hold a Conference Week at Exeter in June. It will open with a Service of welcome in the cathedral, when the Bishop of Exeter will preach. A civil reception in the Guildhall by the Mayor and Mayoress of Exeter will follow.

During the remainder of the week there will be numerous meetings of the Central Council, with Services in the various churches, and on Wednesday, June 24, the Archbishop of Armagh will preach in the cathedral at a Service for workers.

On the following day there will be a meeting for the official workers and the Fellowship of Marriage, followed by a mass meeting, with a Service of praise. Some interesting arrangements have been made for tours of places in the district, and one of the social functions will be a pic-nic on Dartmoor.

On March 25 there will be a Special Service in Westminster Abbey for members of the Union, when a sermon will be preached by the Right Rev. Bishop Hill, formerly Bishop of Hulme.

BALDOYLE TO-DAY.

EAST GALWAY'S CHANCE FOR METROPOLITAN PLATE.

EVERYTHING points to the holiday meeting at Baldoyle being a very successful affair. The recent spell of fine weather has put the course in excellent order, and at the time of writing there is every prospect of a continuance of the dry spell.

The programme is a well varied one, with a selling two-year-old race to start off proceedings, and for this seven runners have been declared. Little is known outside the stables, of course, of the form of the youngsters engaged, but good acounts are abroad as to Southern Glow, which is believed to be smart.

Treminord was a trifle unlucky when beaten by Ripple On at the last Baldoyle meeting, and, as the latter won since at Proudstown Park, the form points to Treminord's big chance in the Raheny Hurdle Race. Diloya may be the chief danger to Colonel Clarke's horse.

The Maiden Hurdle Race has attracted a field of thirteen runners, some of whom have shown a partiality for this branch of the sport in previous efforts. Knight's Battle is one, and as he has been improving each time he may go one better than in his previous effort and win over a course on which he had many successes on the flat in his younger days. The Naas winner, Kyleclare, will also be in the field, but as he meets Knight's Battle on 15lb. worse terms to-day compared to the Naas race the advantage seems sufficient to enable Mr. A. D. Comyn's horse to turn the tables. Gomar will likely be the chief danger.

Either Culnagor or Sky Fruit should win the Sutton Steeplechase.

The appearance of Georginatown in the field for the Metropolitan Steeplechase endows this event with a particular interest. This smart mare has won something like thirteen or fourteen races, mostly steeplechases, since the commencement of last season, and is considered by many good judges to have a considerable chance in the Grand National. She will be opposed by, amongst others, East Galway, and on the form of the two horses in this country should be beaten by Mr. Shepherd's good horse, but to what extent her improvement has gone it is hard to estimate. Certainly the race should afford Georginatown a nice test for the Aintree race, as there are others, such as Sky Fruit, Koscie's Star, South Louth and Ballymagarry, also possessing good chances. If East Galway is at the top of his form he should win, as the range of weights is in his favour.

The Killester flat race may be left to Cap-a-Pie II.

The tote double to-day will be on the third and fifth races, and there will also be a double on the two big steeplechases at the meeting—the Metropolitan Plate to-day and the St. Patrick's Steeplechase to-morrow.

Maiden Hurdle Race—Knight's Battle.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE.

WINTRY WEATHER.

TIN O' MINT'S IMPROVED FORM.

A FRENCH-BRED WINNER.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

WOLVERHAMPTON, Monday Night.

MOST unfortunately wintry weather has come back to us, and it is very cold here to-night. The going was good here this afternoon, yet at Melton, which is not so far away, the hunt meeting had to be postponed on account of the frost in the ground.

There was nothing of particular interest in the racing. The Oxley Handicap Steeplechase fell to a horse owned and trained by Coulthwaite, whom he acquired out of a selling race. This was Ptolemais, a nine-year-old by Polymelus, who started favourite and won by six lengths and five lengths from Mr. Stanley Harrison's pair, Killia and Patron Saint.

Coulthwaite had previously had a second in Windermere Laddie, once a very smart horse, whose legs have given his trainer no end of trouble. He has only run twice in the last fourteen months, but in the Penn Hurdle he put up quite a good show.

BEATEN AT THE FINISH.

He looked like winning at the last, but Tin o' Mint proved too fast for him, and beat him by a length and a half. This son of Spearmint, who belongs to Mr. A. Cemmell, is a much-improved horse, who is now trained in Major Mairs' successful little stable at Letcombe Basset.

A French-bred horse, by Kirkcubbin out of the Ajax mare, Highly, the dam of Highborn, called Hightide IV., won the Dunstall Hurdle by four lengths from Royal Repose, whom Major Mairs trains for Mrs. Bowes Brady.

Big Wonder, with whom Mr. Whitelaw won the National Hunt Steeplechase at Cheltenham two years ago, took the Hunters' Steeplechase, in which he was ridden by Mr. Thackray, by a couple of lengths from Silverside.

Mr. Alfred McAlpine had varying luck in the selling races. Socrates, whom Mr. Harrison trains for him, started favourite for the steeplechase, but did badly, and Lady Ardoon won easily from West Countryman.

In the hurdle race he ran Hit the Deck, whom Mr. Barthropp trains. This Argosy horse started at 25 to 1, and Cullinan, by dint of persuasion and resolution, made him come and beat Haki Bey by a length.

SELECTIONS.

To-morrow, all being well, the Hungarian. Gyi Lovam, makes his long-deferred English début in the Shrewsbury Handicap 'Chase. Grakle is to run for Coulthwaite, but not his stable companion, Cherry Duck. Kilbuck and Easy Virtue are other National horses who can take the field, and at the weights I am inclined to the chance of EASY VIRTUE. Should he be absent the best might be GRAKLE.

SANDRO should be the best in the Staffordshire Handicap Steeplechase, and JACKY MARTIN may win the Walsall Handicap Hurdle.

GALTEE MORE.

LONDON BETTING.

SMALL BUSINESS AT CALL-OVER.

There was very little wagering at the Victoria Club call-over yesterday. The only Lincolnshire Handicap candidate backed was Sargasso, who was supported to win about £3,000 at 100 to 6, this price being again offered.

Of the fifteen Grand National candidates quoted only four met with any support, these being Easter Hero at 600 to 30, Richmond II at 500 to 15, Cherry Duck at 1,000 to 20, and Gregalach at 1,000 to 15.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

Rivalry's Good Gallop.

D. MacNee's Lincolnshire Handicap candidate, Rivalry, was given a good gallop over six furlongs on the sands at Minehead yesterday. Her two stable companions, Junius and Bossi, went a similar distance.

Donoghue's Lincolnshire Mount.

Stephen Donoghue has been engaged to ride Breadcrumb in the Lincolnshire Handicap. Breadcrumb won his last race on the flat at Windsor in November by a short head and two lengths from Massai, the present favourite for the Lincoln. He carried 9st., and was giving Massai 7lb. His weight in the Lincolnshire Handicap is [illegible]. Breadcrumb won a race on the second day of May last season, so can be regarded as an early season performer.

Amateur Rider Injured

Mr. R. Bennett had the misfortune to break a collar-bone when his mount, Swan of Avon, came to grief in the Hunters' Amateur Riders Steeplechase at Wolverhampton yesterday

Africorn Still at Filey.

Lord Grimthorpe's Lincolnshire Handicap candidate, Africorn, is still at Filey, and yesterday, with J. Thwaites up, was sent seven furlongs at a steady pace, accompanied by Prohibition and Sunnier. Jewel (J. Thwaites), Haymarket, Lava, Wild Wark, Negligence and Jury all went a steady five furlongs. Prohibition, Jewel and Jury afterwards left for Malton.

POINT-TO-POINT.

SPORTSMAN'S RACES AT HALVERSTOWN.

ENJOYABLE REUNION OF KILDARE HUNT.

FOR the six events on the card at Halverstown, where the Kildare Hunt sportsman's races were held yesterday, there was an aggregate of forty-five runners, and, with the going first-class, it was a most enjoyable reunion of the members and supporters of the Hunt.

A number of horses who held engagements at Punchestown were on view, among them Mr. Cyril McCormack's Amonarosa, Mr. J. H. Valentine's Armigera, Mr. P. J. McDermott's Gilltown Lad, and Mr. P. Moore's Blackwoodbridge, all of whom scored. Amonarosa, who is in the Drogheda and La Touche Plates, was the mount of Mr. J. W. Osborne in the Kildare Hunt Sportsman's Race, and beat Berry Hill by three lengths, but the latter was conceding a stone, and may be said to have ran a really good race. Although the issue was never in much doubt. There was a fine finish to the Ladies' Race, in which Vanity set a hot pace in the early stages, but when they came into view at the top of the hill Miss O'Meara's Punster took the lead, and retained it, to get the better of Copper Alley by a couple of lengths. Sanders, who holds a liability in the Irish Grand National, and was much fancied, finishing fifth. Four of the five in the Punchestown Challenge Cup were together coming to the last fence, but Mr. E. More-O'Ferrall, on his brother's horse, Rainstown, won easily enough from Whissendine. Last year Mr. J. H. Valentine's Armigera won the cup presented by Mrs. Blacker for the Farmers' Light-Weight Race, and, never putting an iron astray now, the mare achieved her second victory to win the trophy outright. She is engaged in the Bishop's Court Plate at Punchestown, and another who will likely be started for that race—Gilltown Lad—was to the fore in the Maiden Race, in which he beat Red Essex by a length, while Blackwoodbridge won the Farmers' Heavy-Weight Race with so much in hands as to suggest that he has a good chance in the Kildare Hunt Plate.

COOLLATTIN.

The entries for Coollattin point-to-point races, which take place on Thursday next, are very good. Big fields will be seen out, and excellent sport is expected. The course is in excellent order.

HUNTING.

WARD UNION HOUNDS.

The Palmerstown fixture on Saturday was held in quite spring-like weather. There was a large field out, and the pack added another fine hunt to their season's record. An enlargement was made on Mr. J. Rooney's farm at Cottrellstown, and the hunt started across the Naul road, by Brown's Cross and Wyanstown, in the Ballyboghil direction. At Westphalstown they crossed the Ballyboghil road for Oldtown, and went by the village and Drishogue into the Wren's Nest, where the stag stopped in the thicket. Hounds got away in view, via Mooretown and Clonmethan, and ran hard through Jordanstown and Wyestown before coming to a check again at Nutstown. The line was recovered by the Lousy Bush, and the hunt went on fast and direct by Adamstown to Tobergregan, and down the valley of Charistown almost to the Ram's Cross. Crossing the Ballymadun road, the pack carried on across the Barranstown point-to-point course to Laurel Mount, and, with their stag again in view, they ran on through Snipestown bottoms and up to Newtown, before the stag was safely captured at Garristown Hill, after a gruelling hunt of 1½ hours over a big country.

WOLVERHAMPTON TO-DAY.

MERCURY MAY BE BEST IN THE WALSALL HURDLE.

THE sport on the concluding day of the Dunstall Park meeting should be more interesting than that furnished yesterday. Among the National horses expected to run to-day is Gyi Lovam, who will be ridden by his owner, Captain Popler, in the Shrewsbury Steeplechase. As he should now be approaching his best if he has any chance in the Liverpool event he should go close. Coulthwaite is to saddle Grakle, with whom he still has hopes of winning the Grand National. Grakle has shown some improvement in his recent outings, but is not too safe a conveyance. Kilbuck, the much-fancied starter from Newmarket, has given satisfaction in his home gallops. Ivor Anthony runs Eagle's Tail instead of Ballasport, and his selected should go close, but the choice falls upon Silver Grail, who should add to his Hawthorn Hill success.

The Walsall Hurdle has attracted a useful lot of hurdlers. Kudos has been in the first three twice since beating Old Ann at Warwick last month, and is expected to be concerned in the finish. Jacky Martin was beaten by two smart hurdlers at Leicester, when finishing third to The Philosopher and Burglar. He meets the latter in this event on unfavourable terms, and Burglar may again beat him. Young Middleton is not too stout-hearted, and I have no fancy for Rochester Row. Mute Swan is nicely weighted, and has won his last two races in no uncertain style. Mercury was heavily backed when beating Frank Bare, and was previously concerned in a close finish with Burglar. Burglar and Mute Swan should both go close, but I shall stand by Mercury, who is reported to have improved since his Hawthorn Hill victory.

BOXING.

HEAVIER MEN TO RESCUE.

WHERE IRELAND HAD THE PULL OVER THE SCOTS.

THE International Tournament at the Gymnasium, Portobello Barracks, last night ended in a win for the Irish representatives, who defeated a strong Scottish team by 5 bouts to 3.

The majority of the bouts were evenly contested, but in the heavier classes the Irishmen were much the stronger, and won all four fights from welter to heavy-weight. A notable feature of the tournament, which attracted a splendid attendance, was the expeditious manner in which the proceedings were carried out.

Ireland started off badly when M. Byrne was outpointed in the fly-weight bout against J. Connolly. Connolly had a slight advantage in weight and reach, and usually out-punched his man in their long range exchanges. When at close quarters Byrne was a shade the better, but it was not often that he was allowed to slip through his opponent's guard. In third round Byrne had a spell of strong attacking, and looked like sweeping Connolly off his feet, but the effort took a lot out of the St. Tarcisius lad, and Connolly used his right with repeated advantage in the last two rounds.

M. FLANAGAN.

A CLEVER WINNER.

The Hughes-Hamilton bout looked like deteriorating into a mere scramble after the first two rounds, but a caution to Hughes for boring with his head effected a big improvement, and the ensuing exchanges more than made up for the scrappiness of the earlier sessions. Towards the end of the third round Hughes weakened his man, and it was only Hamilton's splendid fighting spirit that enabled him to stage a fine recovery in the final round. In the fight he was sent through the ropes with such force by Hughes that the latter found himself precipitated almost out of the ring after his man. It was a gruelling bout, at the end of which either man had scarcely a punch left. Hamilton in the final round sought to make up the leeway by gaining a knock-out, but Hughes, though he left himself more open at this stage than in any other part of the fight, held on to his lead, and was a clever winner at the finish.

There was any amount of clever boxing in the feather-weight bout between A. Lyon and P. Byrne. Byrne, like his namesake in the fly-weight division, was at a disadvantage in height and reach, and early on Lyon gave a sample of his abilities by clever use of his left. Byrne's defensive tactics were effective, and he frequently caused Lyon to miss with his left leads. In attack the Irishman was seldom the equal of his opponent, and, though he put up a right good fight, Lyon's left repeatedly found its way to his body in the last two rounds, this being the chief factor in the Scot's success.

O'SHEA WINS AGAIN.

The visitors gained their third success of the night when J. Rolland outpointed T. Kelly after a very even bout, in which Kelly, though clever at close quarters, was outpointed in the closing stages by his better-staying opponent.

Private W. O'Shea added to his growing list of victories in the welter division by a splendid win over a particularly tough fighter in J. Russell. O'Shea's win was particularly meritorious, as in the opening seconds of the first round Russell got home to the Irishman's left eye, which swelled to such an extent that it at one time looked as if he would be unable to continue. O'Shea temporarily allowed his man to make the pace, and contented himself by landing with his favourite left whenever an opening presented itself. Russell's footwork was not good, however, and he seldom got his full weight behind his punches in consequence. In the fifth round the Irishman went for his opponent in splendid style, and, though the latter got in a couple of lefts to the head, O'Shea used both right and left effectively, to gain the most stylish win of the night.

The middle-weight bout between Jack Chase and P. McConnell was productive of much close-quarter work, and here Chase soon asserted a distinct superiority. McConnell was not good in his defensive work, and the verdict in Chase's favour was apparent a good way from the end.

A CLOSE AFFAIR.

There was little between J. Forde and A. Bell in the opening rounds of their cruiser bout, the advantage, if any, being with the Scot, who got in some good lefts to the head. These were more than offset by Forde's clever right-hand punches to the body in the later sessions, and in the fourth round the Irishman assumed the offensive in earnest. He showered a series of blows to his opponent's head and body, and continued to carry the fight to his man in the final round to win well.

Ireland's success was assured early in the first round of the heavy-weight contest, as it was soon made apparent that Garda Mat. Flanagan was much too strong for D. Steele. The latter was sent to the boards with a smashing right to the jaw just as the bell went, but he was unable to shake off the effects of the blow, and a similar delivery early in the next round brought the fight to an abrupt end. GREYHOUND RACING.

HYDRANGEA TAKES CHIEF EVENT.

TWO CLOSE FINISHES AT SHELBOURNE PARK.

THERE was another interesting night's racing at Shelbourne Park last night. Hydrangea won the chief event, the Shelbourne Stake, in easy fashion from Never Nicer. The winner was always favourite, and getting well away never left the issue in doubt.

Tight Line, a slightly better favourite than Morn Dawn, showed fine pace in winning the Clounanna Bitch Stake, while Porterhouse Steak justified his position in the market by winning the Clonmel Stake.

The Shelbourne Hurdle and the City Plate were productive of exciting finishes. Marshal Foch, the favourite, won the former event, but only by a head from Savoy's Double, and a short head was the verdict by which Tivoli Boy beat Silent Carton in the City Plate.

ATHLETICS.

RIVALRY BETWEEN PARISHES.

GENERAL O'DUFFY'S PLAN TO ENCOURAGE YOUTH.

SPEAKING at the annual Convention of the Ulster Council, G.A.A., at Cavan, General O'Duffy said that under the control of the N.A.C.A. considerable progress was being made in reviving athletics in Ireland, and up to that morning he had received subscriptions amounting to £700 to wipe out a debt of £800. However, in addition to that, the intention was to get together £10,000, so that athletics could take their proper place in the life of the nation.

This money would be spent on training young athletes so as to fit them to take part in inter-county and international contests. There was an abundance of latent athletic talent in the country, and the method of discovering it was by the formation of athletic clubs all over the country, and the stirring up of inter-parish rivalry.

By his performances at the Olympic Games, Dr. O'Callaghan had raised the reputation of Irish athletics, and next time, at Los Angeles, he hoped they would be able to put several winners in the field.

THE BIG PUSH.

Someone had said that the G.A.A. should again take over the control of athletics in this country, but the way to do that was by the formation of athletic clubs by G.A.A. clubs, who should send their representatives to the annual Congress. The big push for the revival of Irish athletics was now well away, and he expected the Gaels of Ulster would do their part by arranging athletic meetings in every county in the province during the coming season.

Mr. T. Donnelly (Monaghan) asked had the N.A.C.A. any explanation to give for sending a team to the Empire Games last year.

General O'Duffy said that he was not then officially connected with the N.A.C.A., but he understood the decision was taken by the Council.

With reference to handball, Mr. Sean O'Hanlon, Dublin, Secretary to the Central Council, congratulated the two Cavan players on winning the Junior All-Ireland Championship, and hoped the other Ulster counties would also produce champions this year.

Next year's G.A.A. Congress was fixed for Derry.

THE COUNCIL AFFAIRS.

The nine Ulster counties were represented at the annual G.A.A. convention in Cavan on Saturday. Mr. P. McPaidin, Mr. B. C. Fay and General O'Duffy were re-elected unanimously chairman, secretary and treasurer respectively. On a vote by ballot, Mr. B. C. Fay (Cavan), Mr. P. Fearon (Armagh) and Mr. P. McNamee (Antrim) were elected to represent the province on the Central Council.

The balance sheet showed a deficiency of £654 10s. 6d., due, the secretary explained, to the crux over last year's senior final and semi-final and a loss on the Dr. McKenna Cup competition.

LINDRUM V. DAVIS.

Lindrum made an excellent start in his two weeks' match against Davis, to whom he conceded 7,000 points, at Sheffield. After a break of 446 by him and 57, 63 and 210 by Davis, Lindrum completed the session with 1,076 unfinished. The innings contained runs of 79, 76, 102 and 110 cannons. At night, after Lindrum had taken his unfinished break to 1,761, Davis followed with 1,118. Afterwards Lindrum made only 21, while Davis, before his thousand break, had 135. Closing scores:—Davis (in play), 8,564; Lindrum, 2,280.

Interval scores—Newman (in play), 823; McConachy, 820.

At night Newman scored 813 against 606. He had breaks of 76 (full), 117, and 501 (unfinished). McConachy made 156 and 136. Closing scores:—Newman (in play), 1,636; McConachy, 1,426.

RUGBY FOOTBALL.

WANDERERS WIN THE REPLAY.

U.C.D. FORWARDS BEATEN IN SCRIMMAGES.

WANDERERS ...... 8 UNIVERSITY COLL. 0

DUBLIN club Rugby was not seen at its best at Lansdowne road yesterday, when Wanderers beat University College by 2 goals (1 penalty) (8 points) to nil. Despite perfect playing conditions the football from start to finish lacked any distinction; for, if the Wanderers' backs were able to bring off an occasional movement from out-half to wing, they passed mechanically, while their opponents' handling was also bad.

J. C. D. HEWAT.

National took a risk in playing J. Bailey, who, owing to an injury to his ankle had not turned out for some time; and as it happened he was not fit for serious football. He was slow in getting across to tackle his centre, and in attack was never able to make an opening, while he dropped numerous passes. He was not the only sinner in this respect; for every one of the National backs handled badly. Wanderers were much better in this respect, but the only two backs on their side to show any originality were Murray and Hewat. The former was well marked, but Hewat, playing in the centre, was continually dangerous in the second half.

Forward, Wanderers held one big advantage; they got the ball three times out of five in the tight, and this went a long way towards winning the match for them. Otherwise the packs were quite evenly matched, and each brought off some capital loose rushes. Clinch, despite the fact that he must have been feeling the effects of Saturday's match, was very lively, and saved one certain score in the second half, thanks to his knack of being in an unexpected place. In Guihan and Curran, National also had a couple of fine wingers, but every man in both packs played very hard. O'Connell fielded well for National, but his kicking was rather short. On the other hand, Willis kicked well, but his slowness might have cost Wanderers a try or two in the first half.

The opening half was scoreless, but Wanderers had rather the better of the play. They penned National in their own half for the first twenty minutes, but fine tackling kept them out. Towards half-time, Roche made a great run through the centre, but a possible try was lost through lack of support. Wanderers were also dangerous early in the second half, and Hewat made a splendid cut-through, but was taken down just on the line. From the ensuing loose scrum, Wanderers heeled quickly, and the ball went across to Laing, who scored near the posts, Murray converting. A lot of the sting seemed to go out of National's play after that, and ten minutes from the end, Murray kicked a penalty goal. A clever cross-kick by Roche looked like giving Kiely a score, but Clinch appeared from nowhere and cleared. Teams:—

U.C.D.—J. O'Connell; T. O'N. Kiely, J. Bailey, P. Cremin, T. Phelan; P. Roche, F. Dawson; T. P. Hogan, M. Guihan, B. Macauley, T. Griffen, M. Neary, P. Glynn, M. Gleeson, —. Curran.

Wanderers—E. B. Willis; R. Birmingham, J. C. D. Hewat, F. Williamson, J. H. Laing; P. F. Murray, P. Weir; J. D. Clinch, J. R. Graves, H. Hilton, M. McQuaid, J. J. Murphy, W. J. McCormack, D. Young, B. Williams.

GALWAY TEAMS FARE BADLY.

For the first time in the history of the game, no Galway City team will figure in the Connacht Senior Cup. The final to-day will be between Ballina and Loughrea. In the semi-finals they each defeated Galway teams. Ballina beat University College, in Ballina, and after a drawn game in Galway, Loughrea beat Galwegians in the replay in Loughrea.

Galway has only one team, namely, Salthill, left in the Connacht Junior Cup. At Loughrea, Salthill beat Loughrea, after a keen game, by 2 tries (6 points) to 1 try (3 points), but Galwegians were defeated by Athenry by 2 tries (6 points) to nil. In the semi-finals Athenry will meet Salthill, and a County Sligo fifteen will meet Westport. In a friendly game at Ennis, St. Flannan's College beat St. Joseph's Seminary, Galway, by 3 tries (9 points) to 2 tries (6 points).

RYAN MIDLAND CUP.

Only five clubs entered this season for the Ryan Midland Cup. Navan play Mullingar in the preliminary round, the winners meeting Birr. The final will be played between the winners of the latter game and the winners in the Ballymahon v. Co Longford match. This match will be played on the 19th inst.

TO-DAY'S CLUB GAMES.

Two second round matches in the Leinster Senior Cup are the chief games set down for decision this afternoon. Bective Rangers meet Old Wesley in the first game, which starts at 2.30, and on recent form this should be a close struggle. Even allowing for the fact that Lansdowne will be without M. Crowe, who was injured in the Welsh match, the team should have little difficulty in qualifying for the semi-final by defeating Palmerston. This game starts at 4 o'clock. An interesting Metropolitan Cup match is promised from the meeting of R. and S.P.U. and Old Belvedere at Sydney Parade, while at Wexford the Provincial Towns' Cup tie between Carlow and Wexford will be played.

LEINSTER FINAL OF THE IRISH CUP.

The much-looked-forward-to meeting of Railway Union and Naas will be realised to-day, when the teams come together at Park avenue to decide the Leinster section final of the Irish Senior Cup, and a very fine game should be witnessed, as both sides possess forward lines of scoring ability. As the teams have not met before, it will be interesting to see if the greater experience of Railway will be sufficient to overcome the fast, dashing attacks of the County Kildare side. The match will commence at 11.30. Later in the day the Y.M.C.A. grounds will be busily engaged with the playing off of the finals of the Railway, Intermediate, and Minor Cups.

Three Rock Rovers and Wicklow meet at Londonbridge road to decide their postponed Mills Cup game, and, with two Senior League ties also figuring on the programme, the holiday will be a busy one.

The Stock is to be redeemed by the operation of a Cumulative Sinking Fund, calculated to redeem the whole of the Stock by 1st April, 1951, to be applied half-yearly by drawings at par. The first repayment is to take place on 1st April, 1932.

The Company reserves the right, on giving to the stockholders three months' previous notice (in writing), to repay at par on any interest date prior to 1st April, 1951, the whole or any part of the Stock then outstanding. In the event of a partial repayment the Stock to be repaid is to be determined by drawings.

All Stock not previously redeemed is to be repaid at par on 1st April, 1951.

The Stock is to be constituted by a Trust Deed in favour of Lionel N. de Rothschild, Esq., and Anthony G. de Rothschild, Esq., as trustees, and will be secured by a first floating charge (according to English law) upon the assets and undertaking of the Company, both present and future.

The Trust Deed will contain a covenant by the Company not to create any mortgage or charge on any of its property or assets (except charges on property and assets outside Spain, to secure temporary loans or guarantees in the usual course of business) without expressly securing the redeemable Debenture Stock by a charge ranking in priority to such mortgage or charge.

From the Chairman's letter accompanying this offer for sale it will be seen that:—

Since its first distribution of profits in 1879 the Company has paid over £43,000,000 in dividends. From 1897 (when the shares were split into Ordinary and Preference Shares) until 1929, inclusive, the annual Ordinary dividend has averaged 57 per cent.

The average of the Company's profits for the years 1927, 1928 and 1929 was over £1,100,000, or over six times the amount required for the annual service of the stock.

The directors estimate (subject to the auditing of the Company's accounts) that, in spite of the fall in the price of copper and the world-wide trade depression, the profit for the year ended 31st December, 1930, should not be less than £650,000. This would be sufficient to cover the annual service of the stock more than four times without taking into account any revenue to be earned by the application of the proceeds of the present issue.

The object of the present issue is to provide the Company with funds to extend its interests in Rhodesia, and for general purposes. The Company proposes to apply part of the proceeds in acquiring a substantial holding of 7 per Cent. Twenty Year Convertible Debentures which are about to be issued by Rhodesian Congo Border Concession, Ltd. (Rhokana Corporation, Limited).

N. M. Rothschild and Sons, having purchased the said £2,000,000 Redeemable Debenture Stock, offer it for sale at the price of £91 10/- per cent., payable as follows:—

£10 0s. 0d. Per Cent.	on Application.
£15 0s. 0d. Per Cent.	on Acceptance.
£35 0s. 0d. Per Cent.	on 15th June, 1931.
£31 10s. 0d. Per Cent.	on 14th September, 1931.
£91 10s. 0d. Per Cent.

Payment in full may be made on acceptance, or on 15th June, 1931, under discount at the rate of 2½ per cent. per annum.

The following is a copy of a letter addressed to Messrs. N. M. Rothschild and Sons by the Chairman of the Company:—

16th March, 1931.

GENTLEMEN,—With reference to the £2,000,000 5 per Cent. Redeemable Debenture Stock of the Company, which you have purchased, we have pleasure in giving you the following information:—

The Stock is to be constituted by a Trust Deed in favour of Lionel N. De Rothschild, Esq., and Anthony G. De Rothschild, Esq., as trustees, and is to be secured by a first floating charge (according to English law) upon the assets and undertaking of the Company, both present and future.

The Trust Deed will contain a covenant by the Company not to create any mortgage or charge on any of its property or assets (except charges on property and assets outside Spain to secure temporary loans or guarantees in the usual course of business) without expressly securing the Redeemable Debenture Stock by a charge ranking in priority to such mortgage or charge.

The Company was incorporated on the 29th March, 1873, for the purposes (inter alia) of acquiring and working the Rio Tinto Mines in the Province of Huelva, Spain, and mines, beds of quarries elsewhere, and of working, producing and dealing in copper, sulphur and iron ores containing them and other minerals and natural deposits.

The Company owns the freehold of its Spanish Mines, which produce, mainly in the form of pyrites, sulphur and copper ores. The average annual output of these ores from the mines for the last three years has been approximately 2,400,000 tons. The ore reserves are estimated as being sufficient to maintain this rate of production for 50 years, with some gradual diminution of copper content.

Rio Tinto is the largest copper producer in Europe, and ranks tenth in order of magnitude amongst the copper mines of the world. The Company has its own railway connecting the mines with the Port of Huelva, where it has facilities for loading up to 10,000 tons of ore a day into ocean-going steamers. The Company also owns a Copper Refinery in South Wales, where a portion of its copper is refined for the English market.

Of recent years the Company's activities have been greatly extended, both in character and magnitude, and now include, in addition to the mines in Spain, important mining, metallurgical and chemical interests in Europe, North and South America and Africa. This extension of its activities has resulted, on the one hand, in an increase of the Company's profit-earning capacity, and, on the other, in spreading the risk of its undertaking both geographically and industrially.

The Company carries on its North American business through its subsidiary, the Pyrites Company, Inc., which possesses, at Wilmington, Delaware, the most modern copper extraction works now in existence and the second largest of its kind in the world. This plant treats residues from the Company's ore shipped to North America, and produces therefrom copper, lead, zinc and iron ore. The Pyrites Company, Inc., has a long-term contract with the Bethelem Steel Corporation under which the bulk of the large tonnage of iron ore produced at Wilmington is sold.

In addition to its large business in North America in pyrites and iron ore, the Rio Tinto Company is a large shareholder in the Davison Chemical Company, one of the leaders of the American fertiliser industry, and, through its above-mentioned subsidiary, holds a long-term contract to supply that Company with its whole requirements of pyrites for the manufacture of sulphuric acid.

The Company owns jointly with the Metallgesellschaft A.G. of Germany the European Pyrites Corporation, Limited, the largest organisation in the world for the sale of pyrites and pyrites residues. This Company has branches or agencies in all the principal industrial countries of Europe.

The Company has important interests in Rhodesia, of which the most important is its holding of shares of the Rhodesian Congo Border Concession, Limited, of 13-14 Austin Friars, London, E.C.2, a Company which is in process of changing its name to Rhokana Corporation, Limited. Upon completion of a contract which has been entered into with Bwana M'Kubwa Copper Mining Company, Limited, Rhodesian Congo Border Concession, Limited (Rhokana Corporation, Limited), will own the N'Kana and N'Changa Extension Mines, and, through its shareholdings, a 99 per cent. interest in the N'Changa Mine and approximately a one-third interest in the Mufulira, Chambishi and Baluba Mines.

The aggregate ore reserves of the N'Kana N'Changa and N'Changa Extension Mines are estimated at 194,000,000 tons of an average grade of 4.3 per cent. copper, equivalent to 8,300,000 short tons of copper. The aggregate ore reserves of the Mufulira, Chambishi and Baluba Mines are estimated at 147,000,000 tons of an average grade of 4.15 per cent. copper, equivalent to 6,100,000 short tons of copper.

It is expected that the production of concentrates by Rhodesian Congo Border Concession, Limited (Rhokana Corporation, Limited), will begin within twelve months.

As stated in the last annual report of the British South Africa Company, issued last month, the production costs of these Rhodesian Mines per long ton of refined copper landed in Europe are estimated to average about £40 during the earlier stages of development and to decrease to about £32 10/- when the business is fully established. As regards both grade of ore and costs of production, therefore, these mines should compare very favourably with the other principal copper mines of the world.

The object of the present issue is to provide the Company with funds to extend its interests in Rhodesia and for the general purposes of the Company.

Rhodesian Congo Border Concession, Limited (Rhokana Corporation, Limited), is about to offer to its shareholders for cash at par £4,500,000 7 per Cent. Twenty-year Convertible Debentures, of which the Company proposes to acquire a substantial holding. The income from this source will be available, in addition to the ordinary income of the Company, for the service of the Debenture Stock purchased by you.

Of the Company's share capital £2,250,000 was issued for cash at par on the formation of the Company, and the balance has been issued from time to time to meet the Company's requirements.

Apart from the Debenture Stock now purchased by you, the Company has no Debentures or Debenture Stock outstanding. The Company has guaranteed the payment of principal and interest in respect of £300,000 5½ per Cent. Debenture Stock of its subsidiary, the Pyrites Company, Limited.

The Company made its first distribution of profits in 1879, since when it has regularly paid dividends on its Ordinary Shares, with the exception of the years 1920 and 1921, when there was a prolonged strike at the mines, and only the Preference dividend was paid. The total amount distributed in dividends to date is over £43,000,000. From 1897 (when the shares were split into Ordinary and Preference Shares) until 1929, inclusive, the annual Ordinary dividend has averaged 57 per cent.

The following is a copy of the Auditor's report with respect to profits and dividends:—

To the Chairman and Directors, Rio Tinto Company, Limited,
3 Lombard street, E.C.3.

19 Coleman street, London, E.C.2,
16th March, 1931.

GENTLEMEN,—We report in accordance with the provisions of Part 2 of the Fourth Schedule of the Companies Act, 1929, that the profits of your Company for the three years ended 31st December, 1929, after writing back to the appropriate years arrears of Spanish taxes, and after charging income tax and all sums provided for depreciation, including amounts placed to reserve, totalling £450,000, which have not yet been applied, are as follows:—

Year ended 31st December, 1928	£1,040,312	17	7
Year ended 31st December, 1929	£1,410,261	15	8
Average	£1,103,911	19	2

Dividends have been paid in respect of each of these years on each class of shares in the Company at the following rates, namely:—

5 per cent. on 325,000 Preference Shares of £5 each for 1927, 1928, and 1929.
40 per cent. on 375,000 Ordinary Shares of £5 each for 1928.
50 per cent. and 5 per cent. bonus on 425,000 Ordinary Shares of £5 each for 1929.

No accounts of the Company have yet been made up in respect of the period subsequent to 31st December, 1929.

We are, Gentlemen,
Yours faithfully,
TURQUAND, YOUNGS and CO., Auditors.

In spite of the fall in the price of copper and the world-wide trade depression, which has resulted in a decline in demand for the commodities in which the Company deals, we estimate (subject to the auditing of the Company's accounts) that the profit for the year ended 31st December, 1930, should not be less than £650,000. This would be sufficient to cover the annual service of the stock (namely, £161,745) more than four times, without taking into account any revenue to be earned by the application of the proceeds of this issue.

Interim dividends of 2½ per cent. on the Preference Shares and 10 per cent. on the Ordinary Shares have already been paid in respect of the year ended 31st December, 1930.

In addition to agreements entered into in the ordinary course of business, the following agreements have been entered into during the last two years:—

(a) Agreement contained in two letters dated 7th June, 1929, and 10th June, 1929, between the Company and N. M. Rothschild and Sons, for underwriting an issue of 50,000 Ordinary Shares at a commission of £1 10/- per share.

(b) Agreement dated 16th March, 1931, between the Company and N. M. Rothschild and Sons, for the allotment to N. M. Rothschild and Sons of the above-mentioned £2,000,000 5 per cent. Redeemable Debenture Stock.

Yours faithfully,
A. C. GEDDES, Chairman.

Applications, which must be for £100 Stock, or multiples thereof, should be made upon the accompanying form.

If an application is not accepted the deposit will be returned without deduction. If an application is accepted for a smaller amount than that applied for, the deposit will be appropriated in or towards payment of the amount due on application and acceptance, and any balance remaining will be returned.

Failure to pay any instalment when due will render all previous payments liable to forfeiture and the acceptance to cancellation.

Provisional Scrip Certificates to bearer, to which will be attached a coupon for £1 5/- per £100 nominal, payable (less income tax) on 1st October, 1931, and representing interest at 5 per cent. per annum on the several instalments from their due dates of payment, will be issued by N. M. Rothschild and Sons in due course in exchange for letters of acceptance on which the amount payable on acceptance has been paid.

N. M. Rothschild and Sons undertake, on and after 1st October, 1931, on surrender of fully paid Provisional Scrip Certificates, to procure the Company to register the holders thereof or their nominees as the holders of the corresponding amount of Stock, carrying interest from 1st October, 1931.

The Company has undertaken that Stock Certificates will be ready for delivery on and after 2nd November, 1931. Provisional Scrip Certificates must be left with N. M. Rothschild and Sons at least 14 days for examination.

The Stock will be transferable in sums of £1 and multiples thereof at the Office of the Company, and warrants for the interest payable 1st April and 1st October in each year will be transmitted by post, the first of such warrants being in respect of the interest due 1st April, 1932.

By the said Agreement, dated 16th March, 1931, N. M. Rothschild and Sons have agreed to subscribe for the £2,000,000 Stock at the price of £88 per cent. N. M. Rothschild and Sons are paying an underwriting commission of 1¼ per cent., an overriding commission of ½ per cent., brokerage, and all other expenses incurred by them in connection with this offer, and the stamp duty of ½ per cent. on the Trust Deed securing the Stock.

The net amount which the Company is to receive is estimated at £1,760,000.

Application will be made to the Committee of the Stock Exchange, London, for permission to deal, after the delivery of letters of acceptance, and in due course for an official quotation of the Stock.

A brokerage of 5/- per £100 nominal will be paid on acceptances in respect of applications bearing the stamp of a recognised banker or stockbroker.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the Company, and the above-mentioned agreements and a draft (subject to modification) of the Trust Deed may be seen at the offices of Slaughter and May, 18 Austin Friars, London, E.C.2, and at the offices of Freshfields, Leese and Munns, 31 Old Jewry, London, E.C.2, at any time during business hours while the List of Applications is open.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

TONE AND COMMENT.

DUBLIN BUSIER.

RISE IN CABLES "A."

Dublin entered on the new account, which will extend over twenty-one days, with a little more animation than has been noticeable of late, but price movements in the end made a mixed showing. A feature was the rise of four points in Cables 7½ per cent. Ordinary to 24¾, following the better price ruling in London.

Funds were steady, with Land Bonds ⅛ lower at 98⅞. Funding Loan, 3½ per cent. Conversion and 4½ per cent. War Loan marked appreciably higher. Banks were a fluctuating market, with Bank Stock three-quarters lower at 344 and Provincials a point down at 28. Provincial New and Royals, on the other hand, were fractionally higher.

Great Southern Ordinary and Preference improved, and the Debentures gave way, and Dublin Trams were a shilling easier at 66s. Alliance Gas likewise sought a lower level at 10 1/16.

Guinness Units were a few pence lower in a small market, but the Preferences rose ⅛ to 12⅛.

The Industrial section was very quiet, but for the most part good in tone. Courtaulds, Unilevers and Chemicals all rose slightly; Dunlops were easier and "Imps" closed unchanged. There was nothing like snap in any direction. The best movement of the day was in Williams (H.) Ordinary, which rose 3s. 7d. to 80s.

The market will be closed to-day (Tuesday, St. Patrick's Day). London will be open as usual.

LONDON FIRM.

COLUMBIAS AND RADIOS ADVANCE.

Despite the fact that business was interfered with to a certain extent by the arrangement of the carry-over, trading was on quite a good scale, there being a fair accumulation of orders over the week-end, whilst fresh business showed some expansion. As a consequence, cheerful conditions characterised the majority of sections, and the list of price movements recorded at the close made a very favourable showing, several of the appreciations registered being of substantial proportions. The Industrial sections, especially, enjoyed good support, with Columbia Graphophones and Radios outstanding, on the belief that an announcement will be made in the near future in connection with the merger negotiations, which are said to have made rapid progress, and both issues went appreciably higher, though reacting slightly in the "street."

There was not a great deal passing in the Gilt-edged section, but the tone continued firm, and the final levels were unchanged from those ruling at the week-end. Among Foreign Government Stocks, Brazilians made fresh headway, the 6½ per cent., 1927, rising to 76, or a point harder, while the 5 per cent. Funding Bonds at 85 were ½ to the good. British Rails made an uncertain showing, with Great Western Ord., Midland Ord. and Underground Ord. all the turn easier. Apart from Antofagasta Ord., which were marked off sharply to 48, or 1½ points lower, Colonial and Foreign Rails continued firm, though there was little change in values. San Paulo Ord., however, stiffened 3 points to 140½, and Entre Rios Ord. and the 6 per cent. Cumulative Pref. each gained a point at 61 and 85½ respectively. Hardly a dull feature was to be seen in the Industrial sections. Trading was on quite a good scale, and prices generally trended in the upward direction. Elsewhere, Oil shares developed strength, and Mines were bought at higher levels.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET.

INTERNATIONALS FAVOURED.

At yesterday's carry-over in the Industrial Market the general charge again ruled at 4½ to 5½ per cent., but lower rates were arranged in several instances. Dunlops, Molasses, Unilevers, and Carreras were done at 4 to 5 per cent., H.M.V.'s at 3 to 4 per cent., and Leylands at 2 to 4 per cent. "Bats," "Imps," and Imperial Chemical Ordinary were continued at 1 to 3 per cent., Courtaulds at "even" to 1 per cent., and British Celanese at nothing to 2 per cent. There was a rather stiff rate on Pinchin Johnson at 5 to 6 per cent. Trading for the new account proved rather better than generally expected, though most of the business passing was professional. Trans-Atlantic issues gave the lead, the "Record" Shares being prominent, on the belief that an announcement will be made in the near future regarding the merger negotiations between the Radio Corporation and Columbia Graphophone Company.

The Trans-Atlantic favourites opened in good form, but final prices were below the best. Radio Corporations touched 26⅞ at one time, eventually finishing with a net gain of 3 dollars at 26⅜. Hydro-Electrics were finally 28½ after 29, and Brazilian Traction Common 27⅞ after 28. Nickels gained 1/16 at 18⅞, touching 19. The "Record" leaders attracted considerable attention. Columbia Graphs. rose to 3 3/16 bid, and Gramos (H.M.V.) changed hands freely up to 2¾, the latter closing ¼ to the good on balance at 2 11/16.

Cables and Wireless Stocks were marked down in the absence of fresh buyers. The Preference lost 2 at 69, the "A" Ordinary 1¼ at 23¼, and the "B" Ordinary ¼ at 12.

A fair inquiry was received for Electricals. Of the Equipments, Callenders, General Electric, and Johnson and Phillips all hardened.

Apart from Swan Hunter, which gave way to 17s. 3d. on the reduction in the dividend, the Iron and Steel group ruled quietly steady.

Motor Shares moved irregularly. Fords reflected American influences, and closed 1/16 up at 3 11/16.

Following the satisfactory Canadian Celanese results, Rayon Shares presented a firmer front. Canadian Celanese advanced ¼ to 2⅜, Courtaulds 1/16 to 1 9/16, and British Celanese Ord. improved 9d. to 7s. 6d., while Snia Viscosa hardened further to 8s. 3d.

In the Textile section Listers came in for renewed attention and put on 1s. to 12s. 6d., with Wardles buyers around 28s. 9d. J. and P. Coats proved an exceptionally dull spot, closing 9d. easier at 53s.

The feature of the Provision group was the continuance of the demand for International Tea, which left them 9d. up at 21s. 9d. Unilever N.V. improved 1/16 to 2 3/16 after being 2 1/16, and Unilevers closed unaltered at 2 1/16 after being 2¼. Liptons were again active. The Ord. hardened 1½d. to 5s. 6d., while the First Pref. eased 3d. to 9s. 3d., and the Second Pref. kept firm at 9s. 9d.

Renewed support was forthcoming for the principal Brewery Shares. Mitchell and Butlers rose 1s. 6d. to 49s. and Bass Ord. 1s. to 58s. 3d., with buyers also in evidence for Benskins at 34s. 9d., Guinness at 98s. 6d., Watney Def. at 49s. and Courage Ord. at 57s. 3d.

Tobaccos were slightly harder, with "Bats" at 4 1/16 and Carreras "A" at 4⅝. "Imps," however, lost the turn at 4½.

Shipping Shares were inclined to weaken. P. and O. Def. fell 1s. to 32s. and Cunard 9d. to 13s.

Insurance Shares were well maintained, and one exception being Employers Liability, which were marked down 1/16 to 3 5/16, following the publication of the report. Banks held their ground.

A good deal of interest was taken in Pinchin Johnson, and they improved to 32s. in the early dealings, but when the dividend announcement became known there was a sharp reaction to 30s. 9d., at which they finished 9d. down on balance. International Paint was firm at 35s. Imperial Chemicals came into demand, but finished below the best. The Ord. rose 6d. to 16s. 6d., after 16s. 9d.; the Pref. 3d. to 21s., after 21s. 1½d., and the Defd. 1½d. to 3s. 9d. British Aluminium advanced 1s. to 30s., Salt Union gained 1/16 at 1½, Turner and Newall 3d. at 39s. 9d., and Dunlops 1½d. at 12s. 7½d. The Swedish section again made a good showing. Kreuger and Toll were favoured and left off ⅝ higher at 26½, while Swedish Match "B" moved up 1/16 to 13 1/16.

OIL SHARES IMPROVE.

Following the dulness which prevailed in the closing days of last week, the Oil Share market commenced the new account in better style than had generally been anticipated. The firmer tendency during the early hours was almost entirely attributable to the favourable nature of advices received over the week-end from New York and Continental centres, where International counters were mostly quoted higher on Saturday last. The improvement was particularly noticeable among the recognised leaders, but the more speculative descriptions participated to a moderate extent. Owing to the small amount of business passing best prices were not held, but, nevertheless, gains were still general at the close.

RUBBER SHARES IDLE.

No expansion of interest was observable in the Rubber Share Market, but share values were usually well maintained. Easier conditions were apparent in the raw material market at the commencement, but later a steadier tone developed, and prices rallied the turn. Thus, spot and March sold from 3⅞d. to 3 13/16d. per pound, April to June from 3 15/16d. to 3⅞d. per pound, and July to September fetched 4d. per pound. The expansion in London stocks of rubber was rather heavier than anticipated, for the figure stands 704 tons higher at 83,001 tons, after deducting 1,154 tons, the estimated amount destroyed by fire at Butler's Wharf. Liverpool stocks now amount to 47,105 tons, an increase of 1,618 tons on the week.

THE MONEY MARKET

ANOTHER RISE IN SILVER.

The payment of the French and Italian debt instalments of £6,250,000 and £2,250,000, respectively, caused some shifting of credit yesterday, and, with the banks calling in balances, funds were in short supply. Borrowers paid 3 per cent. and over for advances until to-day, although some lenders accepted 2¾ per cent. Old day-to-day money was renewed at 2½ per cent.

The discount market firmed up a little on the tightness of money, three months' bills, after being 2 9/16, closing at 2 11/16 to 2⅝ per cent. The hot Treasuries changed hands at 2 9/16 to 2 11/16 per cent.

Silver had another sharp rise of 1/16d. on India and China buying, the spot price being 14⅛d. per ounce and the forward quotation 14 3/16d. Gold remained at 84s. 11½d. per ounce fine. At the Bank of England £250,000 in sovereigns was received from South Africa.

Sterling, in terms of the principal currencies, generally appreciated in the Foreign Exchange market yesterday. The New York rate was 1/32c. higher on the day at 4.85 11/16. The Canadian Exchange again closed at 4.85 15/16. Among the European Exchanges, the franc rate, after 124.16, was finally 124.14½. Reichmarks were ¼pf. dearer on the day at 20.40½.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

RIO TINTO DEBENTURES.

We publish to-day the offer for sale of an issue of £2,000,000 of 5 per cent. Redeemable Debenture Stock of the Rio Tinto Company, Ltd. The price of issue is 91½ per cent., giving a yield, with profit on redemption at an average date, of about £6 1s. 8d. per cent. The prospectus shows that the average profit for 1927-29 was over £1,100,000, or six times the amount required for the annual service of the new Stock, while the directors estimate that the earnings for last year will not be less than £650,000, or enough to cover the service some four times over. The funds raised are to be used to finance the Rhokana Corporation, Ltd., in its development of copper in Northern Rhodesia. The Debenture are redeemable half-yearly by drawings at par, and the first repayment is to be made on April 1, 1932. The whole issue will be redeemed by April 1, 1951. The Debentures will rank as a first-class industrial security, giving a fairly high yield. The list will open to-morrow, and close on or before Thursday next. Applications must be for £100 or multiples thereof.

CHILEAN CONSULAR INVOICES.

The Bank of London and South America informs us that, on inquiry at the Chilean Consulate in London, they were informed that the new regulations relating to Consular invoices will not come into force until the 1st April.

BRITANNIC ASSURANCE COMPANY.

The progress made by the Britannic Company in 1930 beat all its previous records. Its income for 1930 exceeded the income of 1929 by £253,652. The total income was £5,117,305. The funds at the end of 1930 were £19,243,039, being an increase of £1,427,760. The interest earned by the company for 1930 almost reached £1,000,000. £217,637 was given as bonuses to participating policy-holders in the ordinary branch. £70,000 was allocated to provide bonuses for certain classes of policies in the industrial branch. More than a quarter of a million is carried forward as undivided surplus. The Britannic evidently enjoys the confidence of the people of this country, as Irish districts and Irish agents won premier places on the company's list of successes.

DUTCH PAPER PROFITS.

The Royal United Paper Factory van Gelder and Sons of Amsterdam, the largest Dutch paper manufacturing concern, has passed its Ordinary dividend for 1930. For 1929 a dividend of 15 per cent. was paid. Net profits amount to £41,000, compared with £286,000 in 1929.

ART. SILK COMPANY'S AFFAIRS.

A Scottish shareholder in the International Artificial Silk Company, Ltd., which was registered in December, 1927, to acquire artificial silk mills in France, addressed a letter to the Comptroller of the Companies Department, Board of Trade, stating that so far as he was aware the company had not issued a report and accounts during the calendar year 1930. After further correspondence he received a letter from the Companies Department of the Board of Trade on Saturday, stating in reference to International Artificial Silk Company, Ltd., that, according to the documents filed with the Registrar of Companies, Mr. Bernard Harry Brigham, of 7 Leadenhall street, London, E.C., was appointed receiver on behalf of the debenture holders on February 28, 1931.

I.C.I. OFFER TO ALIZARINE.

It was announced yesterday that Imperial Chemical Industries, Ltd., has made an offer for the British Alizarine Co. of nineteen 7 p.c. Cumulative Preference shares in Imperial Chemical Industries for each forty fully-paid £1 Ordinary shares in Alizarine, and twelve Imperial Chemical Industries Preference shares for forty partly paid shares of Alizarine. The latter shares are of £1, with 15s. paid. The scheme will go through provided 75 per cent. of the shareholders are in favour of the terms.

PINCHIN JOHNSON PAY LESS.

Pinchin Johnson shares fell sharply yesterday afternoon, following the announcement of the final dividend. Ordinary shareholders are to receive a final of 12½ p.c., bringing the total for the year up to 22½ p.c. The market was going for 25 p.c. Net profits are £391,323, as compared with £462,349. Reserve allocation is halved at £10,000, and the carry-forward is lowered from £84,446 to £81,781. Last year the Ordinary dividend was 30 p.c., but in the meantime the capital has been increased by a capital bonus of 10 p.c. No reference is made by the Board to the negotiations with the International Paint Company. The directors state, however, that they have under consideration several important proposals for the extension of the company's interests. Pinchin Johnson 10s. Ord. are quoted at 30s. 7½d., and, allowing for the balance dividend in the price, they yield 7⅞ p.c.

CHEMICAL AND METALLURGICAL AFFAIRS.

A drastic reorganisation of capital is foreshadowed in the report for 1930, of the Chemical and Metallurgical Corporation, Ltd. The directors point out that such items as patents, which stand in the latest balance sheet at £251,869, and interests in subsidiaries (£58,323) are of little or no value, while the suspense account stands at £502,017. Further writing down in the values represented by buildings, plant and machinery is also held to be necessary. Proposals for capital revision will be submitted in the near future. The profit and loss account shows a trading profit of £14,036, and a balance of £8,003, subject to depreciation, is carried to the balance sheet. Accompanying the report is a circular from the Shareholders' Committee, which states that several members of the Committee have visited the works at Runcorn and that the reorganisation has been skilfully carried out. Although the output is still limited by shortage of orders to about 50 per cent. of the capacity, the monthly accounts continue to show a small surplus.

LONDON MINING MARKET HARDER.

GOLD SHARES BUOYANT.

Quite a fair amount of business was passing in the Mining Market yesterday, and a firm tone ruled. Kaffirs gave a particularly good account of themselves, and only about half a dozen shrinkages could be placed against a long list of improvements, many of which were of substantial proportions. Rhodesians took their cue from their neighbours, and, although business was not particularly brisk, the trend of values was upward. Chartered rose sharply, while Cam and Motor were a centre of activity, and a further improvement was recorded. Of the Northern issues, Rhokana were wanted on the encouraging references made to the company at the Rio Tinto meeting, and Bwana M'kubwa were also a harder market. Diamonds were left to themselves, the only alteration being a small shrinkage in De Beers Pref. The price of Tin fluctuated within narrow limits, business being restricted. The Share Market kept firm, though trading was on a small scale and movements on balance were few. In the Australian department more attention was directed to the Gold shares. Lake View and Star again moved up, while Associated Gold were a strong point. Wiluna also finished appreciably higher. In the Copper section Rio Tinto were unaffected by the statements made at the meeting. In the Miscellaneous section Santa Gertrudis benefited from the rise in the price of silver. Panama were a centre of activity on the persistent rumours that arrangements have been completed for the extension of the plant. Closing prices:—

DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS.

PIM BROTHERS (LIMITED).—The report for the year ended 31st January, 1931, states that, after charging or providing for all expenses, the net profit for the year amounts to £9,797, adding the undistributed profits from last account (£547) and transfer fees (£6), and deducting: Clothing and shirt factories, etc., amount written off £2,000, Debenture Stock interest paid to 31st December, 1930, £2,000, and interim dividend on Preference shares to 31st July, 1930, at 5½ per cent. per annum £2,750, there is a balance now available of £3,601, which the directors have allocated as follows: Dividend for half-year ended 31st January, 1931, on the Preference shares at the rate of 5½ per cent. per annum £2,750, and carried forward to next account £851. The directors deeply regret to record the death of the senior member of the Board, the Right Hon. J. Hogg, D.L., who gave continued service as a director for almost fifty years. After very careful consideration, and following an exhaustive investigation carried out by the company's auditors, the Board decided to give up all connection with the wholesale trade. This decision came into effect as from the 30th November, 1930, and whilst your directors regret the necessity which compelled them to take this step, they are satisfied that it should ultimately prove to be in the best interests of the company as a whole. Your directors feel confident that with the additional working capital which is being made available by the realisation of the wholesale stocks and debts, a marked increase in the retail business should be effected with a corresponding increase in profits, and they are pleased to be able to state that the retail has already, during the past three months, shown a considerable expansion. The directors are of the opinion that the total loss sustained on the complete realisation of the wholesale assets should be met by a reduction of the capital of the company, for which purpose a scheme will be submitted in due course for the consideration of the shareholders. Two of the directors, H. Leopold Pim and Jonathan Pim, jun., retire by rotation, and offer themselves for re-election. The company's auditors, Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co., also retire and are eligible for re-election. The Preference share dividend warrants will be posted on the 19th March, 1931.

ALLEY MacLELLAN.—A dividend for year 1930 of 10 per cent., tax free. £44,320 forward.

ARGENTINE ESTATES OF BOVRIL, LTD.—In addition to the payment of a dividend on the Pref.-Ord. shares at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum for the half-year ended September 30 last, the directors announce a dividend of 2 per cent., less tax, on Ord. Forward, £92,822, against £81,563 brought in. This is the first dividend paid on the Ord. shares.

BRITISH AND FOREIGN MARINE INSURANCE.—A final dividend of 27/6 per share, less tax, making 55/- per share, less tax.

BIRMINGHAM SMALL ARMS.—Usual Preference dividends for six months ended January 31 last—namely, 5 per cent. on "A" Preference and 6 per cent. on "B" Preferred Shares, less tax.

BRITISH GAS LIGHT.—A final dividend on Ord. stock at rate of 4 per cent. for year, less tax. (Same.) Forward, £86,069.

BRADLEYS (CHEPSTOW PLACE).—A final dividend of 7½ per cent., tax free, making 12½ per cent. for the year on the 400,000 Ordinary shares. For the previous year 20 per cent. was paid, but tax was deducted.

CENTRAL BANK OF INDIA.—A final dividend at rate of 6 per cent. per annum, tax free.

COMMONWEALTH BANK OF AUSTRALIA.—Profits for the half-year to December 31st, 1930 of the Commonwealth Bank of Australia, were £618,925, compared with £777,751 in the half-year to June 30th last, and with £730,331 in the second half of 1929. The balance sheet shows an increase of nearly £2,000,000 in deposits, and an advance of nearly £1,000,000 in bills payable. British, Colonial and Government securities have fallen sharply to just over £6,000,000, but Commonwealth securities have increased over £6,500,000, to £15,120,753. Coin and cash balances, etc., are lower at £1,303,482.

FORD MOTOR CO., STOCKHOLM.—The net profit for the year, after providing for depreciation, amounts to kr.1,994,542, to which the addition of kr.138,152 brought forward from last year, makes a total available for distribution of kr.2,132,694. The Board recommends that this be disposed of as follows: 10,000 shares—one new share for every four held—be distributed to the shareholders, kr.1,000,000; dividend 10 per cent. per share, against Coupon No. 2 400,000; transfer to reserve fund, 127,795; transfer to special reserve fund "Dispositionsfonden," 400,000, and to carry forward to next year kr.204,898.

FRANK MASON.—The directors have decided not to distribute the interim dividend on the Ordinary shares usually paid on the 1st April. Profits have been satisfactorily maintained during the current year, however, and they are confident that on the completion of the annual accounts the available profits will justify a satisfactory final dividend.

GRAND UNION CANAL.—A final dividend on capital stock at rate of 15/- per cent., making £1 10/- per cent. for year. (£1 7/6). Forward, £4,894.

GASKELL AND CHAMBERS.—A dividend of 14 per cent. on Ordinary for half-year to December 31, making 10 per cent. for year (same). A bonus of 1/- per share, subject to tax. (Same.)

HESKETH ESTATES (SOUTHPORT).—Payment of dividend on Preference shares, due March 1st, 1931, deferred.

HUGON AND CO.—Profit in 1930 £82,485, against £81,936. Ordinary dividend is maintained at 10 per cent., less tax.

INTERNATIONAL NICKEL COMPANY OF CANADA.—The report of International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., for the year ended December 31st, 1930, shows a net profit of $11,770,060 after depreciation, depletion, taxes, and other reserves. These earnings were equivalent to 67 cents per share on 14,584,025 shares of Common Stock, after allowing for Preferred dividends $1,933,919. This compares with a net profit in 1929 of $22,235,996, or $1.47 per share on the 13,758,208 shares of Common Stock then issued or issuable. With the significant observation, "The management does not regard the present industrial depression serious, as it now appears, as of major importance in the life of a company so well equipped to serve an expanding world market," Robert C. Stanley, President, closes the report in which he says: "It seems probable that the trend of the company's business in 1931 will be the reverse of that reported in 1930."

MONUMENT PROPERTY TRUST.—A dividend of 7½ per cent. on Ordinary shares, less tax (same); forward £2,790.

MERSEY POWER.—Dividend of 5 per cent. (same). Forward, £15,864 (£17,660). This company is controlled by Salt Union.

McDONALDS.—A dividend on Ord. of 5 per cent., less tax. (Same.)

PRINCE OF WALES HOTEL (SOUTHPORT)—Actual dividend of 8 per cent., less tax, for year.

PYNE BROTHERS.—A dividend on Ordinary for past six months at rate of 13 per cent. per annum, making 9 per cent. for year. (Same.) Forward, £10,23[illegible].

PINCHIN JOHNSON.—Final dividend of 12½ per cent., making 22½ per cent. for the year, on Ordinary; net profit, £391,323. (Last year the interim was 10 per cent. and the final 20 per cent., together with a capital bonus of 10 per cent. The net profit was £355,325. The new shares ranked for dividend from January 1, 1930.)

ROBERTS AND BIRCH (BURTON).—A dividend of 10 per cent., less tax. Forward, £7,439.

RADIATION.—Radiation, the company controlling companies engaged in the production of gas cookers, fires and furnaces, etc., reports revenue for 1930 of £294,530, after charging taxation and expenses. This compares with £294,780 for 1929, and, with £762 sundry income and £141,469 brought in, makes available £436,761, compared with £419,922. After meeting the dividend on the £1,087,525 Preference capital at 6 per cent., the directors propose a final payment of £9 7/6 per cent. on the £2,262,559 Ordinary, again making a dividend of 12½ per cent., and leaving the increased carry forward of £167,010. The directors report that, as a result of continued research work, a number of improvements, both in construction and type of material, have been embodied during the past year in the various apparatus made and sold by the company. These improvements have increased the cost of production, but no increase has been made in selling prices.

UNITED FLEXIBLE METALLIC TUBING—Final dividend of 3½ per cent., less tax, making 6 per cent. for year. (Same.)

AUSTRALIAN WOOL SALES.

RISING PRICES.

At the opening wool sale of the series at Sydney the offerings totalled 10,386 bales, of which 10,273 were sold. Wool sold privately consisted of 344 bales. The selection was a good one, under excited competition, there being particularly keen French and German buying, and good support from Yorkshire and Japan. The market for all fleece wools, including cross-breds, was about 10 per cent. above the level ruling at the close of the last series. Fine wools participated in the improvement to the full extent, and the prices obtained for skirtings were in many cases 15 per cent. higher. Greasy merino fetched up to 25½d., comebacks up to 14¾d., and cross-bred up to 14½d., a record for the season. The average price realised at the last series was 10.89d.

The offerings totalled 5,350 bales on the first day of a two-day sale at Melbourne. There was a miscellaneous selection of reoffered wools. Competition was very keen, the Continent vieing with Japan, and full clearances were effected. Prices were 5½ per cent. to 7 per cent. above the London rates. The top price realised was 16 pence.

LONDON WOOL SALES.

Two catalogues were offered, totalling 10,488 bales, including 2,187 New South Wales, 271 Queensland, 2,119 Victorian, 336 West Australian, 460 South Australian, 182 Tasmanian, 4,918 New Zealand. The sales continued with spirited competition from home and Continental operators, and the bulk of offerings cleared at full rates.

"WORSE THAN THE DESERT."

UNSANITARY CONDITIONS IN LUCAN.

Conditions of sanitation in a County Dublin village, which were declared by a local doctor to be worse than those experienced by the troops in Egypt, were discussed last night by the County Dublin Board of Health.

When a memorial was received from residents of Lucan on the subject of the proposed water supply for that area, the secretary read a report from the engineer stating that the Dublin Corporation could not see its way to extend the existing water supply in accordance with the Board's scheme, and a number of members immediately protested that it was a "lamentable state of affairs" that any Corporation should be able to refuse a supply to a rural area in that manner.

Dr. A. ffrench Carroll, who had attended the meeting to describe present conditions in the area, said that he had travelled a good deal in the world, and had never seen anything like the filthy condition in Lucan. There was absolutely no sanitation, and practically no water supply. His own private supply was invaded by people in the village to get the necessary water.

With regard to the Corporation's declaration that they could not extend the supply, he said that he had approached an independent engineer, who drew up a scheme which showed that the scheme for getting it from the Corporation was quite feasible. He emphasised, however, that a water supply by itself was useless; there must also be a swage scheme. "A good deal of the ill-health in Lucan is due to the lack of sanitation," he said. "It is appalling that within seven miles of the City of Dublin such conditions could exist."

Dr. Carroll spoke of one row of houses where one lavatory, a dry privy which was cleaned every three months, was erected to serve all of fourteen houses. "I was in the deserts of Egypt with the troops," he said, "and they had better sanitary accommodation than the people of Lucan."

The Council then left the subject.

KAYE DON'S NEW SPEED EFFORT.

HIDDEN DANGERS OF THE ARGENTINE RIVER.

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BUENOS AIRES, Monday.

Floating insidiously below the surface of the speedboat course, over which on Wednesday week Kaye Don is to pilot Miss England II. in her hundred miles per hour record-breaking run, are large quantities of driftwood, one piece of which, if it struck the frail hull of the speed boat during the dash, would shatter it like an eggshell. The danger of a repetition of the tragic occurrence last June on Lake Windermere, when Sir Henry Segrave was killed, is being adequately dealt with, however, by ships of the Argentine Navy. It is proposed to net the stretch of river, and afterwards to lay protective nets across it at each end to catch any floating objects which may be coming down. This course will be adopted during the trials which Kaye Don will begin in a few days' time. Miss England will arrive here to-morrow. Kaye Don will overhaul her on Friday, and on Saturday he will try her out.

[NOTE.—The performance of Miss England will be one of the most spectacular events of the British Exhibition at Buenos Aires, which was opened by the Prince of Wales on Saturday last. Miss England has already done 107 miles per hour on Lough Neagh.]

A Reuter message from Athens states that a landslide which occurred on Sunday on the Island of Leucade continued yesterday, bringing the Village of Peros within the danger zone. The Village of Carlopessi has been evacuated.

Lough Swilly Railway.

Employes Meet.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

DERRY, Monday.

In regard to the threatened closing down of the lines operated by the Lough Swilly Railway Company, it is understood that a largely attended meeting of the employés was held in Derry yesterday, when the whole situation was discussed. It is believed that the local officials of the two trade unions concerned decided to get into touch at once with headquarters in Dublin.

The workers are apprehensive that in any arrangement which may be arrived at to maintain the railway service sacrifices in wages may be expected, and it is to safeguard themselves in this respect that the workers are taking action.

The unanimous feeling, it is stated, was that the reductions which already had been made left no margin upon which further economies in this direction might be made. The workers believe that the dislocation which the stoppage of the service would involve cannot be permitted, and that the necessary economies ought to be secured in the co-ordination of road and railway transport, rather than in decreasing the income of the staff.

LEINSTER SCHOOLS XI. START WELL.

Last week-end was given over, more or less, to Junior and Schools Interprovincials, only one Senior League game being decided. The remaining senior fixture on Saturday was the match between Dublin and Manchester Universities.

On Friday the Leinster Juniors had an easy win over Munster by 6 goals to 1. Leinster gave a better all-round display than the southern team, who never really settled down. Miss Parsons, in the Leinster goal, was well able for anything that came her way—the only goal against her was from a scramble in the goal, which she could not have saved. The backs, Misses Shannon and O'Connor, were very sound, while Miss Nugent was the best of the half line. Miss Koenigs was outstandingly among the forwards, while Miss Flynn and Miss Baird got through some useful work.

For Munster, Miss Roche (goal) saved a number of shots. Miss Kelly was prominent in the half line, Misses Coughlan and Dally being the best forwards.

MUNSTER'S SECOND DEFEAT.

Munster suffered a second defeat on Saturday morning, going down 6-3 to Ulster. Munster did much better than against Leinster, and had practically as much of the play as Ulster. The northern team were expected to win by a much larger margin, as a week previously they had defeated Leinster at Ards. However, the Munster goal-keeper, Miss Morris, rose to the occasion splendidly, and saved her side on innumerable occasions.

Miss Tredgold (the Ulster goal-keeper) was also seen to advantage, and she got ample assistance from her backs, especially Miss Tollard. The marking of the Munster defence was very faulty. Of the forwards, Misses McGregor and Brandon (Ulster) and Cottrill and Lawler (Munster) were best.

LEINSTER SCHOOLS OPEN WELL.

In their first interprovincial encounter the Leinster Schools team came off with flying colours, scoring an 8-nil win over Connaught. Unfortunately, Connaught were unable to field the team originally chosen, three of their players being down with 'flu. On Saturday's game they were completely outplayed, Leinster having the advantage in every position on the field. The Leinster team gave such a splendid display of combined play that it would be impossible to single out anyone for special mention. Despite the heavy score against her, Miss Harbison, in the Connaught goal, played a good game and saved several shots. Miss Griffith was the better full, and Miss Stevenson did well in the front line.

The much-postponed League match between Optimists and Monkstown was decided on Saturday, Optimists winning by 2 goals to nil. Optimists will now play Muckross to decide the winner of "A" Section of the Senior League. The League final will be played between the winners of this match and, probably, Pembroke Wanderers, who, though not yet finished their League matches, are well ahead in their section.

Optimists showed good form in Saturday's game, their forwards being more dangerous in the circle than their opponents. The defence also showed up well, and were always able for the Monkstown attack. Miss Cummins and Mrs. Mainguy were prominent in the Monkstown defence.

The final of the Intermediate Badges resulted in a 2-1 win for National Bank over Dublin University II. The game was keenly contested, both teams playing at the top of their form.

SIX-A-SIDE TOURNAMENT.

A small six-a-side tournament has been arranged for to-day at Gilford road. Sion Hill, St. Mary's (Haddington road) and Loreto (St. Stephen's Green) will take part, each school entering two teams.

Hunter (Lurgan College), J. Henry (St. Dominic's H.S.) and D. Withers (Academy).

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

SHIELD MATCHES FOR TO-DAY.

In former years St. Patrick's Day was reserved as a cup final day in Dublin, but the old order has changed, and this afternoon the Free State Shield comes into the list, which contains a few unusually interesting matches. As a football spectacle the match between Dolphin and Waterford, at Harold's Cross, will be the strongest attraction, and another that should arouse keen interest is that between Shamrock Rovers and Drumcondra, at Tolka Park. Bohemians travel to Dundalk, and Cork will have a visit from Brideville. The matches start at 3.30, except that at Shelbourne Park, which is timed for 1 o'clock.

LAWN TENNIS

PRENN'S AMATEUR STATUS.

BERLIN, Monday.

Controversy over the amateur status of the German lawn tennis champion, Daniel Prenn, and his eligibility for Davis Cup matches, was brought to a climax to-day, when the Berlin court confirmed the imposition of a £15 fine on Prenn for libelling a firm of racket makers. Prenn, according to the firm, demanded £150 per annum and thirty-five free rackets as a condition for using their rackets. This, however, was denied by Prenn, who, in a letter of explanation to the German Lawn Tennis Association, said that the firm had lied.

The matter was taken to the courts, which found Prenn guilty and fined him £15. Prenn appealed against the verdict to-day, but the court decided that it was clear that Prenn had negotiated with the firm, and consequently his assertion that the firm had lied was not true.

The German Lawn Tennis Association will now have to decide whether Prenn is still qualified to represent Germany in the Davis Cup and other international matches as an amateur.

FRENCH SUCCESSES IN AMERICA.

NEW YORK, Monday.

Christian Boussus, Jean Borotra's protégé and one of the French team which is making an attack on the national indoor championship, entered the third round to-day, beating Ernest H. Kuhn, a New Yorker, 6-3, 6-3, after giving a beautiful exhibition of tennis. Frank Shields, the chief American hope, gained an easy victory over Irving W. Raymond, of Columbia University, 6-1, 6-0, in the second round. Pierre Landry won his match against William Thompson, of the Westminster Tennis Club, 6-0, 6-0.

GAELIC GAMES.

THE RAILWAY CUP FINALS.

CLOSE GAMES EXPECTED AT CROKE PARK.

(BY PAT'O.)

Established in 1927, the Railway Cups, directly associated with St. Patrick's Day, have been growing in popularity, and I believe that all records will be broken to-day.

For to-day's hurling game Leinster have a back line which, I believe, can hold the Munster front line to a close game. I have always held that the mainstay of a team is its half-back line. Every champion team had a superlative line there. In Cork's winning years Murphy, O'Regan and Coughlan held up all attacks. Tipperary's successes were based on the Purcell-Leahy line of backs, and, perhaps, the best line of all was the Hough-Lanigan-Keane combination, which won the Championship for Limerick. For this reason I hold that Leinster's chances are good to-day. Doyle, Teehan and Walsh are a powerful backbone in a team.

Munster will be strong favourites. They have captured all recent honours, and have selected a team of uniform quality. O'Meara holds a higher reputation as a goalkeeper than Kelly. The backs are equal. Gill's appearance at midfield for Leinster seems certain, and Meagher will make him a good partner. Of the winging forwards I like Power and Phelan best. The latter is a young Tullaroan man, who made his name in last year's Championship.

FAST GROUND CERTAIN.

On visiting Croke Park pitch last evening I found the officials busy in final preparation. Mr. O'Keeffe has the pitch in first-class condition, carefully marked, and it will play fast. This may favour Munster, who are adept ball players, and the combined movements of Cahill, Aherne and Kennedy may bring the Hurling Cup South again.

On recent form Kerry have minimised their chances to-day. They have had an abundance of cold travel by road and rail, and on all their appearances since the Championship final they have struck me as being stale. That fresh vigour and fervour which won them many matches may come back with Sheehy's reappearance.

Leinster did not impress me at Navan. They were ragged and uneven. Malone, Delaney and Douglas were the best trio on that day's display. League football in Leinster will have brought a big change in the meantime, and I believe the honours may lie with Leinster in football and Munster in hurling. In neither game will the margin be a big one.

The teams will be:—

HURLING.

Munster—O'Meara (goal), Ware, Doyle, Collins, Cross, Howard, Purcell, Hurley, Considine, Murphy, Cahill, Treacy, Coughlan, Kennedy, Aherne.

Leinster—Kelly, Byrne, M'Enerney, M'Mahon, Teehan, Doyle, Walsh, Gill, Meagher, Phelan, Quinlan, Tumpane, Roberts, Hegarty, Power.

FOOTBALL.

Leinster—M'Donnell, Goff, Nulty, Hayes, Higgins, Malone, Walsh, Hynan, Loughlin, Douglas, Delaney, Martin, M'Donnell, O'Brien, Rogers.

Munster—Riordan, Barrett, O'Connor, Walsh, Russell, Sullivan, O'Donnell, Stack, Brosnan, Ryan, Fitzgerald, Doyle, Landers, Sweeney, Sheehy.

WEXFORD WITHDRAW FROM THE HURLING LEAGUE.

At a special meeting of the Wexford G.A.A. in Enniscorthy on Monday, Mr. R. O'Keefe, Chairman of the Leinster Council, presided. He announced that the differences between the Chairman of the Committee and some of the clubs had been satisfactorily settled. The re-audited balance sheet for 1930, showing debts amounting to nearly £300, was adopted, and recommendations for economy were made to the Finance Committee for 1931. It was decided to withdraw from the National Hurling League owing to the expense of travelling to fixtures.

ROWING.

BOAT RACE PRACTICE.

The only boat race practice at Putney yesterday was that of Oxford University, who returned from a week-end at Brighton, and were out for three-quarters of an hour on the ebb tide. With a strong easterly wind the water conditions were not at all good. The crew paddled up to the Doves above Hammersmith Bridge, and, on the return journey, they tried a start, doing ten strokes in seventeen seconds. Paddling on to the mile, they tried another start from a stake boat, in which the rate of striking was still ten-seventeen strokes. At the end of the wall they rowed a minute, starting from a stake boat, and Holdsworth got in 9, 17 and 32½.

Cambridge had not returned from Eastbourne, where they had spent the week-end, but both crews will be out twice to-day.

DELICATE CHICKENS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Poultry Correspondent says:—

Those who rear chickens should watch them from the start, and as they grow they will easily perceive the birds that are going to be profit-makers. They are full of life, rushing about and jumping with the most wonderful activity. If there are any moping, uttering piteous squeaks and showing no sign of activity, they should be taken away for examination. Look at the vent, as they may be suffering from diarrhœa, which closes up the opening. If this is the case, soften the excrement with warm water, gently take it away and rub the part with vaseline. Whatever is wrong with them, they should have care and rest by themselves for a few days, with warmth and nourishing food. If this does not set them right, they should be got rid of, as it is waste of time trying to cure delicate chickens.

THE PLANTING OF RANUNCULUS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times the Garden Correspondent says:—

The Ranunculus have a penchant, apparently, for a fairly cool, sheltered, but not sunless, nook in the garden, planting the little claw-like tubers in loam and leaf-mould, superimposed on a little well-decayed manure, if the latter can be spared, and these pretty Persians are worth it. Into this, with the drawing of shallow drills, in which the claws are pressed, with their crown-buds up, six inches apart, and given that simple culture a floral feature of beauty and interest may be anticipated. The wholly distinct Ranunculus aconitifolius permanently planted in the border is, surely, one of the best of old-fashioned hardy plants, giving its wee double white flowers in profusion. This appears to be the hardiest of cultivated members of the tribe, and well we recollect the fine bushy plant, the admiration of train-waiting travellers at Clonsilla station, Co. Dublin. Popularly known as Fair Maids of France, Ranunculus aconitifolius is worth planting among the choicest mixed collection of hardy flowers.
